Told falsehoods to Watergate panel

Ehrlichman: Dean concealed facts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman defended President Nixon's response to Watergate today, testifying that rather than ordering a coverup, Nixon sought but failed "to obtain and publish a full, factual account" of the bugging incident.

Ehrlichman, a balding Seattle lawyer who served as Nixon's No. 2 aide at the White House until April 30, pinned the blame for Nixon's failure to learn the truth on presidential counsel John W. Dean III who, he said, concealed the facts from high officials and then told "falsehoods" before the Senate Watergate Committee.

He read a 30-page statement, then answered committee counsel Samuel Dash's questions about how two Watergate principals —E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy —while in the employ of the White House, had burglarized the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist to learn damaging facts about the man accused of leaking the Pentagon Papers.

While Ehrlichman testified, a spokesman for the President hinted that Nixon had no intention of complying with the subpoenas served on the White House Monday by the Senate committee and by Archbald Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor. Both sought tape recordings of Nixon conversations touching on Watergate, and the committee also sought White House papers.

The subpoenas —the first issued against a president since Thomas Jefferson was ordered to turn over letters in connection with the treason trial of Aaron Burr —were served when Nixon refused to surrender the materials voluntarily.

Gerald Warren, deputy press secretary, said Nixon would respond to the subpoenas "within the context" of his letters to Cox and Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., in which he refused to give up the papers and tapes on grounds he could not weaken the independence of the presidency.

Nixon said he had listened to some of the tapes and they would not answer the questions the committee is probing.

Warren said the tapes "have not been changed, have not been edited."

Ehrlichman told the senators that Nixon had been maligned by Dean and others, and been inaccurately portrayed as "paranoid, weird (and) psychotic on the subject of demonstrators or hypersensitive to criticism."

Dash questioned him about "The Plumbers" —the special White House unit, staffed by Liddy and Hunt and others — which had been created to counter news leaks.

After the Democratic breakin, Dash asked, wouldn't Ehrlichman have been embarrassed if word had leaked out that Hunt and Liddy, while in the White House employ, had broken into the Los Angeles office of Dr. Lewis Fielding?

No, Ehrlichman replied.

"It never was my view that Hunt and Liddy had done something that was completely irrational" since the Pentagon Papers case was so intertwined with the nation's security. He said a copy of the papers had "apparently' been delivered to the Soviet Union.

Deeply suntanned, Ehrlichman started out by looking at the committee directly and saying it would hear the truth from one in a position to know it.

Ehrlichman, in his statement promised he would answer questions about many issues including "the President's continued effort to obtain and publish a full, factual account of Watergate in its several aspects and why he never got it."

But the statement itself did not spell out why. It hinted that Dean was given the assignment and, because of his own Watergate involvement, concealed the truth from a President too occupied with more vital matters to worry much about either his election campaign or the Watergate break-in.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — An Ozark Air Lines Airliner, pounded by swirling winds and apparently struck by lightning, crashed in burning pieces Monday night. Thirty-six of the 44 persons aboard were killed.

The survivors included the pilot, copilot, and six passengers. Early today St. Louis County Hospital reported four of the survivors to be in critical condition, two serious and two more satisfactory.

A hospital spokesman said the discrepancy in the number of victims, earlier put at 38, came about because it had erroneously been believed that some disaster bags contained two victims when they only contained one.

It was the first fatal crash in the 23-year history of Ozark.

A thunderstorm which many residents thought was a tornado was raging over the St. Louis area when the plane came down between two homes two miles from Lambert Field and across the street from the University of Missouri at St. Louis.

Chet Chickering, a former Air Force pilot who lives near the scene, said, "This huge bolt of lightning seemed to strike the plane while the plane was being buffeted by gusty winds.

"It kind of nosed down, then disappeared from my view. I couldn't see any funnel cloud, but the plane was buffeted pretty badly."

Witnesses said the plane came apart

9 die, 40 hurt as blaze traps hotel tourists

OBAN, Scotland (UPI) — Screaming guests leaped from upper floor windows early today when a lobby fire gutted a crowded 6-story tourist hotel.

Hospitals reported at least nine persons were killed and more than 40 injured.

"Some of the guests managed to escape by sliding down sheets and blankets tied to the windows, but others had to jump as the flames reached their rooms," a witness said. "It was terrible. You could hear bones cracking as they hit the ground."

The blaze first swept through the lobby of the Esplanade Hotel in this western seaside resort, cutting off the exits and trapping the guests in their rooms.

As the flames crept higher, many of the residents decided to jump for fear of being burned alive, firemen said.

Oban ranks among the most famous resorts of the Western Highlands of Scotland and annually draws large numbers of both British and foreign tourists.

Predict smog alert in area

The San Bernardino County Air Pollution Control District has predicted a smog alert Wednesday with heavy eye pollution because of an ozone count ranging from .30 to .35 parts per million.

A community alert was called Monday afternoon in Upland with .44 parts per million and visibility of one to three miles due to fog, haze and photochemical aerosol.

The Monday report for Chino reflected a .27 parts per million and visibility of one to three miles.

$30,000 calf smuggling ring broken; Chino, Ontario dairymen victims

ONTARIO — West End sheriff's deputies said today they have broken a $30,000 a year calf theft ring operating in the Chino and Ontario areas, and recovered more than $3,000 in stolen calves and milking machines.

Because of the rising costs of beef, Chino and Ontario dairymen for the past year have been plagued by numerous calf thefts.

West End sheriff's deputies said that since July of last year between 65 and 70 calves have been stolen from more than a dozen local diary farms. "Those are only the thefts reported," said Detective Joe Henry. "There may have been others that were not reported."

Henry said deupties got their first break in the cattle theft ring July 13 when Chino diaryman Sylvester Vander Tuig caught several men attempting to steal one of his newborn calves. Vander Tuig, armed with a shotgun, told the men to halt, but was forced to fire when they tried to flee. One of the suspects, Charles Lane, 20, of Downey, was shot in the buttocks and captured by the dairyman.

A subsequent investigation by the sheriff's department resulted in the arrest of Robert Holman, 18, of 7711 Riverside Drive, Chino, and two juveniles who are charged with grand theft. Holman and Lane are now awaiting preliminary hearing on the matter in West Valley Municipal Court. The juveniles have been petitioned to Juvenile Court.

Henry said that last Thursday they went to Holman's home and discovered a number of suspected stolen calves grazing in a corral. Then they found suspected stolen milking machines in an undisclosed Ontario location. Holman's

Bombing ordered at highest level, says Schlesinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said today the secret bombing raids over Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 "were authorized at the highest level."

"There has been no usurpation of civilian authority," he said. "Military officials have meticulously followed the orders of civilian authorities."

Schlesinger discussed the secret raids on Cambodia border sanctuaries with reporters after testifying at a Senate hearing that he has no present intention of asking President Nixon to seek congressional authority for continuation of the Cambodia bombing after the Aug. 15 deadline imposed by only foreigners staying in the hotel.

4 air pirates arrested by Libyan police

Hijackers release hostages, blow up jet

CAIRO (UPI) — A Japanese Air Lines 747 hijacked five days ago in Europe landed today in Benghazi, Libya where the air pirates released their 154 hostages unharmed and then destroyed the $25 million plane with hand grenades which exploded "like a string of firecrackers."

The Middle East News Agency said the four hijackers were arrested by Libyan police. It said two of them were Arabs, one was Japanese and the fourth "looked like a European." A fifth hijacker, a woman with an Ecuadorian passport, was killed when her hand grenade exploded at start of the saga last Friday.

Japan Air Lines said there were 133 passengers and 21 crew members aboard the plane and that it has dispatched a relief plane to fly them to some European city, Rome or Paris.

The motives of the hijackers in the five-day drama remained a mystery.

Early in the hijacking they said they sought the release of Kozo Okamoto, 24, a Japanese kamikaze guerrilla serving a life sentence in Israel for an attack on Tel Aviv's Lod Airport which killed 26 persons in May 1972. Israel said it would not release Okamoto and the hijackers never mentioned Okamoto again. Nor did they make any attempt to bargain the plane and passengers for money, officials said.

The Israelia newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khaddafy either suggested the hijacking or gave his blessing to it to avenge the Israeli downing of a Libyan airliner Feb. 21 that killed 108 of the 113 persons aboard.

It said Khaddafy had proposed to Egypt shortly after the downing that a suicide attack be carried out on Haifa as revenge, that the Japanese hijackers referred to themselves as the 'Saints of Mt Carmel" —Mt. Carmel is in the Haifa vicinity —and that "they went to Libya when everything else went wrong."

The giant red-and-white Japanese 747 landed at Benghazi at 8:30 p.m. (2:30 a.m. EDT) after a three-hour 35-minute flight from Damascus, Syria, where it refuelled during the night. As the plane approached the airport a hijacker told the control tower if they did not get permission to land, "we will blow up the plane in the air." Two Arab nations earlier had refused the hijackers permission to land.

As the 747 was taxiing to a halt, the hijackers ordered the passengers and crew to get out, leaving their baggage behind. They started sliding down emergency chutes while the aircraft was still rolling and everybody was out within four minutes, an airport official said.

"They rushed all over the airport and airport police and Libyan soldiers collected them in cars," the official said.

The passengers and crew, who had been held under the menace of grenades and pistols for 87 hours, scattered in panic across the airfield as grenades began exploding aboard the plane. The plane exploded and caught fire, splattering wreckage across such a wide area Libyan officials closed the airport to traffic.

The Arab who did most of the speaking for the hijackers claimed to belong to a little-known Palestinian guerrilla organization called the "Sons of the Occupied Territories." The Japanese said they were from the revolutionary Japanese "Red Army."

Many of the passengers were in poor condition, but none was seriously hurt, an airport official said. As they gathered in the airport lounge some time after the landing, many of the passengers looked dazed.

"Some had bandages on their arms and legs and others were holding their stomachs," the official said.

He said two were taken to hospital for treatment.

The 747 had just left Amsterdam on a flight to Tokyo, by way of Anchorage, Alaska, when the hijack started dramatically Friday afternoon with an accidental grenade explosion that killed a young woman on the hijackers' team.

The plane's chief purser was injured in the explosion.

Gal bank robber gives women's lib new wrinkle

A woman with frosted brown hair and wearing sunglasses got $1,060 early Monday afternoon at Crocker National Bank, 17369 Valley Blvd., after shoving a note demanding cash to a teller.

The teller, Theresa Lowe, 21, said the woman handed her a note with $2,000 written on it shortly after 1 p.m. She said the woman told her to stamp the note as she would a check and to hand her the cash. The teller was warned not to give her marked money. After getting the cash, the woman walked out. No weapon was shown.

The robber was described as white, about 30, 5 feet 6 and weighing about 120 pounds. She carried a large white purse.

166 years ago, subpoena served on a president—and he complied

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon became the first President in 166 years to be served as subpoena when he refused to surrender tapes and documents related to the Watergate affair. chibald Cox. He said he was withholding almost certainly will end up in the U.S. Supreme Court

Nixon formally refused to provide the recordings and documents Monday to the Senate Watergate Committee and special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. He said he was withhtlding the material to protect the independence of the presidency and because its release would not settle the "central issues" in the Watergate probe.

The committee and the prosecutor immediately served Nixon with subpoenas seeking to gain possession of the material. But White House aides made it clear Nixon would refuse to comply with the subpoenas, opening the way for court tests.

It was the first time a subpoena had been addressed to a President since Thomas Jefferson received one in 1807. Jefferson was asked to furnish documents in connection with the treason trial of Aaron Burr, and he did so.

No precedent

Cox said Nixon's stand was "without legal foundation."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate investigating committee, strongly denounced Nixon's action. Ervin said he deeply regretted Nixon's stand because he believed "the Watergate tragedy is the greatest tragedy that this country has ever suffered."

Ervin said he had hoped the tapes would "shed some light on that crucial question: How did it happen that burglars were caught in the headquarters of the opposition party with President's campaign funds in their pockets and their hotel bedrooms..."

An ANALYSIS

"And I don't think the people of the United States are interested so much in the abstruse arguments about the separation of powers or executive privilege as they are in finding the answer to that question," Ervin said.

Nixon rejects meetings

Ervin, who is considered the Senate's chief authority on the Constitution, said he believed the doctrine of separation of powers could not be applied to "alleged illegal activities or political campaign activities." Nixon said in a separate letter that he had decided a meeting with Ervin agreed to earlier would serve "no useful purpose."

"At long last I've got something I agree with the President on in connection with this matter," Ervin said. "If the President doesn't think that any useful purpose can be obtained by our meeting together, I will not dissent from that view. So I won't ask for the privilege of visiting the White House."

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., the committee's Republican vice chairman, said he agreed to the issuing of the subpoena because he felt the material was "essential" to the investigation. He said he was unhappy it was "necessary for us to come to the brink of a constitutional confrontation."

Criticism of Nixon's decision also came from Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., the Republican national chairman in 1972. He said it was his view that "the revelation that these tapes are available hasn't helped the President's cause with the American people."

Nixon's attorneys must answer the subpoenas in U.S. District Court in Washington at 10 a.m. Thursday. It was expected the issue eventually would go to the Supreme Court. The court is in recess until Oct. 1, but the chief justice may convene the court for a special term on extraordinary issues.

Nixon was conferring with a group of New England lawmakers in his oval office when the subpoenas were served and accepted by his attorneys in the executive office building next door to the White House. Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., described the President as "drawn but spunky." Nixon was released from the hospital Friday after being treated for viral pneumonia.

Garment received papers

The Senate committee voted unanimously to issue the subpoenas. Rufus E. Edmisten, an aide to Ervin who handed the subpoenas to White House counsel Leonard Garment, told reporters that "we had a nice friendly chat. The papers are in their hands now and the committee will be waiting."

Cox sought eight specified sections of the tape recordings. News of their existence electrified the Watergate hearings last week when FAA Administrator Alexander Butterfield, a former presidential aide, testified that Nixon has automatically recorded conversations in his offices since the spring of 1971. The White House claims Nixon has now shut off the system because it has been "compromised" by disclosure.

Nixon heard tapes

Nixon told the committee that "the tapes are entirely consistent with what I know to be the truth and what I have stated to be the truth."

Aides said that Nixon heard the tapes early in June, about two weeks after he had issued his May 22nd statement in which he categorically denied knowledge of the Watergate affair. It was not clear why he did not use the tapes in preparing the statement but apparently wanted to double check before his former counsel John W. Dean III appeared before the committee. As a witness in late June, Dean accused Nixon of participating in the cover up.

Nixon said he was keeping the tapes under his "sole personal control" and none will be transcribed or made public.

"As in any verbatim recording of informal conversations," he told the committee, "they contain comments that persons with different perspectives and motivations would inevitably interpret in different ways."

Lady Bird takes quick Europe tour

Mrs. Johnson, accompanied by Charles and Linda Bird Robb, flew in from Tehran and immediately left by car for a two-day stay in Florence, the U.S. Embassy said.

Mrs. Johnson plans to leave Florence Thursday, go to Milan for a day and then take a train for Salzburg, Austria.

Release tapes, says former Nixon official

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — Former acting FBI director William D. Ruckelshaus said Monday he would have been more profound in his remarks with President Nixon, had he known his Oval Office conversations were taped.

But Ruckelshaus, who just ended a 75-day tour as the FBI's top administrator, said Nixon should release the tapes sought by the Watergate committee.

"I would like to see the tapes made public, but you've got to wait and see what the President's arguments are," Ruckelshaus said. Ruckelshaus said Watergate had left the feeling that "somehow our institutions should no longer be trusted." He said the government should take a stance of absolute honesty.

Resignation to end TV fear campaign

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clay T. Whitehead, President Nixon's communications director, who gained notroiety last year when he suggested that local stations refuse to run network news they considered unfair to President Nixon, will soon resign, New York magazine reported Monday.

The magazine said sources close to the administration disclosed that Whitehead's resignation will end the White House's attempts "to frighten the (television) networks and independent stations" into being friendlier to the administration.

The magazine said in its current edition that the White House had not decided whether to appoint a successor or abolish the job.

Colonel's successor resigns his position

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — John Y. Brown Jr., who turned fried chicken franchises into one of the world's largest food service operations, resigned Monday as chairman of the board of Kentucky Fried Chicken Inc.

Under Brown's leadership, the firm grew into an organization with sales in excess of $700 million with outlets in 25 foreign counties. He said he would remain as chairman of Heublein, Inc., a subsidiary acquired by KFC two years ago.

"I will always treasure my memories and experiences with KFC and my association with Colonel Harland Sanders and all of the employes and franchises that made KFC the nation's most exciting growth company in the 60's," he said.

Sousa's descendant leads the band

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A famous name struck up the band at an Occidental college summer concert Monday night. Swinging one of his great grandfather's baton's ("It's my prized possession") was John Phillip Sousa IV, 25.

The descendant of the famous march composer has not followed in his namesake's footsteps. His own musical career was limited to some flute playing, which ended when he lost some teeth in a college football scrimmage. But he does make guest appearances.

Sousa, an employe of the Los Aneles County Republican Central Committee, is a fan of his ancestor's works. "I'v heard 'Stars and Stripes Forever' hundreds and hundreds of times, but it still sends a shiver down my back," he said. "It's exciting music, very American, the type that won't die out."

Calf thefts . . .

father, Manuel Holman, 43, was arrested on suspicion of receiving stolen property. The elder Holman is awaiting preliminary hearing on that charge.

Henry said officiers are still searching for several other men in connection with the cattle theft ring.

"We believe that we may have cleared at least 70 per cent of all the calf thefts in the area since last year," said Henry. "We haven't had a calf theft since last week. Before that the thieves were averaging at least one or two calves a week. Sometimes they would steal as many as eight." He said fouldsteal as many as eight." He said the sale of the stolen calves may have netted the suspects $30,000 in the last year.

Henry said the theft operation would work this way:

The thieves would drive around the Chino and Ontario dairy areas during the day searching for newborn calves. That night they would return to the dairies and load the 70-to-80 pound calves into a car or cars.

"Can you believe loading four or five calves into a small car and driving them away?" said Henry. "But that's how we believe they did it."

After stealing the calves the thieves would do one of three things: They would take them to the Ontario location and feed them a few days until they could be sold to a "fence" or take them to the calf auction held in Chino weekly. The other way was to take them to the corner of Chino-Corona Road and Pine Avenue near the Vera Vlla Market the next morning and sell them to calf buyers who usually meet there in the morning.

"This is a big business today," said Henry, "because of the premium prices paid for beef. We think it reaches statewide. We are almost certain the same calf theft ring operating in this area may have also operated in the Riverside area.

Tahoe planners reject hotel's expansion bid

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (UPI) — The staff of the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency has recommended denial of a proposed major expansion for Harvey's hotel-casino at Stateline.

'Frightening' disclosures feared over Pentagon 'deceit' in bombings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, believes that a number of "frightening" disclosures about Pentagon deceit over the bombing of Cambodia before May, 1970, may emerge soon.

The Senate Armed Services Committee began an investigation Monday into the secret bombing of Cambodia for 14 months before the U.S. invasion, which President Nixon said marked the first aerial attacks over the country.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim testified in closed session Monday about charges from a former Air Force major that records were falsified to show no raids over Cambodia, although the 3,630 B52 sorties there beginning in March, 1969, dropped more than 100,000 tons of bombs, according to acting chairman Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.)

Hughes said he did not believe Friedheim's claim that the apparent deception was a mistake.

"To me it wasn't a mistake," said Hughes. This was set up deliberately to keep the information from the American people, Congress and this committee."

Hughes said: "The fact that these massive military operations and widespread falsifications of official reports could be kept secret so long convinces me that in this jungle of secret warfare and official deceit, there are uncharted depths perhaps more frightening than what has yet been disclosed."

Symington, angry over what he called a case of the Pentagon obtaining congressional appropriations under false pretenses, said Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, would be called to testify next week.

"We intend to pursue the matter and find out whom it was who gave the orders for tactical and strategic bombing and who gave the orders to falsify records," said Symington.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, testifying before a House appropriations subcommittee, dismissed the charges of deceit, saying the false information was "improperly sent to the Hill, for which the department has indicated its regrets."

"To say that these reports have been falsified is quite misleading in this case," eaid Schlesinger.

At the Pentagon, Lt. Gen. Daniel James Jr. said the Air Force is investigating charges made by former pilot Capt. Gerald J. Greven of Miami that U.S. planes bombed a Viet Cong hospital in 1969 contrary to the Geneva Convention rules of war.

and burst into flames upon impact. But the deaths—largely in the back area of the Fairchild-Hiller 227 Turboprop—were not attributed to fire.

Dr. D.A. Gardner, aviation medical examiner for the Federal Aviation Agency, said, "These people died from impact. The airplane stopped and they didn't... All the bodies were heavily contaminated with fuel, but there was no fire over the bodies."

The plane sheared off trees as it came down in the storm. One of the trees smashed through the roof and into the kitchen of Mr. and Mrs. William McCollum.

"We thought it was a tornado hitting the house and we went to the floor. Then we looked outside and saw the plane and the fire, so we took off running."

Howard Porter came running from his home to the crash site the first person to get there— entered the plane, and began slicing safety belts with a knife.

"One man was pinned in there real close to the fire and the fire was burning real close," he said. "The plane was busted out all over the place. People were pinned in it and they were hollering and screaming.

"I couldn't distinguish whether some were dead or alive."

The plane was Ozark Flight 809 from Nashville, Tenn., to St. Louis with stops in Clarksville, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Marion, Ill., where it made the last stop before the crash.

Clothes from suitcases on the plane were strewn outside the wreckage. Witnesses said shoes and socks were knocked off the feet of many of the victims.

The plane was ripped apart in the crash, and pieces of the fuselage were spread over several backyards in the neighborhood.

Financial report disclosed

Chrysler can't plead poverty this year, says union official

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp.'s position as a likely strike target in auto contract talks this summer is even stronger with the release of a financial report showing a $198.4 million profit in the first six months of 1973.

Chrysler's profit report Monday was the first from the major automakers and added weight to the demands of the United Auto Workers for a "share of the pie." Financial reports from General Motors and Ford later this week are expected to follow the record trend of Chrysler.

Fraser pointed out Chrysler's shaky financial position in 1970 — when contracts were last negotiated—let the No. 3 automaker off the hook then. In the first half of 1970, Chrysler lost $19.2 million. Profits so far this year are more than double the earnings in all of 1971 and almost equals all of 1972.

For its economic share, the UAW has demanded better inflation protection in the form of a modernized cost-of-living formula, a "substantial" wage increase, a $650 a month pension for workers retiring after 30 years of service regardless of age and a better medical and dental care plan.

Auto company negotiators have yet to put a price tag on the demands, but have said a contract settlement including all of the union's demands would exceed Phase IV guidelines.

Fraser said Chrysler this year "should be considered equally with Ford and General Motors" as possible strike targets. The target company is selected about two weeks before contracts expire Sept. 14 and must come to a tentative pattern-setting contract or face a strike while its competitors continue to build new cars.

Proposal assures workers of retirement funds

Big banks target of private pension system reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader joined Saturday with Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., in calling for reform of private pension systems and proposing several steps to help assure that workers get money promised them after retirement.

Nader and Hart, who intends to introduce legislation embodying their proposals, recommended licensing of private pension funds by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), and told a news conference they were concerned particularly about concentration of pension funds held by big banks.

Of an estimated total of $166 billion in pension funds across the nation, Hart said about $100 billion is held by banks and their trust departments —with 43 per cent of that amount in the hands of four New York banks which he did not identify.

"To compound this situation," Nader said, "the big financial institutions lend or invest the funds in other big financial institutions."

Under the Nader-Hart plan, workers would be allowed to select whatever SEC-licensed retirement fund they want in making their pension contributions. They also would have immediate vesting rights — eligibility for a pension —and, no matter how many times they changed jobs, they would be guaranteed portability, meaning they could carry accumulated pension rights to a new job.

Moreover, workers would get a share of the benefits, or earnings, from their contributions and would be issued a passbook like that given by a bank for a savings account. The passbook would show the total amount credited to the worker's account and would project yearly pension payments the employe would receive at different retirement dates.

Workers could retire at any time, but only once, and the pension payments would begin immediately, based upon the amount in the employe's account plus earnings from his or her contributions.

The Senate Labor Committee already has completed work on a pension reform bill that would give a worker 100 per cent vesting rights after 15 years on the job, provide federal insurance against plans that fail, and permit a voluntary program of portability.

The Senate Finance Committee is rewriting that bill, and a House Labor subcommittee plans next week to start drafting its own pension reform legisiation.

Mrs. Mary E. Young

CHINO — Former Chino resident Mary Elizabeth Young, wife of John E. Young, died in Bozeman, Mont., last Wednesday following a short illness.

Mrs. Young was born in 1909. She was a graduate of Mt. San Antonio College and was a member of the Chino Methodist Church. She was a former school teacher in Chino. She and her husband moved to Santa Barbara following his retirement. They were visiting in Montana.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. David Deihl of Cheney, Wash.; a son, Jere Groninger of San Bernardino; a brother, three sisters and 10 grandchildren.

Services were held in Billings, Mont.

Harry B. Wilson

POMONA — Funeral services were held in Yucca Valley today for former Pomona resident Harry Blaine Wilson who died last Friday at the High Desert Convalescent Hospital following a long illness.

Burial was in Twentynine Palms cemetery.

Mr. Blaine was born Jan. 19, 1887, in Troy, Kan., and came to California in 1916. He lived in Pomona for 40 years before moving to Yucca Valley in 1963.

He is survived by two sons, Chester M. of Lakehead, and M.H. Wilson of Yucca Valley; four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Wiesels and Son Mortuary, Yucca Valley, handled the arrangements.

Services will be held Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. Burial will be in Crestlawn Memorial Park in Riverside.

Judge adds tip

LONDON (UPI) — A London judge ordered a woman who tried to avoid paying a $1.83 taxi fare to pay it Monday—and to give the cabbie an extra 12 cents.

"I don't see," said the judge, "why the driver shouldn't get a tip."

Late night robbery of Kwik-Stop

The robber was described as white, in his late teens or early 20's, 5 feet 9, 150 pounds, with dirty blond hair and wearing a yellow shirt and dark trousers.

A clerk, Robert Buzek, 27, of La Puente, told police that the suspect entered the store, pulled a gun, and ordered him to put the money from the register in a small brown bag which had a figure six on it. He then told Buzek to lie on the floor, and fled.

Grandma gets prison term

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — Susan Reid was sentenced Monday to 120 days in jail and three years probation for attempting to extort money from a North Hollywood grocery store.

Mrs. Reid pleaded guilty to charges she walked into the store and demanded a shopping bag full of money, saying she needed it to free her grandchildren, who were being held hostage in a motel.

She returned the money later and was arrested.

Mrs. Reid is 72. She is currently on probation for a similar offense in Nevada.

Easily predictable

27-day pattern controls winters in Southland

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California's winter weather is controlled by 27-day cycles that can provide accurate predictions for years in advance of rain, wind, peak smog days and temperature fluctuations, two UCLA reseacrchers say.

"Amateur weather observers can plan events months ahead by observing and noting the beginning of the winter cycles," said Ronald Rosenberg.

Rosenberg and Paul Coleman Jr., geophysicists, said Monday the key to the system is the date of the first significant rainfall —more than a quarter inch —during the fall.

From then on, they said, stormy days come in 27-day cycles, each of which is divided into a "rain half" and "dry half" period, each of a little more than 13 days.

Because the storms disperse the smog, accurate predictions can be made of which winter days will he the smoggiest, they said, and because periods of cold weather and Santa Ana winds appear to follow a related pattern with the rainstorms, they too can be predicted.

Coleman and Rosenberg were studying the effects of the solar wind on the earth's atmosphere for NASA when they discovered the 27-day pattern in computerized records of Los Angeles rainfall from 1929 to 1971.

From their findings, last autumn they prepared a table covering the coming winter, which turned out to be one of the wettest, stormiest winters in Southern California in years.

The predictions were not 100 per cent accurate, they said, but were so close so often that they consider the process valid.

Using Oct. 14 as the reference point, the date of the first heavy rain, they found that only seven of the 35 rainy days that followed fell in the "dry" periods they had predicted. They found they could "automatically forecast the rainy intervals correctly 64 per cent of the time, for months in advance," Rosenberg said.

In some periods, the cycles remain "in phase" for years at a time, they said. A forecaster who understood the system could have predicted rainy periods five years ahead of time for the period between 1966 and 1971, they said.

They are not sure of the source of the 27-day cycle, they said, but suspect it is related to the seasonal movement of the Polar air mass and the high pressure system over the Pacific between Hawaii and the West Coast.

Rosenberg said that as soon as the first major rainfall this autumn, he will prepare a table forecasting the weather for the rest of the winter.

SKYSCRAPER ABLAZE — Firemen battle fire which burned out 14 floors of 44-story Avianca Tower, tallest building in the Colombian capital of Bogota. At least four persons died and 132 were injured.

More bodies sought in skyscraper fire

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Police dug through fire-scarred debris today of the 44-story Avianca tower building, Bogota's tallest, for more victims of Monday's fire which killed four persons and injured 63, gutting 30 floors of the structure.

Only the rescue efforts of a fleet of helicopters which airlifted more than 300 persons off the roof of the burning skyscraper kept down the death toll. Authorities feared, however, there could be more bodies in the still smoking ruins.

The 12-hour blaze broke out at 7:45 a.m. on the 14th floor with only about 450 of the 1,500 persons that usually work in the building on hand because of the early hour. Within minutes the blaze spread upward and a panic stricken man and woman leaped to their death from a window of the 17th floor, seeking to escape the flames. The other two known deaths were attributed to asphyxiation.

Thousands of soldiers were called out to isolate the area and handle the huge crowds that turned out to watch the fire, hampering firemen's efforts. Every piece of firefighting equipment in Bogota was used to fight the blaze, and other equipment brought in from the nearby cities of Girardot and Villavicencio.

35 Americans died in Tahiti air crash

PAPEETE, Tahiti UPI) — The crash of a Pan American World Airways 707 which killed 78 persons when it fell into the sea off Tahiti Sunday night took the lives of 35 Americans, including a family of six from Hillsborough, Calif., and a family of four from New York.

Only one person, James Campbell, 27, of Toronto, Ont., survived when Pan American Airways flight 816 plunged into the South Pacific a mile off Papeete port on a flight from Auckland, N.Z., to Los Angeles and San Francisco via Papeete.

A total of 79 passengers and crew was aboard the plane. Reports from Hillsborough, Calif., said the dead included 18 Californians, six of them from the John Nelson family. The other family wiped out was that of Thomas McWeeney, Hong Kong manager for First National City Bank, his wife and two children.

The First National City Bank in New York said McWeeney, who would have been 41 on August 4, his wife Sue and his two children, Thomas, 13, and Elizabeth, 12, were killed in the crash.

More than 24 hours after the crash, 11 bodies had been recovered from the oil-coated area where a flotilla of launches, pleasure boats and fishing craft brought debris from the plane ashore for examination by experts. Police said they had identified four of the 11 corpses, but they did not disclose their names.

Tahitian officials awaited experts from France —Tahiti is a French territory—and the United States to start a commission of inquiry into the crash.

Contrary to reports Monday, officials said today the pilot did not radio a distress signal nor contact the control tower at Papeete between his take-off and the crash. Earlier statements by airline officials at Papeete airport said the pilot asked for an emergency landing after his windshield shattered.

Witnesses said there was a loud report, apparently from the plane's engines, and then silence, as if the engines had failed.

Police seek kidnaper of girl, 10

CHINO — Police this morning were continuing their investigation into a report that a 10-year-old Chino girl was kidnaped Friday in the 13000 block of 11th Street but managed to escape from her captor minutes later.

The parents of the little girl made the report Friday afternoon. The little girl claimed that a man in a late model white car grabbed her from in front of her home and forced her into his car about 12:30 p.m. She said minutes later she jumped from the car and escaped.

The girl described the suspect as a Caucasian, about 38, 6 feet, 180 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes.

Motorist loses glasses, control, rips out fence

POMONA — A car hit a fence along the San Bernardino Freeway Monday when the driver lost her glasses.

Teresa Esoto of 10884 Central Ave., Ontario, was exiting onto the Ganesha Avenue off-ramp when her glasses fell off, highway patrolmen said.

The woman lost control of the vehicle as she grabbed for them. About 50 feet of chain link fence was damaged.

Lettuce drivers approve pact

SALINAS (UPI) — Teamsters Union drivers have ratified a new three-year contract with Bud Antle, Inc., the Salinas Valley's second largest lettuce producer.

Sources said Monday some 600 drivers approved the pact last week after striking the firm on July 18.

Details of the contract were withheld pending negotiations with 35 other valley lettuce growers. All the contracts expired at about the same time.

Bradley looking for short-range, stop-gap measures on transportation

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Even as the drive began to sell the county's car driving commuters on the idea they should want — and help pay for — a $6.6 billion mass transit system, Mayor Tom Bradley was pushing for quicker action on stopgaps.

"I would like to see more short-range ideas, more things that can be done now . . . before they break ground on a high speed trunk system," Bradley said Monday.

He made his comments after the Southern California Rapid Transit District unveiled plans for a 116-mile system of trains, subways and buses.

The study cost $600,000. Public hearings on the proposal are expected to take at least six months. A financing measure is expected to be put before the county voters next year, calling for an increase in the six per cent sales tax of from .75 to one per cent. If it passes work could begin in three years, and the system would be completed in 1988 or 1989.

The system would cost nearly three times as much as the $2.5 billion plan that voters refused to pay for in 1968.

It includes plans to get federal funds amounting to $4.5 billion. That is almost half the total money the Urban Mass Transit Administration has to give away by 1980, and other cities also seek funds.

Both those who drew up the mass transit plan and Rapid Transit District official said they were keeping in mind the threat by the federal Environmental Protection Agency to drastically curtail auto usage in the Los Angeles basin to clean up the air.

"We have to take drastic action to get the EPA on our side," the mayor said.

"This is a start, but it does not go far enough. It is not a plan. It is a point for discussion."

The projected system is "refined over the 1968 proposal" that voters rejected, said Thomas G.Neuman, vice president of the Rapid Transit District.

"There is every indication that the Los Angeles community wants some form of transportation other than the automobile."

The system would be the second most heavily travelled in the nation, behind only New York's, the planners said. By 1990 it would be carrying 1.9 million persons a day, nearly double the combined passenger load of the Chicago and Philadelphia systems.

The system would consist of six rail routes and two busways fanning out from downtown Los Angeles to the San Fernando Valley, International Airport, Santa Monica, Long Beach, Orange County, El Monte and Norwalk. About 30 per cent of the system would be underground, mainly in the century city and Wilshire area. There would be 62 stations, including five downtown.

Rogers' visit fails to satisfy Japanese

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Secretary of State William P. Rogers has departed Japan leaving behind the usual diplomatic smiles but the Japanese with the feeling they still are being treated as second class citizens.

The occasion was the ninth annual U.S.-Japanese economic conference which always is held at the cabinet level and which the Japanese had looked forward to particularly this year because of pressing economic questions and because of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka's impending visit to the United States.

Especially the Japanese wanted to know what the United States intended to do about the dollar and about future agricultural exports.

They therefore were especially disappointed when the three men they most wanted to hear dropped out of the meeting at the last moment

They were Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Explanations that they were needed in Washington, failed to convince the Japanese they were being treated other than as inferiors.

It is a feeling which has been growing steadily ever since Washington's late notice to Tokyo of U.S. detente with China in 1971.

Latest strain on U.S.-Japanese ties had been the cutback without advance notice of the export of soybeans to Japan.

Next to fish, soybeans are the most important source of protein for the Japanese people, and 92 per cent of the soybean supply comes from the United States.

The Japan Foreign Trade Council denounced the ban as one "utterly ignoring internationally established commercial practices."

And it was one of the background reasons for Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira's stern admonition to the United States at the opening of the conference to wield more "discipline" over its economy.

From Butz they had wanted firm assurances that Japanese needs in the future would receive high priority in the allocation of U.S. agricultural products.

The Japanese also had wanted from a higher economic authority than Rogers recognition for the steps they have taken to help the United States ease its balance of payments problems.

U.S. trade with Japan ran more than $4 billion in the red last year. The figures this year still are running in the red but the deficit is expected to be reduced by half. Trade for June actually showed a U.S. surplus —$847 million in exports to Japan as against imports of $804 million.

The Japanese point out that in the last two years they have acceded to virtually every U.S. request, including liberalized trade and investment in Japan and an upward revaluation of the yen by more than 35 per cent. U.S. exports to Japan this year are up 35 to 40 per cent.

Shop center seen hurting Lake Tahoe

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The president of the League to Save Lake Tahoe says the battle to preserve the mile-high lake from overdevelopment has suffered a severe setback with approval of a major shopping center and a new high rise hotel-casino.

League president Steve Brandt, in a letter to the editor here, said the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency is a failure because of its approval of the Raley's shopping center for more commercial and residential development plus construction of more highways.

He said the TRPA "has shown it is a failure, a taxpayer-supported planning assistant to commercial and development interests in Tahoe.

"The approval of both Raley's 16 acre 900 car regional shopping center for quiet Tahoe Vista on the North shore and a new 15-acre 1,000 car Del Webb casino-hotel for the south shore remove any doubt that Tahoe will be completely urbanized in a few short years."

The coverup: everything from skin blemishes to Watergate

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You see these trim, clean-cut young witnesses testifying before the Senate Watergate committee and you want to ask, "What's a nice boy like you doing in a place like this?"

But, deep down, you already know the answer. If we but admit it, they are to a large extent victims of the American system.

From the cradle onward, they have had it drummed into them that cover-ups are desirable. The message comes across every time they turn on the television set or thumb through a magazine.

And all involved in these cover-ups are depicted as being better off for the deception.

In the circumstances, it is hardly surprising that when involved in something unsavory like the Watergate scandal the first instinct is to cover it up.

The scene may have unfolded something like this:

"Hi, John. Why the long face?"

"I'm in a heap of trouble, Bob. A couple of FBI agents are coming to question me about the Watergate break-in."

"Surely you aren't letting a little thing like that get you down?"

"But I'm involved, Bob. I knew about the plans to bug the Democratic National Committee. In fact, I was the one who took those $100 bills to the laundry."

"Silly boy! Haven't you ever heard of Scan-Shield?"

"Scan-Shield? What's that?"

"It's the new super-powered scandal covering with the miracle deluding agent that conceals involvement in political espionage with just one easy application."

"Do you mean that if I use Scan-Shield my involvement in the Watergate case won't be visible?"

"It's guaranteed investigation-proof, John. Keeps you looking innocent as a lamb even under the scrutiny of Washington Post reporters. I use Scan-Shield after every involvement in campaign dirty work and I feel safe 24 hours a day. It even withstands leaks to the New York Times."

White House distrust of CRP bared in testimony

Haldeman's jealous manner told to panel

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The way Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., interpreted the testimony, there was so much distrust in President Nixon's 1972 campaign that some things were kept secret even from the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP).

Baker came to this conclusion after hearing testimony Monday that H.R. Haldeman of the White House was so suspicious of CRP's polling that he spent $100,000 to $110,000 in campaign funds to hire his own. He allegedly kept the results secret even from his close friend and associate, John D. Ehrlichman.

"Mr. Haldeman's role was very substantial," the witness, Gordon Strachan, remarked to Baker.

The ninth week of the Senate Watergate hearings is focusing on the activities of Nixon's two former top aides—Haldeman, his chief of staff, and Ehrlichman, his domestic affairs adviser. Strachan, who finished two days of testimony Monday, was Haldeman's political liaison.

Ehrlichman was scheduled to testify today, and Haldeman probably Thursday.

Until now, the focus has been mainly on CRP—with testimony from former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, who was campaign director until two weeks after the June 17, 1972, break-in at the Democratic offices in the Watergate; Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director; Maurice H. Stans, the campaign finance director, and others.

Strachan testified Monday that: —

—Magruder informed him after a March 30, 1972, meeting with Mitchell at Key Biscayne, Fla., that a sophisticated intelligence gathering system had been approved. Strachan said he informed Haldeman of this in "political matters" memo No. 18.

—Haldeman and Mitchell conferred by telephone on April 4, and Haldeman signalled Strachan to silently eavesdrop on the conversation, something Strachan did 40 to 50 times over the thee years he worked for Haldeman.

— After the Watergate arrests, Haldeman told him to make sure the files were "clean," which Strachan interpreted to mean to destroy all intelligence-gathering memos, including No. 18.

—He informed Haldeman during a flight on Air Force One that he had disposed of the papers, which he felt was not illegal, but merely an act to destroy politically embarrassing material.

Strachan, who sat erect with hands in his lap and answered questions politely and in a tenor voice, was critical of Magruder but complimentary of ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III.

Strachan testified that Magruder often did not give him accurate accounts in reporting on what was going on at CRP.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked if Magruder "was less than honest," and Strachan replied, "Yes, that is my firm opinion."

Of Dean, who charged that he believed Nixon knew about the Watergate cover-up as early as last September, Strachan said: "I don't think he ever lied to me."

"Would it be your opinion that if John Dean said he had told the President about Watergate and the cover-up would you say that Dean was telling the truth?" Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., asked.

"My opinion would be that John Dean would be telling the truth," Strachan said.

Strachan, who is 30 today, testified that Haldeman had little interest in the field organization but a great deal of concern about advertising and polling.

That was the reason, he testified, that he was sent to CRP to get $350,000 in cash campaign funds and bring it back to the White House. Eventually some of the money was used in payments to the Watergate defendants and their attorneys.

"We didn't want the CRP to know we were conducting independent polling," Strachan said, adding: "We incurred over $100,000 to $110,000 in private polling expenses."

Baker commented that that "implies some distrust."

"There was definitely a feeling of distrust of the CRP and of the confidentiality of their polling," he said.

Strachan also testified what it was like to work under Haldeman, who he said had a "well-deserved reputation as a very, very tough staff man."

After the election, it was decided that certificates woule be sent to all persons who had attended the Republican National Convention. Strachan said he had been working at the project but wasn't finished.

One morning at 4 o'clock, he got a call from Haldeman, who was aboard Air Force One, Strachan said. He said Haldeman told him, "I had not performed, and the project was not completed."

Strachan said he was so sleepy that he called the signal officer to inquire if he had just received a call. The signal officer said that he had, and offered to read back what Haldeman had told him.

STRACHAN SIPS—Gordon Strachan, former White House political aide to H. R. Haldeman, had reason to soak up water as he testified during a longer-than-usual session of the Senate Watergate Committee Monday. At one point, after imbibing, he told the youth of the nation—in response to a question—to "stay away" from government service positions.

Sea gulls often fly hundreds of miles inland to scavenge city dumps, pick up worms behind plows and nest in woodland treetops, says National Geographic.

Summary of Strachan's testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A summary of testimony Monday before the Senate Watergate Committee:

Gordon Strachan, who served as political aide to former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman, said he informed Haldeman when a "sophisticated" intelligence-gathering plan was approved 10 weeks before the Watergate break-in in 1972. He said Haldeman ordered him to destroy memorandums relating to it when the conspirators were arrested.

Strachan said Haldeman discussed strategy for collecting political intelligence on President Nixon's potential foes at least a year prior to the Watergate break-in. The discussion was held with former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, Strachan said.

Strachan said Haldeman played a major role in a decision not to provide strong Republican opposition in the 1972 elections to about 100 Democratic congressmen and an unpecified number of Democratic senators, primarily from the South, "who had supported the President on crucial votes on the Vietnam war."

'Stay away' from career in politics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The audience laughed when Gordon Strachan said he would advise young persons seeking a political career in Washington to "stay away,' but Strachan did not laugh.

When Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., put the question at the Senate Watergate Committee hearings Monday, Strachan's eyes filled with tears and his chin trembled. The unemployed lawyer, aged 29, reached for a glass of water.

"My advise would be to stay away," Strachan said.

When Strachan resigned from the job of general counsel to the U.S. Information Agency last April, he was the youngest counsel the agency had ever had. Before that, he held the important job of political aide to H. R. Haldeman, the most powerful man on President Nixon's White House staff.

Before Watergate clouded his life, Strachan was an achiever. In California where he grew up, he had earned his own money from age 7 on, mowing lawns. He was president of his class all through grade and high school graduating as valedictorian. He taught Sunday school.

His father died when he was 17, and friends used to say to Trude Strachan, his mother, "how do you manage to raise such two fine sons?" She said Gordon was "a fine boy and a fine man."

Text of letter denying tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Text of letter from President Nixon to Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., D-N.C. Chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee dated July 23:

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I have considered your request that I permit your committee to have access to tapes of my private conversations with a number of my closest aides. I have concluded that the principles stated in my letter to you of July 6th preclude me from complying with that request, and I shall not do so. Indeed, the special nature of tape recordings of private conversations is such that these principles apply with even greater force to tapes of private presidential conversations than to presidential papers.

If release of the tapes would settle the central questions at issue in the Watergate inquiries, then their disclosure might serve a substantial public interest that would have to be weighed very heavily against the negatives of disclosure.

The fact is that the tapes would not finally settle the central issues before your committee. Before their existence became publicly known, I personally listened to a number of them.

The tapes are entirely consistent with what I know to be the truth and what I have stated to be the truth. However, as in any verbatim recording of informal conversations, they contain comments that persons with different perspective and motivation would inevitably interpret in different ways.

Furthermore, there are inseparably interspersed in them a great many very frank and very private comments, on a wide range of issues and individuals, wholly extraneous to the committee's inquiry.

Even more important the tapes could be accurately understood or interpreted only by reference to an enormous number of other documents and tapes, so that to open them at all would begin an endless process of disclosure and explanation of private presidential records totally unrelated to Watergate and highly confidential in nature. They are the clearest possible exampie of why presidential documents must be kept contranscribed or made public and none will be.

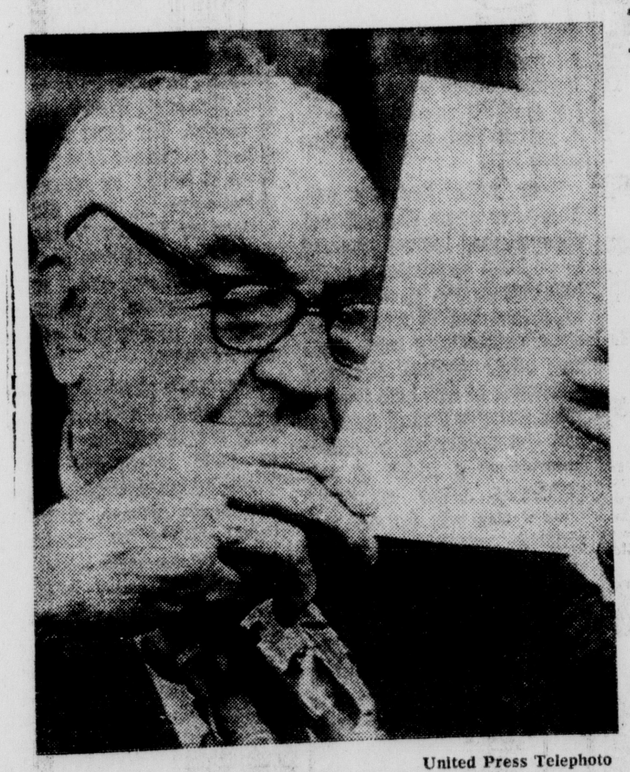
On May 22nd I described my knowledge of the Watergate matter and its aftermath in categorical and unambiguous terms that I know to be true. In my letter of July 6th I informed you that at an appropriate time during the hearings I intend to address publicly the subjects you are considering.

I still intend to do so and in a way that preserves the constitutional principle of separation of powers, and thus serves the interest not just of the Congress or of the President but of the people.

Sincerely,

Richard Nixon



United Press Telephoto

GETTING THE WORD — Sen. Sam Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, carefully reads a letter from President Nixon denying access to tape recordings of private White House conversations. Nixon, in a separate letter, also told the senator there would not be a meeting between the two of them, which Nixon had previously accepted.

Today's Watergate witness

A profile of John Ehrlichman

By United Press International

Until April 30, John D. Ehrlichman sat at the left hand of President Nixon. On that day he and H. R. Haldeman—Nixon's right-hand man—took their leave, victims of the Watergate scandal. It was the end of an era. "Fritz" (Ehrlichman) and "Hans" (Haldeman) were gone, and it seemed only the Presdent was really sorry to see them depart.

Ehrlichman had been Nixon's most-trusted adviser on domestic affairs and the chief architect of the administration's sometimes stormy relations with Congress.

When re resigned he proclaimed innocence of any involvement in the Watergate scandal, but he told Nixon: "The appearance of honesty and integrity is every bit as important ... as the fact of one's honesty and integrity."

Ehrlichman, 48, an attorney from Seattle, Wash., long has been one of Nixon's closest personal friend and political associates.

Like Haldeman, his roommate at UCLA, Ehrlichman is a Christian Scientist who neither drinks nor smokes. The two play tennis regularly. Haldeman recruited Ehrlichman for four Nixon political campaigns, and the men remain fast friends.

Ehrlichman has been a keymember of the White House staff since Nixon's inauguration Jan. 20, 1969. At first he was counsel to the President, a post he held until last November when he became Nixon's chief domestic adviser —the counterpart on domestic policy to foreign affairs adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Ehrlichman's successor as presidential counsel was John W. Dean III, whom Nixon fired at the same time he reluctantly accepted the resignations of Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman is considered far more personable by friends and associates although he sometimes strikes the public as being somewhat aloof.

According to one story, a reporter once asked a high White House official for a description of Haldeman, and the official went on for several minutes describing the sense of humor, personality, professional demeanor and other favorable traits of the then presidential chief of staff.

The next day the official called the reporter to apologize. That personable fellow he had described was Ehrlichman, not Haldeman, he said.

The public criticism of Ehrlichman and his old buddy Haldeman came not only from reporters who found them difficult to get in touch with but also from members of both political parties who said "The Germans" performed their job of insulating the President too zealously.

But Nixon didn't think so. For weeks after it became apparent that they had been so protective of the President that the scandal had lapped up to the very door of the White House, Nixon proclaimed his faith in both men.

$1 a gallon for gasoline not far off?

NEW YORK (UPI) — One dollar a gallon for gasoline in the United States?

It's a possibility partly because of the long delay in building an oil pipeline linking Alaska's Arctic slope to western ports, Chairman Robert R. Dorsey of Gulf Oil Corp. said in a recent Rotary Club speech in Austin, Tex.

Dorsey said the American energy crisis will take 20 years to solve, and he doesn't believe there ever again will be enough energy for people to move around the way they have in the recent past.

Chairman William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations committee raised eyebrows even higher a few weeks ago when he said the worsening global energy crisis conceivably could lead to military seizure of Middle East oil resources by western nations if Arab rulers continue escalation of royalties and taxes.

President Sadat of Egypt is believed to be trying to persuade King Feisal of Saudi Arabia, the west's best Arab friend, to threaten to withhold petroleum from the western nations unless the United States abandons political support of Israel.

European motorists are feeling the energy crisis worse than Americans. The Arab oil supplies Europe first.

That relieves the eastern hemisphere, Asia and the Communist countries substantially from the burden of supplying the whole world. But the escalating demands of Middle Eastern oil producing countries have had a critical impact on gasoline prices in such countries as Italy and France.

In both countries, the price of gasoline is an inflammatory political issue with many implications.

The price in Italy, for example, is rigidly controlled by the government and the gasoline tax is a whopping 76 per cent on the retail price. Italy's domestic output of oil is small and her government oil trust, ENI, controls only a quarter of the 700 million barrles Italy consumes annually. International companies, American, British, Dutch and French, control most of Italy's oil and they are threatening to pull out of the peninsula because of the squeeze between the Arabs' demands and the Italian government's price controls.

Shell Italiana expects to lose $30 million, and Chairman Norman Bain said this is forcing the company to reconsider its future in Italy.

After losing $12 million last year, British Petroleum sold its Italian oil network to an Italian firm which now must find the oil and gasoline to fuel it.

Exxon Corp. announced it is seeking a buyer for 200 of its stations in Italy unless the government raises gasoline prices sharply.

Similar problems have emerged in France and Belgium.

Gulf's Dorsey clearly doesn't see much easing of the escalating demands of the Middle Eastern oil exporting countries to help bring about an earlier solution of the global energy crisis. And it will be years before Arctic Alaskan oil comes to market in the United States.

So, Dorsey predicts dollar a gallon gasoline for Americans and says "that will have a tremendous impact on our society." Not to mention the pocketbook.

A-blast success in freeing gas?

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (UPI) — A spokesman for the Lawrence Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., says the success of an underground nuclear blast to fee natural gas will not be known until the crater is entered next month.

John Toman, a project director for the laboratory, said instruments would be inserted into the crater late in August to test the volume of gas released by the Project Rio Blanco blast. Tests on its quality and commercial value should be finished by October.

Christian Academy adds grades 11, 12

POMONA — Grades 11 and 12 have been added to the American Christian Academy for the 1973-74 school year, principal Wayne Temple reported.

Directed by Dr. Ray Batema, the school has grown to include kindergarten through grade 10 since September 1970.

American Christian Academy was established to meet the educational, spiritual and patriotic needs of young people, and is an educational ministry of the Central Baptist Church of Pomona Valley.

Enrollment is open to students from other churches or faiths if they agree to abide by the school's standards.

Applications are being received for all grades. Parents of juniors and seniors are invited to consider the different education available at the American Christian Academy, 395 E. San Bernardino Ave.

More information on the school's program may be obtained by phoning 623-3017.

It pays to be a pessimist

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Sometimes it pays to be a pessimist. South was looking at 10 tricks in his own hand. That is, there would be 10 tricks if his trump suit would run. An optimist assumes that seven to ace-king-queen-10 is going to run. Only a real pessimist worries about something going wrong.

Anyway, South did check for aces and kings. When North showed two aces and a king South could easily have counted to 13 tricks, but he decided that a vulnerable slam with a hundred honors plus game and rubber would be good enough and that anyway, there just might be a spade loser.

Also, South allowed for the possibility that his partner might go to seven if he held the jack of spades.

South won the club lead in dummy. He wasted no time in idle talk about the possibility of having missed a grand slam. Instead he quickly played dummy's three of spades. East followed with the deuce and pessimist South promptly finessed the 10.

It was a mighty good play. He was willing to let West score a trick with an unguarded jack. He wasn't willing to lose his contract in the event that East held all five spades.

Cattle will do the unexpected

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Cattle, says the New Mexico Court of Appeals, can be expected to do the unexpected.

A motorist involved in a collision with a cow on a rural road claimed Wednesday that the cow's owner was negligent, but the court dismissed the case.

"The only evidence in this case is that cows might get out of a fenced pasture if chased by men or animals; that cows have been known to jump fences, and that they will do just about everything you would not expect them to do," the court ruled.

Many factors affect happy seal-raising

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: If it was legal for me to keep a seal and I made sure that it was fed just the way it should be, would I be able to keep it healthy in our large swimming pool? I'd sure like to try it. A seal is such a great animal! — B.R.

Dear B.R.: Probably not. There are many physical and psychological factors involved in addition to adequate nutrition though this is, of course, important. One of many problems encountered with seals and other captive seagoing mammals of this kind kept in fresh water is lack of appetite and the developing of flabby muscles as a result of salt deficiency. While additional dietary salt will prevent this problem, unfortunately, many other difficulties could not be so easily solved.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Prune, our black cocker, had epilepsy as did her mother before her, as did other cockers related to her. This concerns me now because of Charcoal, our cat. She is still young and seems perfectly normal, so far, but her mother died from fits which we thought might be epilepsy. Would there be anything that could reasonably be done at this point to reduce the chances that Charcoal might develop fits and go the way of her mother? — D.D.

Dear D.D.: Inherited epilepsy in cats is extremely rare if, indeed, it does exist. Cats do undergo recurrent convulsions, seizures, fits and the like, stemming from a variety of causes. The most common causes in mature cats are related to toxins, or nutritional deficiencies. A good dietary history on Charcoal's mother and a current review of Charcoal's nutritional status would help the doctor pinpoint any potential nutritionally-related brain disease.

Charcoal's physical environment can and should be carefully scrutinized for clues as to toxic substances which might be precipitators of feline brain disease. Any cat owner should be constantly aware of the wide variety of chemical products used in and around the house which are potentially poisonous—to pussycats, particularly. Their penchant for washing, especially their feet, plus their particular sensitivity to any chemicals, makes them prone to pick up something poisonous around the house than are, for example, dogs.

City Council OKs $5,000 for downtown hotel study

By TONY NAVARRO
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — The City Council Monday night authorized the expenditure of some $5,000 for an updated study of the feasibility of a downtown hotel and also moved to change City Manager Fred Sharp's position to executive director of redevelopment.

Asst. City Administrator Joseph Korpsak said funds for the study, recommended by the Chamber of Commerce and Redevelopment Commission, would come from a "701" federal grant received by the city earlier for planning, updating of the master plan and other purposes.

Sharp had served as city administrator from 1949 to 1971 when he was named to the newly created post of city manager. Like the city administrator, the city manager was responsible directly to the council.

By a 4-0 vote, the council Monday placed on a first reading an ordinance changing Sharp's position, making him responsible and accountable to the city administrator, and spelling out his duties.

By an identical vote, the council authorized an amendment to a 1971 employment contract with Sharp, with the revised agreement to go into effect Sept. 1.

The study will be done by Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co., certified public accountants who specialize in studies for hotels, restaurants and country clubs.

Charles T. Richardson, chairman of the chamber's redevelopment committee, said the last hotel feasibility study was done in the late 1960s and that a new one is needed to see if efforts to attract a hotel here should be continued or redirected elsewhere.

He said the committee is aware the new study could invite criticism because of past studies made of Pomona but added that up-to-date information is needed to successfully promote a hotel.

Richardson said that once the study is started and the firm determines because of preliminary findings not to proceed any further, the study would be discontinued and the city charged only for the work done.

Mayor Ray J. Lepire asked, if the feasibility report turns out to be a positive one, if the firm is reputable enough to "carry weight" with hotel chains.

"Very definitely," replied Richardson.

Councilman Adrian T. Wright, who attended Monday afternoon but not the evening session, asked for support of the recommendations.

The study will not be limited to the site where Royal Inn had proposed to construct a hotel, north of Pomona Mall and east of Main Street.

"We don't want to put any perimeters on it, we want their whole thinking," said Don DesCombes of the chamber.

The amended agreement with Sharp, for a one-year period and renewable every year thereafter, changes his duties to correspond with the new position of executive director of the redevelopment program.

Although Sharp had been city manager since 1971, his main duties have been with the city's redevelopment program.

Among the duties spelled out in the amended agreement are to promote revitalization in cooperation with the chamber and other organizations, to exercise his influence in getting legislation beneficial to the city and to do whatever he can to advance development in the city and enhance its image.

Sharp would have the authority to negotiate in the name of the city and in the name of the redevelopment agency "concerning any project or proposed project vital to the redevelopment of the city" subject to the approval of the administrator, council or agency.

POMONA — Judy Ann Mayfield, the daughter of Mrs. Harriet Mayfield of 3109 Abbott St., recently received her nursing cap in traditional ceremonies at Pacific Union College in Angwin.

Cities urged to combat 'abandoned houses'

POMONA — Councilman Charles W. Bader Monday night suggested that Pomona Valley cities team up to fight programs which are resulting in large numbers of abandoned houses here and elsewhere.

Bader said Pomona presently had some 350 boarded up houses and noted Claremon's alarm over some 14 such dwellings in that city.

"Maybe with a little bit of political punch," said Bader, "we can change the federal programs that brought this situation about. I really don't know."

Mayor Ray J. Lepire, who earlier was invited to speak before the Claremont City Council tonight on the matter, said he would take Bader's idea there.

Bader said a "very critical" problem existed in Pomona, as the city is plagued with deteriorated housing administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Federal Housing Authority and owned "in many cases by mortgage lenders."

The councilman said cities faced with such problems possibly could merge their efforts to get the owners to clean up, improve the properties or reduce the price in an effort to sell them.

The subject of housing was brought up by Bader as an unscheduled agenda item. The council asked that the matter be placed on the agenda for further discussion next Monday.

Michael Silberhorn receives grant

POMONA — Michael Silberhorn of 2437 Kellogg Drive recently received a $250 scholarship award from the women's auxiliary of the California Landscape Contractors' Association.

Silberhorn, a senior park administration major at Cal Poly, won the award on the basis of outstanding academic achievements.

FRANK STREETER

D.A. appoints representative in S.G. Valley

LOS ANGLELS — Frank Streeter, 48-year-old former Los Angeles businessman, has been appointed community affairs representative for the district attorney's office in the San Gabriel Valley.

As a community affairs representative, Streeter is to help provide increased public access to the DA's office, according to Dist. Atty. Jospeh P. Busch.

Streeter will work from the district attorney's offices in Pomona and Pasadena and at the Los Angles County Human Services Agnecy Multiservice Center in El Monte.

"I hope we can open new lines of communication between the public and the district attorney's office," Busch said. "Our goal is to bring the office closer to the people."

The community-based representatives are intended to help citizens solve any problems which lie within the operations of the district attorney's office. The idea of using laymen not trained in the law in such positions is new, Busch said.

Streeter is a native of Glendale and attended high school and college there. He was in business in Los Angeles for 25 years. The new position pays $15,000 per year.

Streeter's hours in Pomona are scheduled for 9 to 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

We are becoming a plastic society

Ours is often referred to as a "plastic" society, with unfavorable implications of cheapness and artificiality. In strictly literal terms, however, we have only begun to employ this versatile material.

Seers at the Stanford Research Institute, one of America's leading think tanks, have gazed into their crystal ball and predicted a phenomenal growth in consumer use of plastics by the year 2000.

Their figures suggest that just 27 years from now a good segment of the population will:

Be driving plastic cars. Will be living in plastic houses. In some parts of the country may be living in a city covered by a clear plastic dome.

According to the experts, the automobile of the future may have enough plastic in it to cut the average total weight of a car in half — from today's 4,000 pounds to 2,000 pounds. Gas tanks, structural frames and possibly even axles and entire engines will be made of plastic rather than metal.

In homebuilding, fiber-reinforced plastics may be used for the beams of the 21st-century house beautiful. Polycarbonate windows (which resist breaking or scratching), plastic window frames, plastic rain gutters, plastic siding, piping and plumbing fixtures could make housing relatively much less expensive than it is today.

As for air-conditioned, domed cities, we already have domed stadiums, and soon shopping centers and malls will be protected with clear plastic domes.

One of the most important things about plastic is that it can be made by utilizing far less of our natural resources than in processing other materials.

For example, only 0.104 kilowatt-hour of energy is needed to make one cubic inch of polystyrene. This compares with 2.231 kwhr to make a cubic inch of copper piping instead of plastic, or 2.034 kwhr to make a cubic inch of aluminum residential home siding instead of plastic, or 1.101 kwhr to make a cubic inch of steel automobile part instead of one of plastic.

Today, only about one per cent of our total energy stream is used for making plastics, says Ralph L. Harding, president of the Society of the Plastics Industry, out of 40 per cent of the energy stream used by all of American industry.

Did the draft end too soon?

On July 1, when the armed forces draft ended, proponents of the all-volunteer policy had high hopes of large benefits for the nation, both military and political.

The anti-military attacks which have been so prevalent, presumably would cease. There would be less turnover, lower operating costs, a reduced training base, higher morale, greater motivation, more professional and better trained leaders and units, etc.

Th skeptics saw, and see, a quite different picture. One of them is retired General William C. Westmoreland. In a newspaper article the General suggests that "As a nation we moved too fast in eliminating the draft," and expresses uncertainty as to the wisdom of the all-volunteer program.

Westmoreland cites surveys showing that young men, and their parents, in large numbers oppose the idea of their serving in the armed forces. Congress has cut off funds for paid advertising on radio and television, although a test campaign produced very good recruitment results. He fears the high cost of recruiting and maintaining an all-volunteer force will tend to dilute modernization of equipment.

The General's most poignant concern, however, seems to be what the ending of the draft will do to the social composition of our security forces. "As we kill the draft," he says, "we set aside the traditional concept that a citizen has an obligation to serve his country. I also deplore the prospect of our military forces not representing a cross section of our society."

Westmoreland would restore the draft on a reduced basis, but one that would be an inducement to enlightment. A volunteer force of "90 per cent or more" would be his goal, with the lottery draft providing, in addition to inducement, a quick flexibility in expansion when needed.

The general's thoughts merit consideration, especially if his fears prove well found.

The cable cars

Few are the visitors to San Francisco who have not ridden the city's fabled cable cars. On August 1 the doughty little vehicles will reach the century mark, and will be honored by a 12-day centennial celebration.

They don't really go "half way to the stars" as the song says, but the cable cars do have the distinction of being the only moving National Monument in the country, we are told. We hope they continue to enchant the tourists for at least another 100 years.

"JOHN DEAN IN CONCERT AT THE WHITE HOUSE?" LET'S SEE... WOULD THAT BE UNDER "BLUES" OR "HARD ROCK"?

Details of San Clemente landscaping

WASHINGTON — Contrary to what the Secret Service has told the public about San Clemente, aides at the Western White House acknowledged in 1970 that the landscaping was designed to give the First Family an expensive view of the Pacific Ocean.

This admission was made, of course, before the public found out that the $700,000 renovation was financed by the taxpayers. Now the Secret Service claims that the landscaping was ordered strictly to provide presidential security.

Quite a different story was told in late 1970, however, when the Nixons decided to share their home with the public. They invited Cleon T. Knapp, publisher of Architectural Digest, to take a guided tour of the San Clemente estate.

The photographer was selected by the White House and the story was carefully supervised by the President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach. The final text was submitted to Kalmbach's office for approval.

Open area

The approved manuscript indicates that the landscaping had little to do with the President's security. "The patio and the grounds outside the house," states the article, "were landscaped in a natural, casual manner to maintain an open feeling and to allow maximum views of the ocean."

And again: "Dense planting that had grown up around the old house was cleared away to create new vistas of the lawns and the ocean." Removal of the dense planting, presumably, would also give a potential assassin a better view of the President.

Yet the Secret Service solemnly insists that the grounds were laid out, at considerable expense to the taxpayers, wholly to protect the President.

In May 1972, for example, the Kirkham Tree Service was paid $1,950 to "prune trees." The official excuse: "Eliminate safety hazard caused by dead branches." The firm of Buccola Carlos was paid $8,810 to "remove dry weeds to eliminate fire hazard."

Tree relocated

Another $750 went for "replanting fallen tree." Most incredible of all, the taxpayers forked over $1,800 to "relocate" a solitary tree. A government spokesman explained the tree was moved to give Secret Service agents a "clear line of sight zone, so they could see what was going on."

Confidential sources inside the Secret Service assure us that some of the landscaping, at least, was dictated by security precautions. When telephoto pictures of the presidential retreat were published, for example, the alarmed Secret Service concluded that the photographer could have been carrying a long-distance rifle. Result: Solid screening was installed on one side of the home.

The Secret Service has also scattered the grounds with sound sensors, advanced models of those the Army implanted in the forests of Vietnam. Some are camouflaged to look like sticks and stones, and they are sensitive enough, in the words of one source, "to hear a grasshopper burp."

President's Expenses.

We sought comment from Kalmbach who denied the tax money was used to pay for strictly personal improvements. "Anything personal," he said, "we paid with the President's funds."

Other sources confirmed that, of the $625,000 the President borrowed from aerosol king Robert Aplanalp to purchase the estate, $150,000 was spent for renovations. Most of this money was used to refurbish the interior, but the President paid for some outside improvements, including his own swimming pool.

Both the renovations and their financing were supervised in the White House by former chief of staff Bob Haldeman..

Footnote: Despite a law that requires the federal government to buy American goods, much of the material that went into Nixon's gazebos and garden walls was imported. The nails in his boards and the foundation steel in his "perimeter wall" came from the Far East. To cap the perimeter wall, the General Services Administration chose hand-made Mexican adobe tiles to maintain the "architectural harmony."

'Domestic Trucks'

The Mexican bricks were ordered through the Consolidated Supply Co. of San Juan Capistrano Beach. The company was instructed, however, to deliver the bricks in "domestic" trucks. "They didn't want any Mexican trucks pulling into the presidential compound," the owner of the company, Al Jimenez, told us.

A GSA spokesman said the Buy American Act was waived "on the basis that the products we wanted were not otherwise available in sufficient quantity or satisfactory quality." The agency, he admitted, did insist "that American transportation be used."

PAUL HARVEY

How HST would've handled scandal

Now you're told President Nixon has a "new strategy" for divulging the degree of his complicity in Watergate. I keep imagining how such a situation as this might have been handled by Harry S. Truman.

Martha Mitchell says "Mr. President" knew "all about Watergate and the coverup all along." And George Gallup's surveyors report most Americans think so, too.

Yet when the President appears in public—as during the Dirksen dedication at Pekin, Ill.—so enthusiastically is he hoisted on the shoulders of the electorate that he plans more such personal appearances in the weeks ahead.

It's fascinating to watch the public response to the person of the President. Where a year ago he'd have been applauded respectfully, now he is cheered affectionately.

There's something in Americans that inclines them to want to shoot down big guys and uphold those in trouble. Witness the way they rallied to underdog Harry Truman in 1948. President Nixon's forte—and you've heard him say this—is "international affairs."

It's his comparative disinterest in tedious home-front administration which resulted in the delegation of those responsibilities to H. R. (Bob) Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

President Nixon's years already have accomplished monumental progress in defusing armed international time bombs. He opened the door to China, secured meaningful co-operation from Russia and —however tardily—untangled us from Indochina.

But on the home fronts, President Nixon has been less effective in dealing with welfare misuse, street crime, wages, prices—inflation generally.

I say "embarrassed." I do not agree with those who say "discredited."

It is significant that the coals heaped on President Nixon's head over this Watergate thing have not been heaped by logical political adversaries. The McGoverns and the Kennedys and such have been discreetly silent, recognizing that ventilating closed closets leaves others vulnerable.

And they remember also the tendency of Americans to prefer the gadfly role until their giant is humbled; thereafter they are likely to rally to his rescue.

At the first news conference, when the question of Watergate was raised for the first time:

"Mr. President, did your campaigners spy on the opposition?"

I can hear Harry Truman laugh and say, "I don't know, but I should hope so. If they didn't, I'd ought to fire 'em. But if they broke the law, I'll have to."

And that would have been that.

LETTERS FROM P-B READERS

As others see it . . . letters

Acquires 'wrong' hobby

I was standing in line at my vets office to pay his bill when in walked an obvious emergency. I have never seen such a mutilated dog, but then, perhaps, others have. In spite of this mutilation, he was still recognizable. One of our well known "almost" male champion dog, whom I believe is nine years old, did walk in on lead "under his own strength."

The top inch or two from his right ear is gone, there were wounds about his face and gums, and legs, and a large blood-soaked area on his left rough, about three-four inches in diameter. He had obviously been involved in some form of physical confrontation.

I couldn't take my eyes from him as I've never seen such a mess. His handler was speaking to my doctor in a rather loud voice about three feet from where I was standing in line. At first I felt sorry for the owner that this nightmare had occurred because" accidents have been known to happen in the best of families." Then my sympathies turned into utter revulsion.

The handler—for lack of a better word— repeated over and over, "you cannot sedate this dog. He's nine years old, I'll hold him. He won't bite you. I guarantee that."

At this point, I had mixed feelings. We all worry about sedation, but how can anyone remotely expect an animal in this obvious condition to sustain suturing without it? Then came the ax. The handler said, "look, it's almost 2 p.m. You've got to patch him up. I have to get to the airport to pick up a bitch. I have to stud him twice tonight." I was unable to stay any longer. I was afraid to hear what might come next. I couldn't imagine in my wildest imagination what new horrors would be forthcoming from this insensitive fiend. If this is an example of what "the fancy" has become, I have obviously acquired the wrong hobby!—Diana H. Gould, Upland.

Gossip for today

"How are the mighty fallen". —And not the least of the mighty has been the almighty dollar.

Were Shakespeare alive today he would probably be writing a newspaper financial page column called "Much Ado About Nothing", where he would undoubtedly report that the once sound dollar has become a lot of sound and fury signifying nothing.

It is really a sad state of affairs in more ways than one. Consider the plight of the writer who wants to depict a man as a wasteful, prodigal spendthrift. Once he could start out by saying: "The poor oaf doesn't know the value of a dollar." But today such a near-do-well is probably every bit as smart as his friendly banker—and certainly a lot smarter than the international financiers.

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon unwilling to increase taxes

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Partly because of the political ravages of Watergate, President Nixon overruled the pleas of top economic advisers for a tax increase and personally drafted the tough Phase IV anti-inflation controls program to court the immediate good will of voters as the possible long-range cost of losing the anti-inflation war.

Just as he ordered the June 13 across-the-board freeze over the advice of those same advisers, Mr. Nixon has now constructed a Phase IV anti-inflation program streamlined for quick political approval and flying a bold "Made by Nixon" pennant.

Even when he was riding high earlier this year after his record landslide and before the Watergate scandal broke, his loose-controls Phase III program grew politically intolerable. Geared for high profits and hence expanding production, Phase III did not prevent prices from going up. The result: his much-delayed order of June 13 which put the economy in the straitjacket of a freeze.

Now fighting for his political life, Mr. Nixon understandably dare not risk a repeat of that baleful Phase III. More than any decision he has recently made, the President has proved by his choice of Phase IV weapons that approval of the voting public, not the opinion of business or economists, is now his first concern.

Burns Urged Increase

This alone explains the President's decision not to push for any tax increase. Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, strongly urged a tax increase. Only marginally less insistent was economic czar George Shultz, Secretary of the Treasury. These advisers were urging a choice of 12 different tax options on the President, including across-the-board personal and corporate income tax hikes between 2 per cent and 6 per cent.

The no-tax decision, made in a three-hour meeting of his economic high command, was the President's own. Only Dr. Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, backed Mr. Nixon. Burns pleaded for at least a temporary tax hike to sop up purchasing power.

Rejection of such advice may give Mr. Nixon more economic trouble tomorrow than political profit today. It puts the entire burden of the anti-inflation battle on Burns's Federal Reserve System and the extremely tough new Phase IV price controls.

This threatens the program's credibility in the world of business and industry, menacing the expanding production base essential for long-term control of inflation by creating more goods for sale.

Besides his tax decision, the President showed his need for immediate political gain by turning down Shultz and Burns on the politically dangerous question of the price "bulge" —that is, the immediate rise in prices—following the end of the freeze. Most economic advisers preferred a sharp, immediate bulge, no matter how high. Instead, Mr. Nixon will produce a long drawn-out price rise—a flattened bulge—by severely limiting the percentage of higher costs that business men may pass through in higher prices.

Prices sure to rise

With prices sure to go up anyway, Mr. Nixon's unsuccessful advisers argued that from a purely economic standpoint it is better to risk short-run political anger with a sudden bulge, to be followed by expanding production. Now, they fear, producers will be squeezed between rigid controls and spiraling raw material prices, holding production down.

In both the "bulge" and tax-rise debates, a Watergate-weakened Mr. Nixon lacks the political freedom to wheel and deal. He dares not risk further loss of voter support by adopting either higher taxes or looser controls. So, the President resurrected the old Phase II program, tailored to the slack, slow-moving economy of late 1971, and imposed it on the tight, full-employment economy of 1973.

The only appeal from the President's decision is in Congress. Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee is studying a novel scheme to "impound" receipts of higher income taxes, returning them to taxpayers in the next recession. Such a plan has been informally discussed by Mills and Burns.

But for Congress to increase taxes over a President's wish defies tradition and political common sense. The President almost surely will have to live with a Phase IV which, while acclaimed by voters today, may prove disastrous to long-run control of inflation and to Mr. Nixon himself.

MR. DINOSAUR, WHAT BIG TEETH YOU HAVE

At redistricting hearing

Speakers asked to notify board

WALNUT — In an effort to avoid confusion at an Aug. 1 public hearing on a proposal to redistrict North Diamond Bar schools fro mthe Pomona to Walnut school district, trustees are asking persons wishing to speak to submit their names and stands in advance.

"By having a list of the names of persons or organizations planning to appear and speak, the hearing can be organized in an orderly fashion, assuring everyone an opportunity to be heard," a school district notification on the matter stated.

Several hundred local residents are expected to attend the hearing, scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Walnut High School multi-purpose room.

Redistricting leader Nick Ruggiero will outline the history of the nine-month-old proposal and discuss data supporting redistricting. A representative of the Walnut Homeowners Association will speak against the proposal following Ruggiero's talk.

Anyone wishing to speak at the hearing may telephone the Walnut school district at 595-1261 no later than 5 p.m. July 30, indicating name and whether the person will speak in support or opposition to the proposal.

"The information will make it possible to alternate speakers so both sides of the issue can receive equal emphasis. The board must have an adequate presentation of all aspects and community opinions if it is to properly discharge its obligations and make a decision on the question," the district notification says.

The board is not expected to take a vote on the issue during the Aug. 1 meeting, but postpone action until September when trustee J. Edwin Nettell returns from vacation. According to law the public hearing must be held 30 days after the receipt of the petitions.

Walnut school officials received the 94 petitions containing 2,430 validated registered voter signatures for the proposal on July 13.

The latest redistricting action comes after several months of silence on the proposal first started by the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association.

The association wants North Diamond Bar out of the Pomona system, Ruggiero has said, because of deteriorating education in the Pomona system. In addition, he said, the community wants to be united under one school district roof. Diamond Bar currently is divided between the two districts.

The proposal has been a heated issue in both neighboring communities, with Walnut residents generally opposed to the proposal, according to a Community Club questionnaire.

DR. GEORGE A. DIBS

Administrator selected for Rowland schools

ROWLAND HEIGHTS — Dr. George A. Dibs, an administrator in the Paramount Unified School District, has been named assistant superintendent of education production in the Nogales area for the Rowland Unified School District.

Effective Aug. 1, he will assume responsibility for the conduct and outcome of programs in 10 of the district's 20 schools, as well as for Title VII (Federal) programs, Head Start and regular day programs.

Dibs said he was attracted to the district because of "the forwardness of its instructional program, excellent plan of decentralized management, and its openness to letting the community participate in the setting of goals and in advising the schools regarding programs."

He said he is a "strong believer in community involvement and community-centered schools" and his initial effort would be "getting to know the principals, staffs, parents and community leaders."

Dibs received his education at UC Berkeley, Cal State Long Beach and USC. He holds life credentials in general elementary teaching, general secondary teaching, elementary administration, secondary administration and general administration.

He lives in Westminster. He and his wife, Mary, have four children ages 8, 11, 13 and 15.

Junior Football physical exams set for July 31

DIAMOND BAR — Boys 9 through 13 who will play Diamond Bar-Walnut Junior All American Football the coming season will be given physical examinations July 31.

They are to be at Dr. Jack Little's office at 1770 N Orange Grove Ave., Pomona, at 5:30 p.m.

Interested boys who have not yet signed up may do so at the doctor's office. The fee, including the physical, is $20.

Film and chalk talks on highlights of this year's games will be presented at a general meeting for players and parents Aug. 1 at 8 p.m. at the Diamond Bar Country Club.

Coaches will talk about teams, practices, equipment and insurance. Equipment will be displayed.

Boys interested in playing may sign up.

Add potato chips to shortage list

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Processing plants in Maine report there is a severe shortage of the potatoes that potato chips are made from.

Chipman C. Bull, executive director of the Maine Potato Commission, said the problem "has existed for quite a few months."

New teachers to direct Walnut music classes

WALNUT — Walnut High School's music program will be directed by two district newcomers in the fall — Richard Massaro and Larry Cline.

Massaro, a Pasadena City College and Cal State Los Angeles graduate, will assume the position of musical director at the school. Cline will teach mixed chorus and concert.

Massaro has performed in the pit orchestra with the Pasadena Playhouse and in the official Tournament of Roses Band. A specialist in the brasses, he has taught all band and orchestra instruments to students from elementary through high school level.

"If we can interest young people in music when they are young that interest lasts a lifetime. I hope to make a start to that end here next year," Massaro said.

Cline will teach mixed chorus and concert at the high school, coming from Claremont High School where he has been musical director.

In his professional experience, Cline has sung with the Roger Wagner Chorale and has studied under Fred Waring and Howard Swan.

Cline is a graduate of Cal State Los Angeles and received his master of arts degree at the same institution in 1969. His ambition is to provide a complete vocal program at the school, including school performances "from pop to Bach," he said.

'Music Man' to raise funds for eye clinic

DIAMOND BAR — To raise money to establish an eye clinic, Diamond Bar Lions Club will co-sponsor three performances of "Music Man" at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut at 8 p.m. on Aug. 2, 3 and 4.

Lions club president Ross Rohn said some $700 to $1,000 is needed to insure the clinic program. Plans, he said, are to bring it into the Diamond Bar area to serve primarily elementary school children through the Southern California Eye Institute, Fullerton.

Rohn is reserving "Music Man" tickets at his home. He may be reached at 595-1351 between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, and between 6 and 10 p.m. on weekends.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12.

Music and drama professor Gary Toops at MSAC is directing the summer theater workshop which also is presenting "Music Man" on July 27-28, Rohn said. The cast includes both professionals and amateurs.

The Little Theater at MSAC has a seating capacity of 230. Rohn is hoping he can insure a three-night sellout and secure the eye clinic which he said probably would be operated through the schools.

$8 million suit filed against school district

WALNUT — An $8 million claim has been filed against the Walnut school district by the parents of 10-year-old Todd Christopher Jepson, who was hospitalized after an accident at Evergreen School last spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jepson of Diamond Bar are seeking the $8 million settlement for their son's hospital costs and permanent hearing defects stemming from the accident.

Todd was knocked unconscious after colliding with two boys running in a school corridor April 10, Mrs. Jepson said.

The claim has been forwarded to the district's insurance agent, Jo R. Paden Insurance. Todd was reportedly hospitalized one week and missed three weeks of school following the accident.

"Todd is still under doctor's care because of a hearing loss in his left ear. It's not a real bad hearing loss but it's still there. The doctors say if he progresses as he has been it might clear itself up," Mrs. Jepson said.

School trustees turned the matter over to the insurance agent, who will work with the Jepsons in the hopes of reaching a settlement outside of court. If an agreement isn't reached, officials said, a suit will be filed in Superior Court.

New storage vault invented

LA PUENTE — Eddy Huberts of 436 Dalesford Drive here has invented a stackable, collapsible, waterproof storage vault and is trying to market the fiberglass wonder.

Huberts is negotiating for the sale or licensing for the vault to manufacturers through the Raymond Lee Organization, a company specializing in development of new inventions.

Adult School opens its doors for youngsters wishing to read

INDUSTRY — This summer the La Puente Valley Adult School has opened its reading instructional lab to elementary pupils who wish to improve, maintain or catch up on their present reading and verbal skills,

Situated on the Valley Vocational Center campus, the lab provides a complete, individualized series of taped reading lessons which allow students to progress at their own pace.

"The lab was designed to be used by anyone, but until now only adults looking to complete their high school requirements have been involved," said Mrs. Mary Kernodle, who is in charge of academic programs at the Valley Vocational Center.

Currently 12 children are enrolled in the lab program, but there is room for many more.

"We have set up the program," explained Mrs. Kernodle, "so that a child comes in for an hour a day for as many days a week as is possible.

"The student works at an individualized station called a carrel under staff supervision.

"He works on books, tape cassettes and response sheets and finishes lessons at his own speed. The child then receives awards as he completes each lesson and goes on to the next one."

There is no fee for the program. Children from any school district may enroll.

However, parents of children attending must enroll in courses offered at the adult school. The minimum time spent by the parent must at least equal the time spent by the child in the reading lab.

If the parent works days and wants his child to attend the lab days, arrangements will be made for the parent to attend nights.

Future plans call for part of the reading lab to be moved to the La Puente Adult School on the Hudson Elementary School campus.

"We feel this program is a fantastic opportunity for children to get a boost in their reading abilities," said Mrs. Kernodle.

"It also gives the parent a chance to learn a worthwhile skill.

"I know many times a parent will take a child for a dancing, swimming or baton twirling lesson and sit and wait for an hour. Now they, too, may particpate."

Additional information on the reading lab program may be obtained by calling La Puente Valley Adult Schools at 213 968-4638.

SUMMER THEATER

Mrs. Connie Costellano, who is cast as the queen in La Puente Valley Theater's presentation of the musical fantasy "Story Theater," sprinkles Victor Martinez with stardust, using her magic wand. Performances are scheduled Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Hudson School auditorium in La Puente. Admission is free but donations will be accepted. The show is a retelling of old fairy tales set in modern language. Reservations may be made by calling the La Puente Community Adult School at 213 968-8452. Large groups are urged to call ahead.

Claremont Music Festival

Faculty, Students in concerts

By RALPH PIERCE

CLAREMONT — Faculty members of the Claremont Music Festival presented a concert in Bridges Hall of Music Pomona College, Wednesday night, and students and faculty combined for another program there Friday. On Wednesday evening we heard the two-piano artistry of Karl and Margaret Kohn and a string quartette made up of Charles Libove, Joanne Zagst, Raymond Page and Leonard Feldman.

The first half of the program was presented by the Kohns who have been heard on some previous occasions in years past. As one of the foremost of our American contemporary composers, Karl Kohn is certainly one of the most eminently qualified people to interpret some of the contemporary serial music. Both he and his talented wife also possess the type of pianistic technic to play it. Their main offering was the "Structures" Vol. 2 by Boulez. I don't know how often this work is performed but it would be difficult to conceive of many two-piano teams who would have the patience and comprehension to sudy and prepare such a formidiably difficult composition. It is not an easy work to listen to and, unless one had made an exhaustive study of serial compositional technique it would be impossible to really understand what went on. Suffice it to say that it was brilliant, tremendoulsy dissonant and that it completely exploited the range and dynamic possibilities of the two pianos. As a listener who can't lay claim to understanding the complex style of the music, I can only have the greatest respect for the Kohn's ability to perform a work of such vast technical and tonal demands.

For the first piece on the program the Kohns played the short Schubert Sonata in B Flat, D. 617. In this work the 21-year-old Schubert gave us a work of melodic charm and simplicity which seemed to be somewhat over-interpreted by the soloists in some passages.

The evening closed with a very musical performance of the Beethoven string quartet Op. 131. The last four quartets, of which this is the second, were the last works of the great master and in these he explored areas of music never traversed by any composer before or, for that matter, since. The players showed a complete undertanding of the complex work and gave rewarding reading of it.

Friday's concert closed the third week of concerts presented during the summer festival. For this concert the director, Giora Bernstein, chose three works of widely diverse styles. The first half of the concert presented a group of 12 wind players plus a string bass in the beautiful Serenade in B Flat, K. 361 by Mozart. The players in this work were all choen from among the younger members of the wind section which made their fine performance all the more impressive. This is not an easy work to perform, as Mozart knew the possibilities of each instrument and knew how to use them to their best advantage. I t would be difficult to conceive of a more beautiful interpretation of the work than the one we heard. The young players not only handled their instruments with professional skill but brought every musical inflection to the fore to make it a prime example of fine Mozart playing. The first oboe, Sara Watkins, played her instrument with an expressive quality that one seldom hears and the other performers gave equally sympathetic support.

After the intermission the largest group assembled thus far filled the stage to play the Pampeana No. 3 by the Argentine composer, Ginastera. This work is sub-titled "A Pastoral Symphony" and the first and third movements both displayed a colorful and peaceful style. It was in the middle movement marked Impetuosamente that the group had a chance to display the members' brilliant technique. A battery of percussion players, piano, harp and a full orchestra brilliantly interpreted the exciting rhythms and sounds used by this truly great contemporary composer. The conductor and the orchesta shared a real ovation after the exciting work.

The Ginastera was "a hard act to follow" but hornist Barry Tuckwell proved to be one who could do it. In the Weber Concertino for Horn and Orchestra, Tuckwell displayed about every technique you have heard on the horn and a few this reviewer hadn't heard previously. Actually the Weber Concertino is a rather weak work and far from a good example of better moments of Von Weber. If anyone could make it sound, it was Tuckwell who,with the able support he received from the conductor and orchestra, made it a performance long to be remembered.

'The Mikado' slated at Redlands Bowl

REDLANDS —"The Mikado," produced and directed by Dr. Edward C. Tritt, will be presented Friday night at 8:15 at the Redlands Bowl Summer Festival.

Tritt, on the music faculty of the University of Redlands since 1945, has conducted several operas for the Bowl as well as having founded and directed the University-Community Symphony for 24 consecutive years. He has been minister of music at the Redlands' First Baptist Church for 23 years and has taught in Salzburg during two semesters of the university's program abroad.

Dr. Richard Henderson, son of soprano Lara Henderson, will play the part of the Mikado, with his wife Lynn as Katisha.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Paul Bunyan is a mythical hero of huge dimensions, who accomplished many fantastic tasks. During the 1920s, James Stevens' stories popularized the lumberman. Bunyan became a national symbol for bigness, strength, ingenuity and exaggeration that reflected America's motivation to undertake immense tasks, The World Almanac says.

For Wednesday, July 25

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A friend with whom you'll be having discussions today has better ideas than you. Listen to him.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You will be drawn into some form of intrigue today regarding a business matter. Don't put profit above reputation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone you have faith in will deceive you today. Don't worry, you'll spot the deception easily.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The price you pay for service or work performed today will be inflated. Get several bids.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone is gossiping about you. You'll be told about it today by a friend who will help squelch the rumors!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) All who praise you for a task well done aren't sincere. One, in fact, is quite envious of you today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Early today you'll get off on the wrong foot with your plans. Later, a lucky break will turn you around.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One of your family will advise you not to waste money on something in which you're interested. Listen—he's right.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An agreement with another will be comfusing for both parties early in the day. Later, it will be clarified.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something that appears to be a burden will dissipate. In its place an opportunity will be found today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One whom you deal with will not be as open and frank as you are. His scheme will not work. Your honesty will.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A grandstander will not deliver as promised today. However, one who doesn't seek praise from others will.

Your Birthday
July 25

A very promising new partnership will be formed this coming year. It will be of help to you in harvesting your hopes.

Sanity not an issue in trial--ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The State Supreme Court ruled recently that the guilt or innocence of accused murderer Brent Bedayan must be decided before his sanity is tested.

Bedayan's lawyer, Frank J. Cox, deputy Marin public defender, asked to consolidate the court's finding because, he said, he would not deny Bedayan's guilt.

Bedayan is charged with the murder of three members of the Melvin Schallock family March 16 in Mill Valley.

Nolan Ryan not bitter about slight

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A friend of Nolan Ryan's was talking to him on the phone.

This was early last Thursday some hours before the California Angels' 26-year-old smokeballer made a lot of people's hearts jump by nearly pitching his third no-hitter of the season.

Only a short time before this call, Ryan had been informed he had been added to the American League All-Star squad.

It was sort of an after thought.

Due to a special provision, each league was allowed to name a 29th player. The National League tabbed 42-year-old Willie Mays in what amounts to a farewell gesture. The American League picked Ryan, who was not among the eight pitchers originally named by Oakland manager Dick Williams.

"Why don't you tell him to go spit in his hat now?" Ryan's friend said to him over the phone.

"No," replied the hardthrowing, soft-speaking Texasbred righthander, "I'm not that kind of guy. Naturally I'm a little disappointed about not having been picked before this, but it's still a great honor anyway. You never know. Nobody can say how the game will go. I may get in there in the late innings."

Nolan Ryan may not know it, but he's practically a cinch to pitch in tonight's ball game here. Catfish Hunter, the ace of Williams' Oakland staff, probably will be named by him to start against the National League, but Ryan very likely will be in there somewhere along the way.

He is The Man now.

He's baseball's biggest sparkler, its shiniest gem at the moment, the same way Denny McLain was five years ago, Vida Blue was two years ago and Steve Carlton was last year.

Ryan is th one star among all the All-Stars everybody's eager to see, and Dick Williams knows that. Williams may have had his appendix taken out four days ago but his brains are still intact.

In defense of Williams, it should be pointed that at the time he originally was called by American League President Joe Cronin and asked about the All-Star pitchers he had in mind, Ryan didn't enjoy the same status he does today.

He hadn't pitched his second no-hitter for one thing, and he was under .500, as he still is now, for another.

But he was and still is the major league strikeout leader and when Williams named his eight pitchers without including Ryan, Cronin asked him:

"What about Ryan?"

"What about him?" said Williams. "I know he's one helluva pitcher, but (Bill) Singer is the one carrying the California ball club. Ryan isn't even pitching .500 ball. What am I supposed to do? Who do you suggest I drop. Look, I'm not playing any favorites. I wanna win this game."

Cronin did not pursue the matter further.

After all, the manager is supposed to be allowed free rein in picking the pitchers, isn't he, and if some "outside party" comes along and tries telling him whom to choose, well then you can see the kind of chaos that could develop.

When Cronin called him at the hospital in Oakland where he was operated less than 24 hours after his surgery, Williams was startled at the suggestion that someone else could handle the club for him.

"I wouldn't miss it for the world," he assured Cronin.

There's one more footnote about the pitchers Williams originally named, Wilbur Wood, the White Sox kunckleballer, was one of them, but he had to withdraw—regretfully.

Wood wanted to be a part of the All-Star game here and would've been except that his six-year-old son is undergoing an operation.

THEY'LL START TONIGHT

Rick Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals, left, and Jim "Catfish" Hunter of the Oakland A's will start for the National and American League All-Stars tonight in Kansas City.

Aaron center of attention

By CHARLIE SMITH
UPI Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The nation's fans will be looking for the "new Babe Ruth"—Hank Aaron—but the two men entrusted to get the 44th All-Star game underway tonight are Catfish Hunter and Rick Wise, who could wind up seeing each other again in the World Series.

Set against a backdrop of a 12-story scoreboard and a water spectacular that stretches 322 feet from tip to tip,

Channel 4, 5:15 p.m.

baseball's annual showcase game begins at 5:30 p.m. (PDT) in beautiful new Royals Stadium which is part of the $70 million Harry S Truman Sports Complex.

Aaron, who clouted his 700th home run Saturday night and is only 15 away from breaking the mighty Babe's record, will be the center of attention when he tries to jack one out against Hunter, who has yielded 27 homers this season, the most by any pitcher on either All-Star team.

Encircled by newsmen at Monday's workout, Aaron took the opportunity to express his disappointment over the fact that Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn didn't wire his congratulations following No. 700.

Kuhn, when he heard of the slight, said, "I'm certainly sorry that Hank Aaron was disappointed, and I am sure he knows I am one of his biggest rooters. I want to lead the baseball celebration when he hits Nos. 714 and 715."

Hunter of the Oakland Athletics and Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals, a pair of righthanders making their first All-Star starts, have led their teams into division leads after early reversals. Hunter, 15-3, has won 10 straight, while Wise, 11-5, has been a part of the Cardinals' stunning comeback from a 5-20 start.

Also on hand is Willie Mays, who will be playing on his 24th All-Star team. Mays, probably making his last appearance in the mid-summer classic, took offense when it was suggested that he was added to the roster out of sentiment.

"First of all," said Mays, "I don't need no charity, And if I didn't come, it really wouldn't bother me. But it would hurt baseball. There are a lot of guys htting better than me and there are a lot of 'em who aren't here.

A sellout crowd of 40,613 and a national television audience will be hoping to see Wondrous Willie take one more swipe.

Perhaps the most significant development in the lineups announced Monday was that Kansas City's Amos Otis will be patrolling centerfield in place of New York's Bobby Murcer for the American Leaguers. Murcer will be in left.

Otis said he expected to be playing left since Murcer drew more votes in the fans' poll.

"I know I'd feel the same way if it was the other way around," said Otis.

Chuck Tanner, Chicago pilot, ran the American League workout in the absence of Oakland's Dick Williams, who did not arrive until Monday night. Williams underwent an emergency appendectomy last Thursday, but will manage the American Leaguers.

The game could develop into a rash of home runs—including some into the water spectacular, which stretches behind the fence from centerfield to the right field bullpen and cost $750,000. Excluding pitchers, the National League All-Stars have hit 276 homers this season while the American Leaguers have hit 204.

Tonight's game will be the 40th anniversary of the All-Star idea. Nineteen players who participated in the 1933 event will attend the game as guests.

The starting pitchers in '33, winner Lefty Gomez of New York and loser Bill Hallahan of St. Louis, will simultaneously toss out first balls along with Kansas City Royals' owner Ewing Kauffman.

It was fitting that Ruth pounded a two-run homer in that first gathering of baseball's best. On this All-Star anniversary most of the fans will be concentrating on the man chasing his record.

Broncos gain a Jackson, lose one

LOCAL-NATIONAL Sports

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer.

POMONA — The Denver Broncos ended the first day of regular practice for the veterans Monday at Cal Poly with two less players than when they started.

Starting offensive guard Larron Jackson, a 6-3, 270 pound third year man from Missouri, was suspended and sent back to Denver when he and the club reached an impasse on salary negotiations.

Wide receiver Ike Hill, starting his fourth year of pro ball, was traded to the Chicago Bears for what the Broncos termed, "future considerations."

Bronco coach and general manager John Ralston said he had serious doubts as to whether Jackson "really wanted to play football."

"He wants quarterback wages at the level of a nine-year veteran," remarked Ralston. "I don't have anybody that is ready to make that kind of money after two years. We negotiated a new contract for him last year and gave twice as much as we should have then. With these kind of demands, there isn't even a chance of trading him since a club will want him signed first."

The Broncos began the day with 73 players in the camp and closed it with 71.

However, a 72nd is on his way back and will report next Monday. Tom Jackson, a rookie linebacker from Louisville and no relation to Larron Jackson, was notified by doctors that he will not require knee surgery as had been feared and should be able to play this year with protective wrapping.

Tom Jackson injured his knee in drills last week and was sent back to Bronco headquarters in Denver.

The scheduled scrimmage with the Dallas Cowboys one week from today has been postponed. Denver publicist Bob Peck said that Tom Landry (Dallas coach) decided there was no need to scrimmage Saturday and again on Tuesday and then play an exhibition game with the Rams Friday.

However, Ralston is hopeful the scrimmage, slated to be held at Cal Poly, can be held Saturday August 4. Whatever the outcome of the negotiations with the Cowboys, the Broncos will hold some kind of a scrimmage, possibly an intra-squad affair, on that date which will be open to the public admission free.

Williams gives U.S. some glory

MINSK, USSR (UPI) — Steve Williams could not believe what was happening.

There he was, anchorman in the 400-meter relay and running against Valery Borzov, a double gold medal winner in last year's Olympics and the man the Russians call the world's fastest.

Then, with virtually no effort, the 19-year-old San Diego student blazed past the Russian to gain an American victory which highlighted Monday's openng day events in the 11th annual track and field meet against the Soviet Union.

It was a rare bright spot for the American squad, riddled by absences and injuries.

The Soviets won 13 of the 18 events and rolled to a quick 118-71 lead on what, according to Jim Bush, the head U.S. coach, was supposed to have been the Americans' "stronger day."

The Soviet women completely dominated their American counterparts. They took first and second in each of the seven first-day events for a 53-20 margin. The Soviet men led 65-51.

For the U.S. squad, Williams provided almost the only sunshine on an overcast day in the 40,000-seat Central Republic Stadium in the Byelorussian capital.

The muscular 6-foot, 3-inch sprinter said he'd been saving all his energy for Borzov, winner of both the 100 and 200-meter sprints in the Munich Olympics, since the squad's European tour began.

"I only ran one event in Italy and Germany because of him," Williams said. "I was expecting serious business but it was all so ridiculously easy."

Williams said he wouldn't like that because he doesn't want to think Monday may have been a fluke.

"I'd rather have him out there and lose (myself), than not to have him out at all," Williams said.

Tom White of Van Nuys, Calif. took the 110-meter hurdles in 13.5 on a track slowed by several days of rain. But Evgeni Arzhanov upset Rick Wohlhuter of Chicago, the world record holder at 880 yards, in the 800 meters with a time of 1:49.2. Wohlhuter clocked 1:49.4

James Redd of San Diego, Calif., took the 400 meters in 46.7 and reliable Al Feuerbach of San Jose, Calif., his shoulder-length hair held in place with a head band, won the shot with a toss of 67-10.

The U.S. suffered a disappointment in the pole vault when Mike Cotton of Ocala, Fla., aggravated a torn hamstring muscle and failed to jump.

College All-Stars won't be pushovers

CHICAGO (UPI) — The College All Stars, though certain to be underdogs, shouldn't be pushovers for the National Football League champion Miami Dolphins Friday night.

The pro team, which won the NFL crown last year with a perfect 17-0 record, won't have any edge in size on the collegians, and probably won't have an advantage in speed or stamina either.

Southern California's John McKay, coach of the All Stars, has more beef for his line than any previous All Star team with his nine defensive linemen and nine offensive linemen averaging 254 pounds.

Since only five interior linemen can be on offense and four on defense at any time, he should have adequate reserves too. And since Miami doesn't rate as a big team, the Dolphins should have no edge when it comes to the scrapping up front, uniess experience can make the difference.

"We didn't bring anybody up here to sit on the bench," McKay said, "so everybody is going to play."

That ought to mean that the Dolphins will be going against fresh material at all times whether they're on offense or defense, and could make the game close all the way.

The Stars haven't won in this annual contest since 1963 and in 39 games have won only nine times, lost 28 and tied two. But the collegians have won only three of the last 20 games.

Biggest of the Stars' linemen is John Matuszak of Tampa, at 6-8 and 270, but the other defensive linemen are almost as huge. Wally Chambers of Eastern Kentucky is 6-6 and 255, Rich Glover of Nebraska 6-1 and 236, John Grant of Southern California 6-4 and 240, Gary Hrivnak of Purdue 6-5 and 250, Greg Marx of Notre Dame 6-5 and 265, Derland Moore of Oklahoma 6-4 and 255, Ernest Price of Texas A & M 65 and 256, and Jeff Winans of Southern California 6-4 and 256.

Violent storm strikes Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Catfish Hunter and Rick Wise, the two starting pitchers, were eager to go but the weatherman suddenly stepped in with a violent electrical storm which threatened tonight's 44th All-Star Baseball Game at Royals Stadium.

The game was scheduled for 5:15 p.m. PDT and the weather bureau said there was a 30 per cent chance the rain might continue until then. Should the contest be washed out, it will be rescheduled for 11 a.m. PDT Wednesday.

The Cincinnati Reds were on their way to a first place finish in the National League West and Buckner complained bitterly about Walter Alston's inability to field a set lineup.

An intense competitor with a fiery temperament, the 23-year-old outfielder-first baseman now is all smiles at the all star break.

He would be. The Los Angeles Dodgers have pulled way out in front in the Western Division, Alston is using a set lineup and Buckner is playing every day.

"This," said the mustachioed athlete, "is a big improvement over last season and I think going with one lineup most of the time has had a lot to do with our success. I know I feel good just knowing that I'll be in there every day."

The Dodger results in the first four months of the season have left Buckner surprised — in a way, that is.

"I'm not surprised at the way we've played so far," he said, "but I wasn't sure how good we'd be in the spring. I wasn't sure who he (Alston) was going to play and I've learned not to become too optimistic about what happens in spring training because we alwyas do well then."

He poined out that rookies Ron Cey and Dave Lopes won the starting third base and second base jobs, respectively, since the season started and Steve Garvey, a failure as a third baseman a year ago, earned the club's first base job with his hot bat.

Garvey's insertion in the lineup on a regular basis resulted in Buckner being moved to left field.

"I don't care where I play," he stated, "just as long as I get to play."

A lefthanded hitter who was the No. 2 selection of the Dodgers in the June, 1968, free agent draft, Buckner admits he is a changed man from last season.

"I wanted to play more last year and I was unhappy because we weren't winning," he declared. "This year the club has a winning attitude and everyone is happy."

The No. 2 hitter in Alston's lineup is confident his team will win the NL West.

"Of course," he continued, "The playoffs are a different story. Anything can happen in a five-game series. We lost three in a row to San Diego at the beginning of this month. On the otherhand, we have the pitching and we have Don Sutton and I think he's the best pitcher in the league."

Buckner, a native of Vallejo, Calif., has tried to curb his hair-trigger temper in his third full season in the big leagues. However, he still throws an occasional bat or batting helmet and kicks a water cooler once in awhile.

"I'm doing a little better, though," he said with a grin. "But I have to let off steam every now and then. It's a long walk back to the dugout after you strike out."

Although his batting average is 45 points down from the .319 he hit last season, Buchner is not concerned.

"My hitting will come around," he said firmly. "I hate to alibi but I've hit in a lot of tough luck this season. I've had a lot of line drives caught.

"I think I could still hit .300, it's not that far away. I have lowered my sights, though. Before the season started, I had hoped to be somewhere up there in the batting race."

World Series chief target for Concepcion

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds Shortstop Dave Concepcion will miss his dream of playing in tonight's All-Star baseball game. But he's already working toward another goal—playing on a World Series winner this fall.

Although selected for the National League All-Star squad, Concepcion will miss the game while a broken ankle bone begins to heal in Christ Hospital here.

But the slick-fielding Venezuelan is confident that both he and the Reds will be in the National League playoffs and World Series later this year.

"I'm sure we will make the playoffs and I think I can be ready to play," Concepcion said Monday in a bedside interview.

To make the playoffs, the Reds need to catch the National League West leaders, the Los Angeles Dodgers. At the All-Star break, Cincinnati trails the Dodgers by five and a half games.

"I'll be in this cast for three weeks and then in another cast that I can start walking on for three more weeks," he said. "Then the doctors said it should take about a month more, so I think I can be ready to play at the end of September."

Concepcion borke his ankle sliding into third base Sunday in a game against the Montreal Expos here. The injury came as Concepcion darted from first to third on an infield out. At the time the Reds were leading 6-0, which turned out to be the final score.

Namath's objective: improve Jet offense

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Joe Namath tied for the National Football League lead in touchdown passes last season but apparently it wasn't enough. He says his No. 1 objective this year is to improve the New York Jet offense.

Namath took part in his first training workout Monday as the Jets went through two-a-day sessions in preparation for their Aug. 3 pre-season opener against the Oilers in Houston. He moved gingerly on his surgical knees, handled the ball well and had the familiar zip on his passes.

"We need to improve our offense if we're going anywhere this year," Namath said. "We had a good year offensively last season—we were way up in a lot of categories—but we weren't consistent. We need more consistency this year. We have to control the ball more, keep it away from the other team. That helps our defense, too.

"We just had too many errors last season as far as I'm concerned — fumbles, interceptions. There were the errors that everyone could see and a lot of other ones that the people watching don't see but that foul up an offense. Mental errors. That's got to be one of our keys this year—to play good mental football."

"Last year my reflexes weren't all that good," he explained. "I wasn't reacting the way I thought I should and I wasn't really as quick as I would like to be. Maybe it was the year layoff that did it but I could see things I wanted to do but I wasn't able to do them. I've been working on my reflexes a lot. I played a lot of basketball in the off-season to try to help my quickness."

Namath recently celebrated his 30th birthday and says he feels, "a little more settled but as confident as ever. I still have the same attitude—I want to win. It's great to win and it just isn't the same when you lose. Nothing seems to be right after you lose a game. In my head I feel I'm the best quarterback in the game but you still have to go out and prove it."

Namath laughed when asked about his reaching "the establishment age."

"I stopped counting the first time I walked into a bar and wasn't asked to show an I.D."

Rams release three players

Two rookies, Larry Battle, a wide receiver who had been a free agent, and Herman Christoph, a running back from Grambling College, were dropped.

Larry Shears, who was signed by the team during the off-season as a cornerback from the Atlanta Falcons was also dropped from the team.

Ex-Trojan A.D. builds new PCAA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jess Hill, who built a college sports dynasty during his 15 years as athletic director at the University of Southern California, is now quietly laying the groundwork for another sports power of the future.

Hill's new plaything is the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, a relatively new college conference that brings together some of California's secondary sports powers: Cal State Long Beach, San Diego State, Fresno State, University of Pacific, and San Jose State.

Hill should know something about excellence, having watched his Trojan teams pile up a total of 29 NCAA titles during his tenure, which ended in 1972. He then immediately went to work as the PCAA's first fulltime commissioner.

The league is living in the shadow of the Pacific Eight Conference and will inevitably compete for athletes, spectators and finances with schools like USC, UCLA and Stanford.

"It's going to take some time for us to really compete with the PAC-8," said Hill. "They have been playing major football schedules for years, while we're only in our fourth year of existence. As time goes by, my feeling is that we'll become stronger.

"You have to learn how to walk before you run and to run before you sprint and when you start sprinting you better be awfully sure you know what you're doing."

The PCAA's first move to beef up its football program was the expulsion of UC Santa Barbara and Cal State Los Angeles last February. The two schools maintained competitive teams in all sports except football, which is where the league officials felt the PCAA needed improving.

Cal State Fullerton is scheduled to join the league when the two schools leave next June 30. Another school, Idaho State, was asked to join the league but its board of trustees vetoed the plan.

"We were always in the NCAA's university division in all sports, but we weren't a major conference in football until presently," Hill said.

"Football is the dominant sport because through football income these schools are able to help finance their athletic program for a lot of other sports."

From his years at the head of one of the nation's powerhouses, Hill knows that "some schools do make money" from their athletic program, "but not a great deal."

"People say colleges are interested in making money through sports," he said. "They're really interested in financing an athletic program, to give the students the opportunity to compete in and enjoy athletic competition.

"The most important problem facing intercollegiate athletics today is the financial program. It confronts all schools—the big, medium and small.

"If one of our games draws 20,000 people and USC draws 50,000, who's going to have more money to plow back into their athletic program?"

Hill admits PCAA teams are finding it "difficult to recruit (athletes) against the major institutions," but hopes the situation will improve somewhat when a new NCAA rule limiting the number of football scholarships to each school takes effect this year.

"This will mean that some players who would have gotten scholarships at major schools before might go to other institutions," he said.

"Some of our schools now are getting the top prospects in the state," added Hill, perhaps thinking of basketball All-America Ed Ratleff of Cal State Long Beach. "Some of the boys feel they have a better chance at one of our institutions than at a school with so much more outstanding talent."

Hill strongly believes that the PCAA schools should conduct a "well-rounded athletic program" with an equal emphasis on some of the "lesser sports" such as golf, tennis, and swimming.

"Football, basketball and baseball are normally considered the major sports," he said, "but they're no more important to those athletes than the lesser sports are to the boys who participate in them."

What the league needs most of all, he admits, is some time to grow. And Jess Hill plans to be in the midst of the development of the PCAA, just as he was at USC.

"It's a real challenge and I enjoy it very much. I feel I'm too young to retire and I think I've got a number of good years left. I'm very hopeful that together we can grow."

Problems stalk N.Y. Giants

By United Press International

Two players—defensive end Larry Jacobson and wide receiver Tom Gatewood — were injured even before training camp opened. On Saturday, Bob Tucker, the No. 2 receiver in the National Football Conference last season and one of the premier tight ends in the NFL, suffered a broken hand.

And more bad news came Monday when George Hasenohrl, a promising rookie defensive tackle from Ohio State, walked out of camp.

Hasenohrl, an outstanding player in college under Woody Hayes, said he never really wanted to play pro ball but was talked into it. He reported to camp at 275 pounds, about 20 pounds overweight, was unable to complete the compulsory two-mile run and had difficulty with early practice sessions.

But he received high praise from the Giant coaching staff on Saturday for his work in a rugged drill and his departure shocked Giant Coach Alex Webster.

Tucker, meanwhile, went through practice playing one-handed Monday and caught three passes.

"The doctors say it's going to be five weeks in a cast," Tucker said. "I'm hoping it's quicker than that. I can do everything but contact work right now. It's pretty painful and I feel terrible about the whole thing. I don't even know how it happened. But I'll be ready for the regular season and that's what's important."

The only tight end remaining on the Giants' roster is veteran Gary Ballman, a $100 waiver pickup from the Philadelphia Eagles. Rod Freeman, a high draft choice out of Vanderbilt being tried at tight end, left camp last week to try out for the National Basketball Association Philadelphia 76ers. Freeman did not play college football.

Elsewhere around the camps, Joe Namath went through his first workout session with the New York Jets and said he hoped to establish "more consistency" in the offense this year. "We have to cut down our errors offensively," Namath said, "and play good mental football. This would help both our offense and defense."

Linebaker John Babinecz, a second-year player from Villanova, will be lost to the Dallas Cowboys for about three weeks with a broken hand and guard Ed Budde, a 10-year veteran with Kaasas City, walked out of the Chiefs' camp, apparently over a contract dispute.

Chiefs Coach Hank Strram said Budde and defensive tackle Ernie Calloway, obtained from Philadelphia in the off-season, would be fined each day they stay out of camp.

Baltimore continued to deal off its veterans, sending cornerback Charlie Stukes to the Minnesota Vikings for a high draft choice, and the Pittsburgh Steelers came out of a scrimmage Saturday with three injured players—wide receiver Ron Shanklin (shoulder), safety Glen Edwards groin) and offensive tackle Gerry Mullins (back). All are expeactd to return in a few days.

Veteran John Hendrson informed the Vikings he is retiring, leaving the club with only two experienced wide receivers, and a San Diego spokesman said rookie quarterback Dan Fouts of Oregon, who suffered a broken collarbone in the Coaches All America game last month, would need three more weeks before he can begin to work out with the Chargers.

Veteran running back Ken Willard, who had asked to be traded, reported to the San Francisco Forty Niners' training camp.

Connors broke Ashe's serve

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — The championship tennis match could have gone either way until unseeded Jimmy Connors broke the service of veteran Arthur Ashe in the second game of the fifth set.

Until then, it was a 2-2 match and no one knew who would win the $12,000 top prize in the U.S. Professional Tennis Championship at Longwood Cricket Club here. But after the service break, Connor, 20, of Belleville, Ill., took over and trounced Ashe, 30, of Miami, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 in a grueling three hour and 10 minute match.

"Ashe ran up to the net and hit back one of my mis-hits, said young Connors, who had never played the experienced Ashe. "It was really lucky for me. He hit it out, that broke his service, and if anything that was the turning point."

The methodical and smooth Ashe fought gallantly, rallying from a 2-1 set deficit to take the fourth set 6-3. But the energetic Connors took command in the last set and won it handily.

"I couldn't hold up under the pressure," the second-seeded Ashe said. "My concentration was pretty good but the problem I had was I was waiting for Connors to fold and he never did."

Connors, who turned pro in January said, "I just stayed in there. I was fresh all the way through and I just tried to sit down and relax between games. I went out there prepared to play five sets. I started putting too much pressure on myself in the fourth set. I had to pace myself better tonight than other nights. I lost a little concentration but I didn't get nervous."

Connors took command in the fifth set. After the service break in the second game, he won all his serves and ended the match by breaking Ashe's service without allowing a single point.

"He (Ashe) made a few more errors than I did especially in the fifth set, Connors said. "I concentrated on winning my service in the fifth.

"This is the best I have ever played in my life," the jubilant Connors said when he received his check and his trophy. "You may not believe this but nobody can continue to play like I have this week. I did everything well. I came here, like all the other players, to win."

In the final doubles match, the second-seeded team of Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C. and Eric van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., defeated Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and Ismail El Shafei of Egypt 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Hollypark ends season

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Millionaire Thoroughbred Cougar II was the last victor to prance into the winner's circle for the 1973 Hollywood Park season Monday, climaxing its Sunset Handicap triumph.

During the 76-day session which saw such champions as Susan's Girl, Convenience, Quack, Life Cycle, Amen II, Groshawk, Century's Envoy and Special Goddess in the running, attendance was up 12.8 percent over last year. A state season track attendance record was set with 2,244,667 race fans.

Cougar II finished the season as the leading money winning horse with $178,350 and the seventh leading money winning Thoroughbred of all time with earnings of $1.1 million.

Cougar II and jockey Bill Shoemaker, who rode the horse in the Sunset Handicap Monday, were double winners at the track. Shoemaker won 10 stakes, the most of any jockey for the season.

The biggest winner of the season turned out to be the state of California which pulled in a record $20,449,599 in parimutuel tax and breakage. The figure was up 14 per cent from last season.

Records were also broken for total mutuel handle, daily average mutuel handle and gross and net purse distribution to horsemen.

Colt general manager still cleaning house

Cornerback Charles Stukes, a six-year veteran who has started for the Colts since 1969, was traded Monday to the Minnesota Vikings for a high choice in the 1974 NFL draft. Stukes is expected to report to the Vikings within the next two days.

The trade of the cornerback followed by a week the dealing of defensive end Bubba Smith to the Oakland Raiders. Thomas has traded away a number of other veterans, including quarterback John Unitas, in his bid for a young Colt team.

"We have four other cornerbacks and that's what makes him expendable," a team spokesman said, explaining the trade of Stukes.

Stukes started 12 games in 1972 and led the Colts in interceptions for the second straight year with five.

Stukes played quarterback at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and also played basketball and baseball. He was sought by professional baseball scouts.

San Dimas, Chino lose

By TOM FAHEY
P-B Correspondent

POMONA — San Dimas was dealt its Waterloo by a modern-day Napolean Monday in the opening round of the Senior Division Section 7 tournament at Ralph Welch Park. San Dimas fell to Galaxie, 2-1, in an 11-inning marathon.

The Napolean that beat San Dimas was Galaxie's Napolean Sparks. Sparks scored both runs for his team, and was the winner of the contest thanks to 10-innings of brilliant pitching.

Sparks scored the first run of the game in the fourth. He was walked by San Dimas' Rick Harriman and then went to second on a wild pickoff attempt.

He went to third on a wild pitch and from there he scored on John Warren's sacrifice fly.

San Dimas sent the game into overtime when they tied the score in the bottom of the seventh. Greg Sayegh walked and Ken Normington reached base when second baseman Art Montano booted his grounder.

Sayegh reached third on a fielders choice and then scored on Bob Alexander's sacrifice fly to center.

The game remained silent untill the 11th inning, when an error started the inning off. Sparks reached base when first-baseman Kevin Pokrajac pulled his foot on the throw to first.

Valinda scored both of its runs in the second inning. Mike Kelso singled and Larry Cervantez was safe on an error by the first-basemen Gene Campbell, Kelso then scored from third on a fielder's choice by Ron Quintana. Cervantez later scored on a wild pitch.

San Dimas will meet Chino Hills today in the second round of the double elimination tournament. The game will be played at Ralph Welch Park at 5:30 p.m.

Valley Connie Mack teams bite the dust

LOS ANGELES — Only one local Connie Mack squad remains in contention for the state tournament after Monday's play in the district playoffs at Cal State Los Angeles.

Walnut was eliminated from the tourney after suffering its second loss, 6-3, to Hemet. Walnut lost the first game it played Saturday to Hawthorne, 4-1.

Claremont, meanwhile, was charged with its first loss of the playoffs, as Norwalk topped the Cardinals, 4-0.

The Cardinals ran themselves out of a potentially big inning in the first. Gary Bach singled to lead the inning off, and was caught stealing. Todd Ervin was aboard on an error, but suffered the same fate as Bach. John Beckwith doubled, but was caught rounding second too wide.

Bach got two hits in his three trips to the plate.

Claremont Pony wins to continue comeback

RIALTO — Claremont Pony League has a shot at the District 34 title, if it can pull off a doubleheader victory over host Rialto tonight.

Claremont reached the finals of the double elimination tourney by routing Cucamonga, 8-0, Monday evening.

Claremont broke the game open with a four-run third inning. Claremont picked up six hits, including a two-run home run by Jeff Johnson and a double by Mike Davis. Davis had doubled in the second and scored on a wild pitch.

Tonight's first game will start at 6 p.m. Should Claremont win and force a second game, the nightcap will begin 15 minutes after the last out of the first game.

After the opening 4-1 loss to Cucamonga, Claremont has bounced back to win three consecutive games over Upland, 11-1; Colton, 5-4; and Cucamonga.

L.V. settles for split at Riverside

Post 330 lost its second game in a row in the opener, 4-2.

Vallone started the second game and went five innings, striking out nine. Harold Drake started the sixth, and picked up the victory, while striking out four.

Drake hit the ball that was thrown away to allow Vallone to score the winning run.

Marty Schroedter had walked and been sacrificed to second but was thrown out trying to score on Vallone's base hit.

Jim Richards had two hits in the loss.

Post 330 winds up the regular season with an overall record of 30-14.

Chino enjoys 19-2 victory

CHINO —Chino Western Appliance and TV kept its first-place hopes alive in the Tri-Star semipro baseball league Saturday night with a 19-2 shellacking of the Hawaiian Garden Aztecs.

The game was called after Chino Western exceeded the 15-run lead limit, which automatically ends gams under league rules with the team leading declared the winner.

Phil Carlo came up with two hits good for four runs batted in for Chino. Ken Bajema had two hits including a triple for three RBIS. Roy Nursement duplicated Benjamin's plate performance with three more RBI.

The win gives Chino Western a 6-2 record in league play, and snaps a two-game losing streak.

Chino will host the Pomona Patriots Sunday at 11 a.m. at Chino High.

Third skating title for Robin Miller, left, Jim Bray?

Skaters go for national title again

MONTCLAIR — Jim Bray of Ontario and Robin Miller of Claremont will try for their third national elementary pairs roller skating crown next month at the National Skating Championships in Lincoln, Neb.

If they succeed they will be the first team ever to win the national crown three times.

Both are 11 years old and will join a dozen other valley youngsters in the national competition. All are coached by Tom Panno, owner and teacher of the Holiday Roller Rink here.

The youngsters qualified for the national meet early this month at the Pacific Coast Regional Roller Skating Championships at Bakersfield. The local contingent won seven first, seven seconds and three third places in the regional competition, earning the team the high point award in the meet.

Qualifying for the national meet were Scott Sardahl, David Scott, Heidi Tyson, Rene Menegay, Kathalene Ford, Scott Sackin, Virginia Brown, Allen Tilton, Robert Watson, Pam Stewart, and Jim Sallenbach.

Good showings in the nationals would be a stepping stone towards the Pan American Games next year and the Olympics in 1976.

First youth track meet set at MSAC

WALNUT — It's harder than ever now to get something for nothing in sports. The first annual summer youth track meet, to be held at Mt. San Antonio College this Saturday, is one exception.

The meet, open to all kids, age 17 and under, is completely free of charge. There will be no entry fees or entry requirements, according to meet manager Ernie Gregoire.

The place is MSAC's outstanding track and field facility. The meet is co-sponsored by Gregoire's Southern California Track Club, The Pomona JayCees and the MSAC Community Services Department.

The actual competition will start at 10 a.m. and last until approximately 3 p.m. There will also be free instruction in track and field fundamentals offered in min-clinics to be held from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Competition in the meet will be in age-group brackets for both boys and girls. Awards will be given for first through fifth place in each event and age-group.

"This is strictly a fun-type meet," says Gregoire. "We want to provide an opportunity for kids to compete against each other in their own age-group. We hope to have kids from summer recreation programs come out and join us. There will be no entry or affiliation requirements."

The meet is being made possible through donations from the Pomona JayCees and the Pomona Police Officers' Association. Manpower at the meet is being provided by the JayCees.

More information on the meet can be obtained by calling Gregoire at 595-2211, ext. 353.

Sports news in brief

IF YOU SENT IN YOUR ALL-STAR BALLOT and didn't vote for Bobby Bonds, Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson says you blew it. The National League skipper says Bonds will be his first substitute. The San Francisco star is hitting .305 with 25 homers and 64 RBIs despite being the Giants' leadoff hitter.

FULLBACK KEN WILLARD, admitting he was late to the San Francisco 49er camp because he figured he would be traded, has rejoined the club and promised to do his best.

DAN FOUTS, the University of Oregon quarterback who was a third round choice of the San Diego Chargers, has ended a brief holdout to join the team at Irvine.

THE HOUSTON OPEN this year failed to attract the established 'big' names and lost money and may be cancelled in 1974, the president of the Houston Golf Association said Monday.

HARMON KILLEBREW, who ranks fourth on the all-time career home run list, underwent "very successful" surgery Monday to repair a torn medial cartilage in his knee and hopes to return to the Minnesota Twins' lineup in six weeks.

JOHNNY LIPON submitted his resignation Monday as manager of the Toledo Mud Hens of the International League "because he was unable to motivate the club any more". Pitching coach Cot Deal will handle the club the rest of the season.

ALTHEA GIBSON, winner of both the United States Amateur and Wimbledon championships in 1957 and 1958, said she would like to play in the mixed doubles of this year's U.S. Open at Forest Hills in partnership with Arhtur Ashe.

HOUSTON OILERS' coach Bill Peterson says he's "extremely excited" about the work quarterback Edd Hargett is doing for the team in summer camp. Hargett is a former Texas A&M standout.

Claremont netter makes eastern tourney semis

CLAREMONT — Alan Zetterberg, former No. 1 player on the Pomona College tennis teams of the late 1960s, made it to the semifinals of the Metropolitan Tennis Championships at Newport, R. I., last weekend.

Zetterberg, who also starred at Claremont High as a tennis player, now lives in Boston and has been involved in Boston Legal Aid work for two years.

Zetterberg recently advanced to the semifinals of the Massachusetts Open and the quarterfinals of the New Hampshire Hardcourt Tournament at Quincy, Mass.

His entry into the eastern tournaments was the first competitive tennis he has played since graduating from Pomona College in 1968.

Montclair girls now 6-1

UPLAND — Montclair Golden Girls continued playing successful softball Monday night, as the Major division claimed its sixth victory in seven starts, 8-7 over Corona.

The Montclair Minors, however, are still seeking to go above the .500 level after losing 4-3.

Kathy LaVallee singled in Patricia Neal with what wound up to be the winning run in the top of the seventh. Corona staged a five-run comeback in the bottom of the inning.

LaVallee was credited with the victory on the mound.

The Minors' record in the Inter-City Round Robin tournament stands at 3-4 after Monday. They were stymied by the pitching of Corona's Jeanette Ljaarda.

Both teams will be in action again tonight against Upland at Kingsley Park. The Minors play at six, while the Majors take the field at eight.

LOS ALAMITOS — Charger Bar, twice a world champion but a rumored "over the hill" mare earlier this year, was on the brink of pastured retirement, a casual life on a grassy knoll, little foals who would grow up and be world champions, oats in a silver platter, that type of thing.

But then Los Alamitos Race Course racing secretary Donald "Curly" Smith suggested a new stakes race to track president Frank Vessels. It was to be called the Winner Take All Invitational.

The track would put up $50,000. Owners of world champions in all nine categories—gelding, mare, older mare, etc.—would be invited to bring their horses to Los Alamitos for the one race. If the champion 3-year-old gelding wasn't coming, the second horse would be invited.

There was one catch. Winner Take All meant just that. Not a cent for second place.

So there was Charger Bar, owned by Dr. Ed Allred and Kenneth Wright, taking it easy after finishing fourth and then a dismal eighth in her last two races—back in late January and early February.

The idea of a Winner Take All intrigued the owners. Trainer Wayne Charlton started to work. But a month of the summer season went by and still Charger Bar, a horse who had won $226,172 in only 24 career starts, still hadn't arrived at Los Alamitos.

Then, on July 10, Charger Bar made an official appearance—an 18.3 workout.

Her first race was to be the $10,000 Chicado V. Stakes, a 400-yard allowance in which she'd be going against such horses as $93,600 Derby winner Al Due, another former world champion in Kaweah Bar, and two-for-two stakes winner Flight 109, along with such stakes stars as Ruby Khan, Plunder Bay and Native Empress.

James Dreyer, who rode her to such wins as the $100,000 Los Alamitos Championship, $90,000 Derby and $50,000 Go Man in 1971 and the $81,350 Maturity in '72, felt that the Chacado V. would determine whether she'd be entered in the Winner Take All.

Joe Mullaney leaves Colonels, joins Stars

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Joe Mullaney, who guided the Kentucky Colonels to two American Basketball Association playoffs in two seasons and also an impressive 68-16 record for one year, today was named coach of the ABA's Utah Stars.

He succeeds Ladell Anderson who resigned at the end of the 1972-73 season to become athletic director at Utah State University.

Utah Stars owner Bill Daniels and club president Vince Boryla presented Mullaney to the Utah fans in a surprise unveiling today by riding with the new coach on the back seat of a convertible in the annual Days of '47 Parade through downtown Salt Lake City.

Just prior to the start of the parade, Boryla said, "We're absolutely delighted to have Joe Mullaney as the new Stars' coach. He's a super coach and one hell of a guy. We have the best coach available; our kind of man."

In his first season with Kentucky in 1971-72, Mullaney won more games (68) than any man in ABA history. In the process he experienced fewer defeats (16) and had the best winning percentage (.805) in league history.

Last year the Colonels slipped slightly to 56-28, finishing second to Carolina in the Eastern Division regular season race. But they won the ABA Eastern Division playoffs for the second straight year, only to lose to defending champion Indiana in the ABA championship playoffs.

Mullaney is the Stars' third coach in four years. And for Mullaney, it will be his third professional team in five years. Prior to his two years with the Colonels, he spent two seasons as head coach of the Los Angeles Lakers of the rival NBA.

Napoles will defend title

TORONTO (UPI) — A world welterweight championship bout between current title holder Jose Napoles of Mexico and Canadian Clyde Gray has been "basically all settled" for Maple Leaf Gardens in September, Gray's manager said Monday.

Irving Ungerman said a "few things remain to be finalized" before the official signing for the bout, expected before the end of the week.

Ryan's boss is predicting third 'gem'

By JIM COUR
UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bobby Winkles, the peppery rookie manager of the California Angels, is pulling harder than anyone for Nolan Ryan's bid for baseball immortality.

The flame-throwing righthander from Alvin, Tex., is one of five pitchers ever to record two no-hitters in one year. And two months of this season remain.

"I definitely think Nolan will pitch at least one more no-hitter before his career is through," said Winkles, "but a no-hitter is an unpredictable thing. Nobody can predict he's going to get a third one this season."

Ryan's third no-hitter—if it comes—will be easier than the first two, according to the California skipper.

"After a man throws that first one," declared Winkles, "he's more relaxed. There's still a heckuva lot of pressure on the man and the element of luck still plays a big part but it definitely is easier.

"Take Nolan's second no-hitter this year. There was less luck involved in that one than the first one."

Ryan's first no-hit job came at Kansas City May 15 and he duplicated that effort at Detroit July 15. In his last start before Tuesday's All-Star game, he went seven innings before giving up a hit to Baltimore last Thursday night.

Winkles is dismayed at the 26-year-old fireballer's 11-12 record.

"Nolan pitches in some kind of tough luck," he said, shaking his head from side to side. "He goes until the eighth inning against the Orioles last week with a no-hitter and has a tie and then winds up losing the game.

"In four of his losses, we get shut out. You take those five games and put them in the win column and he's 16-7. That's not too bad, is it?"

On the rare occasions this season when opposing batters have been able to solve Ryan's stuff, the problem has been his control, Winkles said.

"He's had problems," the manager explained, "when he hasn't been able to get his curve ball over. Then they can wait on his fastball. He has so much stuff that he's able to get by basically with those two pitches.

"Anybody who throws as hard as Nolan has the potential for a no-hitter but he must have good rhythm like any other pitcher in the big leagues. Good rhythm is the key to success."

Since being acquired by the Angels in a trade with the New York Mets for Jim Fregosi, Ryan has been general manager Harry Dalton's big drawing card at Anaheim Stadium. He was the major league strikeout king in 1972 and is on his way to that title again in his second season with California.

Still, his record as an Angel is only 30-28.

"It's a funny record all right," said Winkles, "but this man is the type of guy who can win you eight games in a row because he throws so hard."

Sunday racing scheduled for Del Mar through Sept.

DEL MAR — Racing returns to Del Mar Wednesday and operators of the Del Mar Thoroughbred Club are anticipating another record-breaking meeting as Sunday racing is added to the many attractions that make the seaside course popular with both racegoers and horsemen alike.

With Sunday racing to be presented each week during the 34th season that ends Wednesday, Sept. 12, the "dark day" will be Tuesday. First post time Wednesday through Monday will be 2 p.m.

Since 1970, when the Del Mar Thoroughbred Club assumed control of the track, tremendously increased business — 37.2 per cent in attendance and 43.4 per cent in wagering — has contributed to and reflected continuing efforts to make the Del Mark meeting the most eagerly-awaited racing season in California.

Net purse distribution that averaged more than $64,000 daily in 1972 placed Del Mar ninth on the national list in that category according to figures released this year, and that ranknig is considered especially remarkable in view of the fact that Del Mar was 20th in daily average purse distribution in 1969.

More than $3 million in purses will be offered during the 43-day 1973 meeting, with the richest stakes schedule in the track's history including seven added-money events on Sundays topped by the $100,000 Del Mar Invitational at a mile and three-eights on the turf.

Extensive improvements in the race track grounds have greeted Del Mar patrons for the past two seasons, and the improvement program has continued through 1973.

Additional beautification of the infield, expansion of betting facilities in the plaza area near the main grandstand entrance, installation of closed-circuit color television for watching the races live and on instant replay and a revamping of the paddock-walking ring area are the most important of the changes that will be in evidence when the season opens.

Many of the toop Thoroughbreds in the West will swing into action during opening week when stakes events will highlight four of the first five programs.

Topping the opening day schedule is the $20,000 added Palomar Handicap, a turf race for fillies and mares. Leading the roster of candidates for the seven and one-half furlong contest are sophomore star Bell Marie and Impressive Style, the speedy filly who won the 1970 Del Mar Debutante.

Two-year-olds will meet Friday in the Graduation Stakes, the Oceanside Handicap will bring out three-year-old sprinters Saturday, and the first Sunday racing program in Del Mar history will be highlighted by the San Diego Handicap, and mile and one-sixteenth contest for three-year-olds and up.

The San Diego Handicap is the first in a series of races leading up to the $100,000 Del Mar Invitational Handicap Sept. 9. Completing a trio of rich races on the stakes schedule is the $75,000 Del Mar Debutante, a six furlong encounter for two-year-old fillies, and the $100,000 Del Mar Futurity at seven and one-half furlongs on the turf for two-year-olds of either sex.

WARNING
Adds Sec. 976 and 977 to the 1964 Civil Rights Law

prohibits with certain exceptions, discrimination because of sex. Since some occupations are considered more attractive to persons of one sex or the other advertisements are placed under the Male or Female columns for the convenience of readers. Such listings are not intended to exclude persons of either sex.
This newspaper strives to protect its readers against fraud, deception or injustices. Advertisements which require cash bonds or investments in stocks, samples, equipment should be investigated thoroughly. All advertising statements must be accurate. All ads pertaining to sales must carry the word sales and must relate some nature of work involved and not designed to mislead the reader. Any ad requiring a tuition for study courses is not considered a help wanted ad and should be in classification 6 "Educational."

NO HELP WANTED AD CAN STIPULATE OR INFER A DEFINITE AMOUNT WHEN starting pay is commission basis. Report any exception to this rule to Classified Advertising Manager. NA 2-1201

The Progress-Bulletin reserves the right to reject or re-edit any advertisement for the protection of the advertiser and reader.

Chappaquiddick will remain Kennedy's political albatross

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said recently that he will announce after next year's mid-term elections whether he will seek the presidency in 1976. Sen. Barry M. Goldwater promptly underscored the dilemma facing Kennedy and his party.

The Arizona Republican, who went around the presidential track in 1964 only to be outdistanced massively by Lyndon Johnson, said the nation could do without Kennedy's moralizing about Watergate "when all the facts involving the Chappaquiddick tragedy" still are not known.

Goldwater referred, of course, to the death of Mary Jo Kopechne who drowned in July, 1969, when a car driven by Kennedy went off a bridge at Chappaquiddick Island off Cape Cod, Massachusetts. If his decision is to run, Kennedy must find some way to deal with the incident.

Otherwise, he would be tossing away what many in both parties see as a major Democratic advantage in 1976 —the public suspicions and misgivings aroused by the bugging of the Democratic National committee and the alleged cover-up by high White House aides.

Kennedy unquestionably is his party's most attractive potential nominee at this point. A recent Lou Harris poll gave Kennedy a lead of 50 to 42 per cent when matched against Spiro Agnew and a lead of 49 to 45 per cent against Republican convert John B. Connally.

Even so, some Republicans say privately they would welcome a Kennedy nomination because Chappaquiddick would offer them the best chance to offset Watergate. In support, they cite brisk sales at the recent Young Republicans convention in Atlanta of bumper stickers reading "No One Drowned at Watergate."

Goldwater, who leveled his blast at Kennedy at the Atlanta meeting, conceded the Republicans had been damaged by Watergate and that they faced a big job in regaining public confidence. But he also said:

"One does not have to excuse or condone any of the stupid illegalities of the Watergate affair to suggest that Senator Kennedy is the last person in the country to lecture us on such matter."

What upset Goldwater was a speech Kennedy made when he appeared July 4 at a rally in Decatur, Ala., honoring Gov. George C. Wallace.

He said the Massachusetts senator "constituted himself as both judge and jury in the Watergate affair."

Chappaquiddick has been a political albatross for Kennedy. Bruce Biossat, a highly respected political reporter and analyst who does his homework, checked out New York Democratic leaders about the time Kennedy was appearing in Alabama.

Biossat quoted one source saying that to the extent people are speculating on the party's 1976 nominee, Kennedy is leading but they are looking for somebody else.

"No deep new quest is required to search out the reason," Biossat wrote. "It's Chappaquiddick. And anyone probing Democratic governors at the June national conference in Lake Tahoe could quickly discover that this is a national appraisal."

However, the question confronting the Democrats is: If not Kennedy, who?

Kennedy said it was in fairness to other potential Democratic candidates that he had decided to spell out on his own plans after the 1974 elections. He probably will make the announcement at a news conference as did his brothers John and Robert.

If he decides to run, one of the first questions almost has to be: "What affect do you think Chappaquiddick will have on your candidacy?"

She clinched the decision

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — Mrs. Arjean Chambers, 38, being held on a charge of attacking her husband with a knife, was ordered released on her own recognizance recently. But she told the judge she wanted to stay in jail.

Jailers said that when she was returned to a holding cell, she piled up furniture, a mattress and a blanket and set fire to them, sending smoke billowing through the courthouse and causing the evacuation of several courtrooms. Damage was estimated at $800.

Fire alarm reveals many stolen items

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Firemen answering an alarm at the home of Morton Zisman, 41, found a fire alarm box, a fire hydrant, several street marker cones and city street signs, police said.

Zisman was charged with receiving stolen goods.

Pilot who refused to fly sent back to his home base

BANGKOK (UPI) — A B52 bomber pilot charged with disobeying an order to fly a mission over Cambodia has been sent back to his home base in the United States, U.S. Air Force sources said today.

The sources said Capt. Donald Dawson, 26, of Danbury, Conn., had left U Tapao air base south of Bangkok in the past few days under orders to report to his permanent station at Westover Air Force Base, Mass.

Air Force spokesmen said Dawson had left Thailand, but said they did not know his destination. They said investigation was continuing to determine if Dawson should go before a court martial.

Dawson, a 1969 Air Force Academy graduate, refused to fly a bombing mission on June 21 and said later he opposed the bombing in Cambodia on moral grounds and that the destructive force of B52s was not necessary in the Cambodian fighting.

A co-pilot on his third tour of duty, Dawson applied for a discharge from the Air Force and sought conscientious objector status shortly before the June 21 order.

Our Challenge Pays Off in Southern California!

DODGE SALES SET RECORD AFTER RECORD

This year, we Dodge Dealers are selling more Dodge cars and Dodge trucks than ever before. Our brand is very hot. Dodge car and truck sales are 28.8% higher in the Los Angeles region than last year (and we haven't stopped dealing, yet!)

SAN BERNARDINO/ RIVERSIDE COUNTY GOOD GUYS

and we're Dealing for More

THE HOT VAN!

NOW CALIFORNIA'S No.1 AMERICAN VAN

Southern California is America's hot spot for vans. Buyers know what they want—and most times, it's a Dodge Strong Box Van (instead of some other American made unit). Why Dodge? More models. We're the only Dealers with Maxivan, the largest compact van built in this country. We also offer shorter vans, on 109" and 127" wheelbases. We're the only van with Electronic Ignition, standard. You also get front disc brakes, independent front suspension, and lots of other goodies, too. But the biggest factor in making Dodge the HOT BRAND VAN is the kind of deal your nearby Dodge Dealer can give you. You might say we outsell the others in Southern California because we always try to give you a better deal. Check out a Dodge Tradesman Van now.

CHARGER

SETS RECORDS AS IT SETS STYLE

No mistaking the look of our "Great Shape"—Charger. When you pull up in a gleaming, low-slung Charger, people know you've arrived. But Charger's beauty goes beyond its great looks to great engineering. You get the Electronic Ignition System. It has no points or condenser to wear out or get wet. Charger gives you front disc brakes, standard. And, while they look much alike, there are actually five great Charger models in the line—from low-priced Charger Coupe to the elegant Charger SE. Here in Southern California, we Dodge Dealers are selling more new Chargers than ever. That's because we try to give you the best deal possible. We back it with dependable service—so that you'll always drive out smiling, because you're happy with the way we treated you. Price out a new Charger now.

HOT ITEM!

DODGE CLUB CAB PICKUP

We'll be first to agree: "exclusive" is a pretty tired word in advertising. But in the case of our Dodge Club Cab pickup, "exclusive" is the best way we can describe a truck that none of our competitors has! You see, nobody else has a cab with 34 extra cubic feet of inside storage space. Your valuable tools, sporting gear, hunting dogs, even groceries (at current prices) are safe and out of the weather—under lock and key. (You can even get two optional flip-down seats in the back.) Our Club Cab pickup also features front disc brakes and the Electronic Ignition System. To round out our great Dodge pickup line we also have the regular Dodge cab as well as the larger, 6-man Crew Cab pickups. No matter which one you need—you can be sure you're getting the kind of a deal that made our brand of pickup "hot"!

SMALLER DODGES— BIGGER SALES

This year, over half the Dodge cars we sell are Darts. People are just plain astounded over the amount of room inside the car and its trunk! People like the way we deal on our 1973 Dart models, too. When the car is right and the price is right—little wonder we sell so many! Right now, we can show you 7 different Dart models: two hardtops, two 4-door sedans, the Dart Sport, Sport 340, and the Sport "Convertriple" (our famous 3-in-1 compact car). To date, over 1,800,000 Dodge Darts have been sold. It's always been a fine car and a terrific value. This year, we've added Electronic Ignition, standard—making it even a better buy. No matter what size of car you're shopping for, drive a Dodge Dart now. Check our deals, our fine choice of options, colors and models. You'll see why our brand of compact is mighty "hot" this year!

Plan for full security Camp Rockey hit

SAN DIMAS — Los Angeles County's proposal to turn Camp Glenn Rockey in the San Dimas foothills into a full security boys' camp came under the fire of city councilmen concerned with fire prevention Monday night.

Councilman D. F. Hooper said that the conversion of the camp, which is run by the county probation department, from minimum security to full security would preclude future use of the camp members on fire fighting lines and would end the brush clearing and fire prevention activities currently carried on by camp members.

The central issue of the controversy is a proposed 14-foot wall around the camp. Construction of the wall would elevate the camp to full security status and thereby change the type of youths to be housed there.

According to Hooper, the foothill communities need the fire protection services now available through the work of the camp members. He suggested that if the county goes through with its plans to convert Glenn Rockey into a full security camp, that the county also establish a new facility in the area with fire prevention responsibilities.

The subject of the camp's security came before the council with the receipt of a letter from County Supervisor Peter Schabarum asking the council to reconsider its previous position opposing the construction of the wall around Glenn Rockey.

In addition to Hooper's statements, Councilman Keith Brogan also reiterated his position opposing the camp's conversion. No official council action was taken.

In other action, the council:

—Heard a report concerning the erection of new electrical towers for the high tension power lines that run along the northern portion of the city. According to the latest information, the only detrimental effects to be felt by the city will be the possible closing several holes on the city golf course for several days while the new towers are erected. No date for work on the new towers, which will double the lines' capacity, has been set.

—Approved tentative tract for the development of 154 condiminium units on 21 acres on the south side of Cypress Street at Lone Hill Avenue. Next step for the development will be the submission of construction plans.

Potential juror interviews go on

ONTARIO — Interviews of potential jurors, secluded from each other, for the murder trail of three California Institution for Men inmates accused of killing a fellow inmate and wounding another on Dec. 17, 1972, continued this morning in West Valley Superior Court.

The three defendants: Juan Figueroa Colon, 29; Raymond Ledesam Contreras, 35; and Frank Phillip Mendoza, 28; are accused of killing inmate Rudolph A. Cadena, 29, and wounding inmate Gilbert R. Sandoval in a fight at CIM's Southern Reception Guidance Center.

Cadena was stabbed more than 50 times by his assailants. Sandoval was stabbed numerous times as well. Both men were then shoved or thrown over a steel railing, falling to a cement floor two stories below.

Since last week the attorneys for the defendants and Deputy Dist. Atty. Kenneth Kloepfer have been questioning potential juror. After the initial inquiry into the jurors' backgrounds by Judge James Cunningham, each juror individually, out of the presence of the the other jurors, was asked persoanl questions. The questions apparently were designed to determine if there were any prejudice because of past experiences toward the prisoners, attorneys or the law.

The defense attorneys jointly have numerous peremptory challenges they may use to dismiss any juror for cause. A number have already been dismissed for various reasons.

Meanwhile the defendants have been placed under tight security by the West End sheriff's office for undisclosed reasons.

Youth's nose broken by group in car

POMONA — A youth's nose was broken in what he said was an unprovoked attack late Monday night in the 700 block of S. San Antonio Avenue.

The victim, Bryan T. Parker, 16, said he was walking when a carload of youths stopped, grabbed him and he was beaten, knocked down and kicked. He said he had never seen the youths before and knew of no reason for the attack.

Parker said his principal attacker was white, about 17, 5 feet 9, and weighed 170 pounds. He had brown hair, wore a brown jacket, yellow-and-maroon shirt, dark trousers and shoes with 2-inch heels.

The victim was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

'Friends' of college name slate

CLAREMONT — New officers of the Friends of the Claremont Colleges are Robert P. Hastings, president; Charles F. Horne Jr., and H. Safford Nye, vice presidents; and H. Russell Smith, secretary. Ralph V. Arnold continues as treasurer and Elsie R. Schlick as executive secretary.

A partner in the Los Angeles law firm of Paul, Hastings, Janofsky and Walker, Hastings is first vice chairman of the board of Harvey Mudd College and a trustee of Friends of the Huntington Library, the Civic Light Opera Association and the Music Center Operating Co.

Man accused in stabbing of wife, 26

Robert Alan Edwards, 28, a stock clerk, was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder after his wife, Joyce Ann Edwards, 26, was found lying in the bathroom of the home, stabbed several times. She later was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Edwards was treated there for a cut forearm.

Police said Mrs. Edwards was preparing to leave on vacation when she was attacked with a 6-inch kitchen knife. The couple had been separated about three months, officers said.

Artist makes

Jewelry with taste

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Kushner, an artist who invented edible clothes, is out now with munchable jewelry.

He says you can make string bean earrings, scallion headpieces or cocktail onion-mushroom-and-olive necklaces. You need needle and thread and the food.

"Fresh looks best," Kushner said. "You can wash it off after wearing and eat it. You spray with water to keep the jewelry from wilting."

The artist is well-known for creating events and performances, using natural and found materials, this edible fashion shows—were, happenings — first took place in California and New York a spell back. They featured hot dog aprons, Velveeta epaulets, a scallion dress and a string bean cummerbund.

Kushner was interviewed at a rehearsal for a happening he's staging next week at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts of the American Crafts Council. The week-long event in New York is part of a make-it, wear-it, share-it craft summer program supported by the National Endowment for the Arts.

The flower and vegetable week will center on the art of making mouth-watering and creative jewelry and-or complete costumes from vegetables and flowers.

Produce will be kept fresh in a portable green house installed in the museum. Yarn, needles, thread and cutting utensils also will be on hand. Visitors will sit down and make edible wearables.

Those inclined this way are asked to bring raw materials— carrots, green onion, peppers, cucumbers, celery, cabbage, zucchini, mums, marigolds, dried macaroni, lemon orange and grapefruit peels, pretzels.

Pretzels? They make wonderful belts and vests.

"These materials are not only fun to work with, but are delicious," Kushner said. "The pleasure of eating your own creations is an important part of the total experience."

Kushner made a neckpiece of cheese and salami slices while I watched him rehearse. It looked as though he was making salads and cold plates. Snipping, stripping, arranging.

"Wearable edibles are an interesting idea," he said. "To me they highlight the tension between clothing and food."

"You mean," I asked him, "the kind of tension that happens when you eat too much and your clothes get tight?"

"Not at all," he said "It's the way wearable edibles change one's perception of food. It's fun to shop for food in terms of what you will wear."

He cut a red cabbage in two, strung a lot of scallions—green onions—between the halves. Presto—a fresh headpiece worn this way: the cabbage halves are like earmuffs holding the onions on across the cranium.

He also made a zucchini necktie (cut it long and used a slice out of the middle about one-quarter inch thick). This was suspended from a necklace fashioned of slices of carriots, cucumbers, green beans. He made a tie pin of carrot. Only it wasn't pinned on. It was stitched on.

A second headpiece was pretty, interesting and maybe suitable for a wedding in a garden or woods. It was made of scallions or green onions, the tops cascading down the sides like a mini-veil. Petunias and button marigolds were laced into the crown.

Also dangling were string bean earrings and another pair made of peanuts in their shells and Cheese Doodles. A peanut, a doodle, a peanut, a Doodle— until you have the length you want. The dried food jewelry keeps best.

Kushner lives in the New York artists' community Soho. He is a graduate of the University of California at San Diego.

He says carrot tops make a nice choker. Outer leaves of cabbages, often discarded by stores, make fine, tough vests. Onion peels can be turned into a hat with an interesting aroma.

"The possibilities of fashioning an esthetic as well as a gustatory experience are endless," Kushner said.

He does not make his living at art For that, he manages a Soho restaurant.

He has not been seen making clothes or jewelry out of the restaurant's leftovers. Not yet.

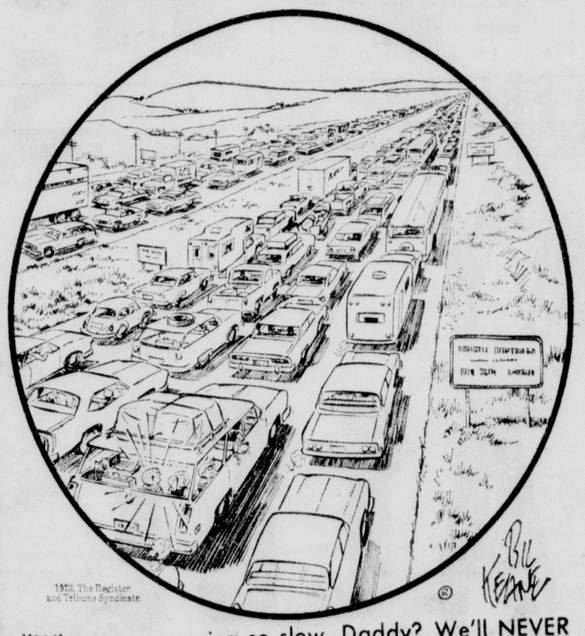
THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"Why are you going so slow, Daddy? We'll NEVER get there."

Ask Dr. Brothers

Likes older man

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Dear Dr. Brothers: My husband and I are very upset because our daughter is engaged to a man 20 years older than she is. We're both sure this will end in divorce and because of our religion, this means even more problems and tragedy. My husband is determined to break up this relationship but it only results in terrible fights between my daughter and him. This hurts me as they were always very close. My daughter adored her father all her life and now she treats him as if he were an old fool. I just don't understand how this could happen when we've been such a close family.

Fortunately, my daughter can still talk to me and I know it's important to keep it this way, otherwise there will be nothing left. She keeps telling me what a nice, good man this is, but I know that he'll be an old man when she's still young. I can't stand to see her robbing herself of half of her life. What about later? I ask her, but she won't answer.—S.D.

Dear S.D.: Today people, especially the young, think much more of the moment, the present, than they do of the future. This is one reason people of all ages feel freer to explore new ways of living. They refuse to be bound by old ideas, old prejudices and rigid life styles. This way of thinking is not necessarily bad. For instance, your daughter's fiance may meet many of her needs. She may see in him qualities she admired in her father.

You and your husband are jumping to quick conclusions by assuming that this marriage is automatically going to be "tragic" just because there is an age difference of 20 years. If your daughter and this man share common interests, if they respect each other and fulfill each other's needs, she may have a rewarding relationship that will be as stable, or even more stable, than a marriage to a man her own age.

There are risks, naturally, when there is a marked age difference, but there may be compensating factors you are unaware of. According to Dr. John Cuber, the ability to even contemplate an unconventional marriage, such as a marriage to a man 20 years older, requires an unusual amount of selfconfidence and a kind of inner resolve and strength.

Since your daughter is going against tradition in terms of friends her own age, she is demonstrating independence and an ability to make decisions on her own. Many older men give women a kind of instant status, and some women need an older man who is emotionally mature and secure within himself.

It used to be that health was a tremendously important factor when there was a great difference in a couple's ages, but now this is much less significant. Neither men nor women age as rapidly as in the past and many an individual in his or her 80s is still extremely active. None of us can be absolutely certain that we will not suddenly become disabled and age is not always a factor.

The main point is that even if the odds were stacked all the way against this marriage, there is little that you or your husband could do about it. You cannot live your daughter's life and by trying to do so, by interfering, you will only alienate her and destroy what you have built up over the years. There is even some indication that parents who try to break up their children's personal relationships actually only make those relationships look more appealing, and attractive.

Sometimes a 'sucker list' is high class

By PAUL R. ALLERUP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Did you ever get the feeling you've suddenly landed on "a list"? (Discretion forbears use of the term "sucker list").

Such a feeling grips me.

My mail has taken a most surprising turn in recent days. Surprising because whatever list I've landed on, someone seems to think I'm either loaded or soft in the head.

It started with an "invitation" to inspect a private two-jet airplane, just the thing for the busy executive who can't be bothered riding the airlines.

That could happen to anyone, one supposes. But then arrived still another invitation, this one to join "a select new community" in Florida where a home was waiting for me for as little as $94,500, or up to $195,000 if I needed a bit more room.

In a matter of days I was offered other homes in various places around the country, all of them seemingly in the $80,000-$200,000 category. One letter also spoke of a little chalet in Switzerland that could be mine for "about" $250,000.

My most distinguished mailed invitation — these things all seemed to be "invitations" — came from His Grace, The Duke of Leinster, in Sussex, England. He wanted to sell me title to 25 square feet in Anderita Park in Sussex, where Julius Caesar fought and William the Conqueror landed, for $675. Just think, wrote His Grace: "Julius Caesar. William the Conqueror. And You."

Then there have been the letters from brokers starting, "If you have $50,000 or more to invest...."

Flight from Lithuania stirs hassle

HELSINKI (UPI) — A freighter picked up Viktor Schneider as he rowed across the gulf of Finland — and touched off a diplomatic hassle involving the United States and three other countries.

Schneider, 25, was rowing across the Gulf of Finland when a Finnish freighter picked him up last week. He said he was a Lithuanian whose parents were German and he was going to West Germany to ask for asylum.

But, Finland said it wants to return him to the Soviet Union as required under an agreement with Moscow. The Soviet Union says it wants him. West Germany says he possibly is, as he alleges, a German citizen. The United States is appealing on humanitarian grounds for his release.

The foreign ministry said Monday he wants West German ambassador Detley Scheel to present written proof that Schneider is entitled to German citizenship.

Schneider flagged down the freighter because, he said, he thought it was West German. The freighter's skipper took him to Helsinki—and the police, who said he must go back to the Soviet Union.

Schneider carried no passport or identification papers and did not ask Finland for asylum. Under consular agreements with the Soviet Union, Finland is obliged to return Soviet citizens in such cases.

However, a West German embassy spokesman said that under German law anyone who is a direct descendent of a German father is a German citizen no matter where he was born. Schneider's parents lived and died in the Soviet Union, he said, but their family on the father's side may have been German.

The embassy said it could not be sure of its facts unless allowed to question Schneider. The Finns refused.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said Monday that the embassy appealed to Finland on humanitarian grounds to release Schneider.

The affair embarrassed many Finns who believe they must honor the agreement with the Soviet Union, but also are aware the affair again makes Finland seem under the Russian sphere of influence.

Protests put Khadafy back in charge

CAIRO (UPI) — Col. Moammar Khadafy withdrew his resignation as chairman of the ruling Libyan military junta Monday after 12 days, saying he was doing so under public pressure.

Tens of thousands of Libyans had shouted for his return in rallies all over the oil-rich country.

But Khadafy warned he might again resign if and when he realizes his ambition to see his own country and Egypt merge as a single nation. Or if he is unhappy with the pace of bringing the two North African neighbors together.

Khadafy, 31, whose title is chairman of the Revolution Command Council, said in a three-hour speech that he was returning to office because of widespread popular insistence.

Khadafy spoke at the town of Al Abiar, near Benghazi, where he has stayed in an army camp since he resigned July 11. He quit because, he said, to make the Libyan-Egyptian merger easier.

"Now for the sake of all of you, for the sake of those staging sit-in strikes and for the sake of those who suffered," he said Monday, "I return to my post as of now, provided that I review this stand after the union."

He said if things did not go as he wished after the merger, "I will have the right to take the appropriate stand."

Khadafy's resignation was at least his third since taking office in 1969 and prompted demonstrations and strikes in Tripoli and Benghazi.

Thousands of Libyans marching to Cairo to demand the immediate merger Khadafy sought returned to Benghazi during the weekend to join the calls for his return to office.

In an effort to persuade him to withdraw the resignation, the entire cabinet submitted its resignation and the 10-man Revolution Council theatened to do likewise.

In his speech, Khadafy said the merger with Egypt will take place regardless of Cairo's wishes. Egypt was enthusiastic at first, but is now reluctant to merge with Libya and has postponed a decision until September, 1974.

Khadafy wants Islamic law applied more strictly in Egypt and is critical of the Egyptian civil service, which he said was corrupt.

'Tight' gas for 2 years, says official

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A top executive of Standard Oil of California foresees two more years of "tight" gasoline supplies for Americans.

Following an address to the local Chamber of Commerce, Standard's vice president and director J. R. Grey Monday told newsmen that what appears to be improved gas supplies at service stations was the result of cutbacks by individual motorists.

"I still see a tight situation, and I see it staying tight but not impossible," Grey said.

Asked for a prediction on the length of the shortage, Grey said he expected "two years of tight supplies and Americans will have to be more careful with energy from now on."

He defended his firm against Federal Trade Commission charges that Standard and seven other oil companies violated antitrust laws. He said it was "in the public interest" that major producers continue to be involved with oil exploration, drilling, refining and marketing.

The FTC has issued a complaint against the eight oil giants, charging they manipulated the shortage.

"If what these critics say were true—that the shortage is indeed contrived—it would undoubtedly go down in history as one of the greatest hoaxes ever perpetuated by man, requiring the full cooperation and top secrecy of scores of different competing oil companies and thousands of employes throughout the petroleum industry," he said.

Sometimes a 'sucker list' is high class

By PAUL R. ALLERUP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Did you ever get the feeling you've suddenly landed on "a list"? (Discretion forbears use of the term "sucker list").

Such a feeling grips me.

My mail has taken a most surprising turn in recent days. Surprising because whatever list I've landed on, someone seems to think I'm either loaded or soft in the head.

It started with an "invitation" to inspect a private two-jet airplane, just the thing for the busy executive who can't be bothered riding the airlines.

That could happen to anyone, one supposes. But then arrived still another invitation, this one to join "a select new community" in Florida where a home was waiting for me for as little as $94,500, or up to $195,000 if I needed a bit more room.

In a matter of days I was offered other homes in various places around the country, all of them seemingly in the $80,000-$200,000 category. One letter also spoke of a little chalet in Switzerland that could be mine for "about" $250,000.

My most distinguished mailed invitation — these things all seemed to be "invitations" — came from His Grace, The Duke of Leinster, in Sussex, England. He wanted to sell me title to 25 square feet in Anderita Park in Sussex, where Julius Caesar fought and William the Conqueror landed, for $675. Just think, wrote His Grace: "Julius Caesar. William the Conqueror. And You."

Then there have been the letters from brokers starting, "If you have $50,000 or more to invest...."

Flight from Lithuania stirs hassle

HELSINKI (UPI) — A freighter picked up Viktor Schneider as he rowed across the gulf of Finland — and touched off a diplomatic hassle involving the United States and three other countries.

Schneider, 25, was rowing across the Gulf of Finland when a Finnish freighter picked him up last week. He said he was a Lithuanian whose parents were German and he was going to West Germany to ask for asylum.

But, Finland said it wants to return him to the Soviet Union as required under an agreement with Moscow. The Soviet Union says it wants him. West Germany says he possibly is, as he alleges, a German citizen. The United States is appealing on humanitarian grounds for his release.

The foreign ministry said Monday he wants West German ambassador Detley Scheel to present written proof that Schneider is entitled to German citizenship.

Schneider flagged down the freighter because, he said, he thought it was West German. The freighter's skipper took him to Helsinki—and the police, who said he must go back to the Soviet Union.

Schneider carried no passport or identification papers and did not ask Finland for asylum. Under consular agreements with the Soviet Union, Finland is obliged to return Soviet citizens in such cases.

However, a West German embassy spokesman said that under German law anyone who is a direct descendent of a German father is a German citizen no matter where he was born. Schneider's parents lived and died in the Soviet Union, he said, but their family on the father's side may have been German.

The embassy said it could not be sure of its facts unless allowed to question Schneider. The Finns refused.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said Monday that the embassy appealed to Finland on humanitarian grounds to release Schneider.

The affair embarrassed many Finns who believe they must honor the agreement with the Soviet Union, but also are aware the affair again makes Finland seem under the Russian sphere of influence.

Khadafy spoke at the town of Al Abiar, near Benghazi, where he has stayed in an army camp since he resigned July 11. He quit because, he said, to make the Libyan-Egyptian merger easier.

"Now for the sake of all of you, for the sake of those staging sit-in strikes and for the sake of those who suffered," he said Monday, "I return to my post as of now, provided that I review this stand after the union."

He said if things did not go as he wished after the merger, "I will have the right to take the appropriate stand."

Khadafy's resignation was at least his third since taking office in 1969 and prompted demonstrations and strikes in Tripoli and Benghazi.

Thousands of Libyans marching to Cairo to demand the immediate merger Khadafy sought returned to Benghazi during the weekend to join the calls for his return to office.

In an effort to persuade him to withdraw the resignation, the entire cabinet submitted its resignation and the 10-man Revolution Council theatened to do likewise.

In his speech, Khadafy said the merger with Egypt will take place regardless of Cairo's wishes. Egypt was enthusiastic at first, but is now reluctant to merge with Libya and has postponed a decision until September, 1974.

Khadafy wants Islamic law applied more strictly in Egypt and is critical of the Egyptian civil service, which he said was corrupt.

'Tight' gas for 2 years, says official

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A top executive of Standard Oil of California foresees two more years of "tight" gasoline supplies for Americans.

Following an address to the local Chamber of Commerce, Standard's vice president and director J. R. Grey Monday told newsmen that what appears to be improved gas supplies at service stations was the result of cutbacks by individual motorists.

"I still see a tight situation, and I see it staying tight but not impossible," Grey said.

Asked for a prediction on the length of the shortage, Grey said he expected "two years of tight supplies and Americans will have to be more careful with energy from now on."

He defended his firm against Federal Trade Commission charges that Standard and seven other oil companies violated antitrust laws. He said it was "in the public interest" that major producers continue to be involved with oil exploration, drilling, refining and marketing.

The FTC has issued a complaint against the eight oil giants, charging they manipulated the shortage.

"If what these critics say were true—that the shortage is indeed contrived—it would undoubtedly go down in history as one of the greatest hoaxes ever perpetuated by man, requiring the full cooperation and top secrecy of scores of different competing oil companies and thousands of employes throughout the petroleum industry," he said.

Coke and aspirin: will it turn you on?

Dear Walt: Is it true that drinking coke and aspirin will turn you on sexually? One of my friends said this happened to him. — Mike

Dear Mike: If you think that drinking coke and aspirin, or munching Hershey bars, or sniffing lemon juice will turn you on, the thought alone will usually turn the trick. But, actually science has yet to find any foods or scents that are true aphrodisiacs.

Personally I'm not happy to hear of anyone taking an unnecessary aspirin. We're too prone already to overdose ourselves from that barrage of TV-hawked medications. If you want to pursue this further, spread the word that drinking orange juice and munching celery will send you into erotic orbit. At the least it will be a healthy input. — Walt.

Dear Ele: I'm in a theater crew this summer and want to do my best so that everyone likes me. Yet I know if you do too much it looks pushy and then people get turned off by you. Considering this, do you think it would be OK or too much if I gave a party for all the regular people and the other summer apprentices too? —Karen

Dear Karen: I think it would be cheeky if a single newcomer gave a party for one and all. It might also ring as "rich girl tries to buy attention." But if you serve as catalyst to get all the summer apprentices to join in hosting a party for their "seniors," it could be inspired action. —Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: With all the Washington scandals, and my own parents' divorce and what happened to me at schoo lthis year, I have just about lost faith in the older generation. Now I have a chance to work with two people who are over 50. We would be in contact with each other eight hours a day, five days a week. Do you think I should take the risk, or stay where I am with people of my generation? (The new job would pay 25 cents more per hour. —Rachael

Dear Rachael: If this is going to be a do-or-die situation, where you make your final judgment of all older people on the basis of this experience, stay where you are. But if you'll accept the truth that people are individuals — and that these two potential coworkers might be pluses or minuses — give it a chance.

But before you do, sit down in a meditative spot, and draw up a list of all the adults whom you'd want to rescue in advent of catastrophe. Looking for the good ones may open your eyes to realize you've had more positive relationships than you recall in time of disappointment.

Think of teachers, relatives, neighbors, friends' parents, shop owners and salespeople, medical people, church and social-work personnel youth agency workers, etc. —Ele and Walt

Students in U. S. as good as any in the world

NEW YORK (UPI) — Students in elementary, junior and senior high schools in America did at least as well as and in many cases better than their counterparts in the schools of 19 other nations on science, reading comprehension and literature Achievement Tests. The tests were given on a world-wide basis for the IEA—International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement.

Inouye denies he's seeking governorship

HONOLULU (UPI) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, a member of the Senate Watergate committee, has denied a report by a Honolulu newspaper columnist that he might be considering running for the governorship of Hawaii.

In a call from his Washington office, Inouye said he underwent a complete physical examination two months ago and was given a clean bill of health.

He said, "In my most recent conversations with myself I have decided that I have no interest in running for the governorship of Hawaii. I hope the people of Hawaii will permit me to continue to serve them in the U.S. Senate."

Inouye's statement came in response to an item columnist Dave Donnelly ran in Wednesday's issue of the newspaper which said Inouye was rumored to be considering returning to Honolulu to seek the governorship because of poor health.

P-B Salutes Women

Clubwomen in Pomona Valley are known for their interest in the community and for their dedication to improving conditions for the underprivileged. Other women dedicate their efforts to education and concern for the young and the old.

The Progress-Bulletin salutes four Woman Achievers along with the thousands of valley clubwomen in the 12th annual edition of Valley Women for their great effort in aiding their communities.

Winners of the awards are Mrs. Harold Edick (Marie), Pomona; Mrs. William Kelber (Rose), Ontario; Mrs. Sanford Newton (Pat), Pomona; and Mrs. Richard Todd (Jean), Pomona. Their stories are found on pages 16, 17, 20 and 21.

The women's staff of the Progress-Bulletin is very grateful to the individuals who submitted nominations for the awards and who completed forms on the many organizations so their stories could be told.

We regret omissions and request that organizations who did not fill out club blanks send us their stories so they may be printed in our regular women's news columns during the year.

Thank you,

Firemen assisted in emergencies

The Pomona Fire Department Auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Larry Ogle, 982 W. 19th St.; Upland, meets on the second Tuesday of the month. Assisting Mrs. Ogle are Mmes. William Holt, vice president; Ronald Bozarth, secretary; Dale Janssen, treasurer, and Ramon Daunis, publicity chairman.

Fund-raising activities included a Montclair Plaza Bazaar, T.V. pilot preview, and food sale at an auction. The group was organized as a social club for Pomona Fire Depactment wives and also to provide assistance to the department in emergency situations.

The auxiliary contributes to many philanthropic projects as well. Some of these are: Joe Brown Project, Casa de Vida Convalescent Hospital, Pomona Valley Historical Society and the Hillview Acres Children's Home.

DR. MABEL HAMMONS

MRS. ROBERT HANER

McKinley Boys Home assisted

The 83 members of the San Gabriel Valley Chapter, Women's Auxiliary to McKinley Home for Boys meet on the first Monday of the month under the leadership of Dr. Mabel Hammons, president.

The club is dedicated to assisting the maintenance of a home-like environment for the boys of the San Dimas home. In addition to a Christmas party and awards banquet, the club observes each boy's birthday with a gift and refreshments. This year a fashion show was held to raise funds for projects such as curtains and other room accessories, scholarships and clothing.

Other officers include Mrs. John Keith, vice president; Mrs. Crawford Edler, secretary; Mrs. F. B. Lancaster, treasurer; Miss Thelma Loys Wright, publicity chairman.

Service agency assisted

The Family Service Auxiliary meets on the fourth Wednesday of the month. The club's purpose is to help support the West End Family Counseling Service Agency by organizing fund-raising activites; to interpret the purposes of the agency to the community and to provide service to the agency.

Officers are Mrs. Robert Haner, 643 Anaby Court, Upland, president; Mrs. Gary Vollers, vice president; Mrs. Edward Powers, secretary; Mrs. Martin Schwarzbach, treasurer; and Mrs. Mike Koslosky, publicity.

The 50 members took part in a model home decoration contest at Christmas, presented the Bob Baker Marionettes and decorated the new agency office along with many other activities this year.

Guilds aid children

Fund raising events are held throughout the year by the auxiliaries to The Children's Home Society, a private counseling and adoptive agency. The proceeds are used in support of the society and the presentation of information and service to adoptive parents, unwed mothers and for special childrens' needs.

The 50 member Claremont Auxiliary, Children's Home Society, presented a Christmas bazaar, associate membership luncheon and spring party entitled The Godfather's Birthday, for fund-raising projects.

Mrs. Jack Doyle, 1987 Radford Ave., Claremont, serves the club as president with assistance from Mrs. Michael Koslosky, vice president; Mrs. Harold Parker, secretary; Mrs. Lee Harlan, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Verrill, publicity chairman. The auxiliary meets on the fourth Thursdday of each month.

The Cradle Guild Auxiliary, Children's Home Society has 13 members and meets on the second Monday of each month. Mrs. Robert H. Montoya, 3419 Sagehurst Dr., Duarte, is president of the auxiliary which contributes proceeds frm the annual bazaar, held in September, to the society. Other officers are Mrs. Earl Munsey, vice president; Mrs. George Riggs, secretary; and Mrs. David Haugen, treasurer.

Membership brunch, ghost party mailing and a casino party were the highlights of the year for the 25 members of Casa Alegre Auxiliary, Children's Home Society. Officers are Mrs. Allyn Scheu, 2031 N. Euclid, Upland, president; Mrs. Emil Torkar, vice president; Mrs. Charles Hillman, recording secretary; Mrs. Vernon Hesseltine, treasurer; and Mrs. Jim Sparks, publicity chairman.

Les Gardiens Guild, Children's Home Society held a foster parents brunch, assisted in the management of The Lady Bug, and presented other activities in their fund-raising program to help support the society. Mrs. Jay Stine, 2815 Fallowfield, Diamond Bar, serves as president to the 27-member guild which meets on the second Wednesday of each month.

MRS. LARRY OGLE

Hurts hair

Sunshine can be deadly for the hair. A little sun will do wonders for added highlights, but anything more than that will result in dry, burned locks. Protect your hair overexposure with a floppy straw hat or bright scarves while sunning on the beach. Also, be sure to use a conditioner during the summer months.

Professional recognition encouraged by secretaries

The Professional Secretaries Association is headed by Mrs. Larry Irwin, 1135 W. I St., Ontario. Other officers are Mmes. Mel Buechel, vice president; Vic Morrow, secretary; Lucille Tweed, treasurer; and Mel Buechel, publicity chairman.

There are 25 members and they meet on the first Thursday of the month.

Purpose of the club is: To see the secretarial field recognized as a true profession throughout the business world; to offer opportunities for all secretaries to become more professional by sponsoring educational programs; to develop and refine individual talents and capabilities; to encourage those beginning a secretarial career to strive for perfection; to offer top quality secretarial services to management.

In addition to regular meetings there have been dinners with the presentation of a qualified speaker in different fields. In October the group held its annual VIP night where bosses were invited as guests. They presented a scholarship to a deserving woman entering educational classes to become a secretary. In December the group held its annual Toys for Tots Christmas party.

ELNA SPEAKS OUT:

WE INTRODUCED STRETCH STITCHES 20 YEARS AGO. HOW CAN ANYONE ELSE TALK ABOUT "NEW" STRETCH STITCHES? Those "new" stretch stitches may be new to some . . . but not to Elna. Elna created the multiple stitch zigzag in 1952. Triple reinforced stretch stitch in 1960. Overlock stitch in 1963. And recently, Elna has added some more stretch stitches. Elna delivers seven different and practical stretch stitches. Not just decorative patterns with reverse stitching action. Then there is no question that "Elna Outstretches Them All!" All this performance is backed by years of experience producing the finest home sewing machines in the world. The name quality and dependability. Come in and test sew on Elna. You'll see for yourself. "Elna Outsews Them All!" Elna o-u-t-s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-s them all...

Juniors serve in their communities

The Junior Women's Clubs of the valley are affiliated with General Federation of Women's Club, Junior Membership, and all have as their purpose the wish to make their communities a better place in which to live and to better these areas through civic, educational, philantropic and cultural endeavors.

MRS. CAREN POPE

Mrs. Caren Pope, 1521 San Bernardino Ave., Pomona, is president of the 27-member Pomona Junior Women's Club. Vice president is Mrs. Glen Stewart and secretary and treasurer are Mrs. Richard Drake and Mrs. Larry McIntyre. Mrs. Fred Bellows is publicity chairman.

The members meet on the third Tuesday of every month.

Activity highlights during the last year included a Conservation puppet show, organization of a class for mentally gifted minors at San Jose School; carried on a Big Sister program at David and Margaret Home; organized a volunteer group for the Pomona Psychiatric Hospital; hold immunization clinics at the Pomona Health Department; aided Volunteer Vital English program; assisted at Le Roy's Boys' Home; and sponsored the Christmas Stocking Tree for needy children.

MRS. LARRY ADAMS

MRS. EARL McPEAK

The group of 18 women meets on the first Wednesday of each month.

During the year the group held "Buckboard Days" in Rowland Heights; held the Miss Rowland Heighis beauty pageant; put on puppet shows for children and held parties for Senior Citizens; made tray favors and entertained at the Beverly Convalescent Hospital; held Easter Bunny luncheon; donated money to various groups and agencies, including March of Dimes, Kidney Foundation, Heart Research and Project Concern in Tijuana. The group also gave $525 to Rowland High School Band for two french horns.

The group meets on the second Monday of each month.

The club, during the last year, held the Junior Olympics; held a salad bar luncheon for Area D Conference; participated in toy drive for Santa Claus Inc.; participated in Air National Guard Day; participated in March of Dimes Bike-A-Thon at Ontario Motor Speedway; gave a Christmas party at Le Roy Boys' Home; sent valentines to March Air Force Base for returning POWs; sponsored the dedication of the first civilian MIA Freedom Tree.

There are 17 members in the newly organized La Verne-San Dimas Junior Women's Club.

Mrs. Larry Adams, 1220 Canyon View Drive, La Verne, is president of the group and vice president is Mrs. Crosby Nagengast. Mrs. Joseph Wessel is secretary-treasurer, and publicity chairman is Mrs. James Watkins. The group meets on the second Tuesday.

The club received its charter in June and has just begun to outline its activities for the year. A babysitting clinic and volunteer work at the San Dimas Library are the first activities.

Twenty women are members of the Claremont Junior Woman's Club which meets on the second Wednesday of the month.

The club participated last year's and the 1973 July 4th celebration; sponsored a program to help the Meals on Wheels program begin in Claremont; delivered meals on Wheels every other week to approximately 25 recipients; participated in the POW—MIA program by selling bracelets and were responsible for the welcome home festivities for Col. John Stavast in March; conducted a dental and vision screening clinic for school children; worked with Recording for the Blind unit by providing readers and monitors on a weekly basis; established a Reading Is Fundamental program in one of Claremont's school in which the club provided five books each to 55 third graders to encourage reading.

Other officers are: Mmes. Lee Larson, vice president; Leonard Wells, secretary; Lee Larson, treasurer; Scott Kenley, publicity chairman.

Freedom Trees have been the major accomplishment of the group which meets on the first Wednesday of the month. With preceeds from a Las Vegas Night the Juniors were able to establish two living monuments to POWS abd MIAS. The Monclair Freedom Tree was dedicated to Capt. Michael Masterson at the Montclair Civic Center.

In Ontario, at the corner of Euclid avenue and B street the second tree was dedicated to Lt. Fred Fortner.

MRS. FRED O'MALLEY

MRS. ELVIN YOAKUM

The Juniors have also donated money for the purchase of books on POW—MIA at Montclair and Ontario libraries.

A March of Dimes Businessmen's Kidnap was held during the year and $600 was colected. Over 75 families were helped with the clothing donated at the March of Dimes baby shower.

Teaching assistance was provided at Cypress Orthopedic School and at the local elementary schools. Nearly 20 teaching aides were made for the local schools.

Cakes were provided each month for Montclair Manor residents' birthdays.

Assistance Leagues serve in community

Highlighting the club year for the Assistance League of Pomona Valley was the October garden party at which the inagural ball gowns worn by the first ladies of the United States were shown. In March the league hosted the premier opening of a new Claremont restaurant.

The money raised from projects and sales at the Bargain Basket Thrift Shop is used for the operation of the Speech and Hearing Center in Pomona. Two new projects are planned for the fall: senior citizens and teaching aides.

Membership is composed of auxiliaries, life members, associates, sustaining members, assisteens and the 52 actives who meet on the first Tuesday of each month. Officers are Mrs. G. Roger Ellison, president; Mrs. William W. Garrison, vice president; Mrs. Ray J. Lepire, secretary; Mrs. Charles L. West, treasurer; and Mrs. Nickolaus H. Brinkama, publicity chairman.

The 60 members of the Assistance League of Upland meet on the second Thursday of the month under the leadership of Mrs. Dean Smothers, 8516 Bella Vista, Alta Loma. Assisting Mrs. Smothers are Mmes. Robert Jensen, vice president; Del Hensley, secretary; J. T. Waller, treasuer; and Richard McElvany, publicity chairman.

The group's purpose is to maintain a program of philanthropic work and act as a friend to people of the community in need of care, guidance or assistance.

Activity highlights during the last year include: Christmas dance, spring fashion show with 500 women in attendance and Round Robin bridge. Money raised by these events was used to support Cucamonga Girls Club and the Dental Center held at San Antonio Community Hospital, where 250 children received dental care.

Other officers are Mrs. Erle V. Simon, vice president; Mrs. C. DeWitt Cothran, secretary; Mrs. Rbbin E. Fisher, treasurer; and Mrs. Robert C. Davidson, publicity chairman.

MRS. BETTY GUSTAFSON

Secretaries stimulate interests

There are 40 members in the Ontario Legal Secretaries Association. They meet on the third Wednesday of the month.

Mrs. Betty Gustafson, PLS, 1047 W. 6th St., Ontario, is president of the group. Other officers are Mrs. Velia DeLeon, vice president; Mrs. Angie Graham, secretary; Miss Deborah Jager, treasurer; and Mrs. Evelyn Campbell, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club is to stimulate a high order of business and professional attainment; to disseminate information and knowledge of interest to members; to further the interests of legal secretaries; and to establish good fellowship among members.

During the year the club gave two $100 scholarships to high school sutdents in the area for training at the college level in the secretarial field; conducted salary survey among legal secretaries in the immediate area as well as in the Pomona, Riverside and San Bernardino areas; participated in an alcohol safety program by two members of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's department through use of television cameras and video tape; sponsored annual Bosses' Night honoring attorneys, legal secretaries and their spouses at which the Boss of the Year and Secretary of the year were announced.

Avoid burn

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dermatologists recommend against boiling yourself in the sun the first time out. A good course: expose yourself gradually to avoid a burn. Light-skinned, blue-eyed humans and red heads need to be especially careful.

Watch fingers

Don't lick your fingers when you're working with food—and don't use cooking spoons or forks to taste food while you cook and serve it.

MRS. ELMER BOCK

Grange serves in valley

Fair Valley Grange has as its current president Mrs. Elmer Bock Sr., 1010 W. Holt Ave., Pomona. Other officers include Mmes. Jean Spilman, vice president; Velda Wellbaum, secretary; Casey Vander Mel, treasurer; and Angeline Stewart, publicity chairman.

The club is a farm organization and members do community work in the valley. They meet on the second and fourth Wednesday of the month.

During the year the group served dinners, breakfasts, manned a booth at the Los Angeles County Fair, had potluck dinners, card parties and at meetings heard speakers from the police and fire departments.

Pen Women promote the arts

Thirty-one members of Claremont Branch, National League of American Pen Women, meet on the second Thursday of every month.

Mrs. F. W. Riddington is president of the group. Other officers are: Dr. Helen M. Walker, vice president; Miss Phillipa Condit, secretary; Mrs. Martin Cooper, treasuer; and Miss Marie Russ, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the group is to create and promote educational activities in art, letters and music.

Program during the year include "Sir Max Beerbohm" by Kay Dix; "Books for Children in the Soviet Union" by Ruth Graham, and "The Building of a Novel" by Marion Castle.

Handle with care

Regard your hands as contaminated for food handling purposes, says New York State Cooperative Extension. Keep them out of food as much as you can and away from dish surfaces that come in contact with diners' lips. Pick up glasses at their bases, and cups and silver, by their handles.

Fuller skirts

Skirts for fall and winter will be fuller than they've been in many a fashion season. Lots of pleats make for a swinging skirt when the wearer walks.

MRS. RUBEN HENDERSON

TOPS Club encourages weight loss

TOPS Club of California, Chapter 6, has as its president Mrs. Ruben Henderson, 921 Milford, Pomona. Other officers are Mmes. Joe Cascio, vice president; Frank Rossetlot, secretary; Frank Brewster, treasurer; Lloyd Blackmon, publicity chairman.

The group meets on Monday evenings and the purpose is for the 45 members to lose weight sensibly and keep it off.

During the year the group hosted a KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly) luau; had secret pals during the year; celebrated their 17th anniversary in March; and attended Area Recognition Day in Riverside in May.

"Hire him. He's got great legs."

If women thought this way about men they would be awfully silly.

Women should be judged for a job by whether or not they can do it.

In a world where women are doctors, lawyers, judges, brokers, economists, scientists, political candidates, professors and company presidents, any other viewpoint is ridiculous.

Think of it this way. When we need all the help we can get, why waste half the brains around?

Womanpower. It's much too good to waste.

Camp Fire serves youths

More than 8,000 girls and 2,000 adult volunteers from an area which includes 25 cities have been served during the past year by the Mt. San Antonio Council of Camp Fire Girls, Inc.

Directed toward helping young people grow as self-reliant, caring and responsible individuals, the Camp Fire program's goal is to provide one of the societal links between black, brown and white persons.

During the past year the Mt. San Antonio Council has worked with other agencies in cooperative programming for youth such as Inter Group Outreach. The council worked with the Covina Adult Education School to provide leadership laboratory courses for high school age boys and girls, and sponsored numerous summer day camp programs and camping experience for 149 disadvantaged children.

Drew H. Mullan is president of the council. Also serving as officers are Mrs. Nicholas Kelch, vice president; Mrs. Helen Boughton, secretary; Miss Roberta Carrington, treasurer; and Richard Lewis, community relations.

DBE Chapter promotes friendship

Royal Ascot Chapter, Daughters of the British Empire, has named Mrs. John D. Harris Jr., 927 Jasmine Ave., Ontario, as its regent. Vice regent is Mrs. Edward F. Kelly, with Mrs. William Doty as secretary and Mrs. Jack Brockie as treasurer. Mrs. Jane Smyth serves as publicity chairman.

The 15 members meet on the first Thursday of each month.

The organization is a non-profit one which promotes and furthers Anglo-American friendship and good will. It also helps support the British Home in Sierra Madre for elderly men and women of British birth or origin.

The group held a movie benefit for "Young Winston" in November and the British Home Faire on the grounds of the British Home with other chapters. The chapter donates funds to Harvey Mudd College for a revolving student loan.

Classified service clubs help community

Classified service clubs for professional and executive business women have as their main purpose service to the community in which they operate. All are clubs within international organizations.

The Soroptimist Club of Pomona has as its president Mrs. Al Lutes, 131 S. Mockingbird Lane, West Covina. Other officers include Miss Arlene Pederson, vice president; Miss Sharon Russell, recording secretary; and Mrs. Robert Temple, treasurer.

The club meets every Thursday and the 55 members stress service to the community.

Highlights of the last year's activities were: luncheon honoring past presidents; hosting the District VI fall meeting; ways and means projects raising funds toward $18,000 pledge for renal dialysis equipment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital; scholarships to Mt. San Antonio College and Cal Poly; camperships for Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army; providing insurance for day camp participants at YWCA.

Mrs. Fred Bonsor, 12624 Third St., Chino, is president of the Soroptimist Club of Chino. The Soroptimist organization is the largest women's service club in the world. There are 17 members in the Chino unit.

The club, which owns its own clubhouse, had a mortgage-burning party during the year; a Hobo party; Tea Cup Tea, with all proceeds going to service in the community including Junior Fair, Meals on Wheels, American Cancer Society, Chino Historical Society, scholarships for two high school students, Neighborhood House, and Sister City Exchange.

Mrs. Glenn C. Mikesell, 1065 Terrace Dr., Upland, is president of the Soroptimist Club of Ontario. The 45 members meet every Tuesday.

During the year the group spearheaded Meals on Wheels program for Ontario; participated in the P.A.L. program; sponsored service clubs for girls in the high schools; gave Youth Citizenship awards and aided by Ringing the Bells for the Salvation Army at Christmas.

MRS. GLENN MIKESELL

Dr. Lucile Robinson, 603 S. Buena Vista, Redlands, is president of the Zonta Club of Ontario-Upland. The 30 members meet on the second Monday for dinner and on the fourth Monday for lunch.

Money raised for a spring rummage sale, a fall wine-tasting festival and a summer fashion show was used to donate $500 to Meals on Wheels, to give $1,000 in scholarships, $500 for Pap tests for needy women through the San Bernardino County Health Department, and smaller amounts to Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Santa Claus Inc.; assistance to Z Club at Ontario High School and to a girls' softball team.

Zonta Club of Pomona Valley is headed by Mrs. John R. Gletcher, 2304 Rosedale Curve, Upland. Other officers are: Mrs. Betty Jackson, vice president; Mrs. Helen Boughton, secretary; Miss Marjorie Raymond, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Dewey, publicity chairman.

The 25 members, who meet on the first and third Wednesday of the month, promote high ethical standards in business and professions and political, economic and legal, politica, economic and professional status of women.

Highlights of the last year were the sponsorship of Z Club at Ganesha High School; scholarships awarded 6 high school graduates; monetary contributions for the support of Ramallah Training School for Girls and Amelia Earhart fellowships; camperships to Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and YWCA for a girl; volunteer hours and supplies to local programs; grants to support local projects such as Salvation Army Christmas Baskets, Christmas Tree Lane and Pomona Valley YWCA.

There are 23 active and two honorary members in the Pilot Club of Pomona Valley.

Miss Anne Wigley, 2717 Arrow Highway, La Verne, is president of the local club. Other officers of the unit, which meets on the second and fourth Thursday, are Mmes Ira Vail, vice president; Frank McCrossen, secretary; Lester Anderson, treasurer; Floyd McNulty, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club is to promote international peace and cultural relations, high standards in business and active participation in movement to improve civic, social, industrial and commercial welfare in the community.

During the last year the group participated in the Montclair Plaza All-Club charity bazaar. The club's major project is the annual Christmas tea and bazaar, benefits from which go to the Crippled Children's Society, Pomona Regional Center. They sponsored the Top Deckers, a club organized 13 years ago by the Pomona Pilot Club to provided need social and cultural opportunities for handicapped young people.

MRS. AL LUTES

DR. LUCILE ROBINSON

MRS. JOHN FLETCHER

MISS ANNE WIGLEY

The club presented two $250 scholarships to two handicapped women seeking college graduate study. Other contributions were made to Cancer Research, Heart Foundation, Meals for Millions, S.S. Hope, CARE, Eyes for the Needy, and Pilot Anchor Club.

Volunteers helped in the Casa Colina Hospital booth at the Los Angeles County Fair and at the Historical Society's annual barbecue at the Phillips Mansion. Members also assisted with the Teen-Age Safety Conference at the fairgrounds.

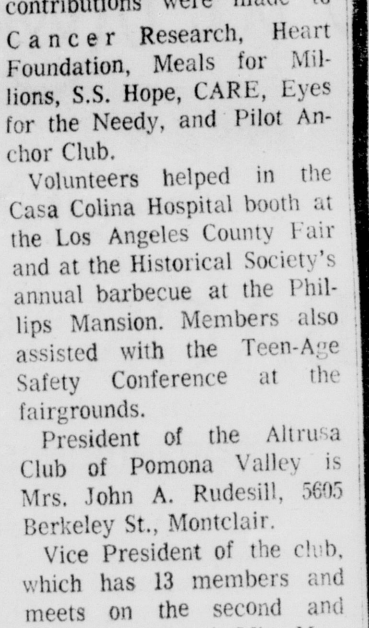
Vice President of the club, which has 13 members and meets on the second and fourth Thursday, is Miss Margarette J. Bunn. Other officers are Mrs. Carol Cole, secretary; Mrs. Juanita Dietrich, treasurer; and Mrs. Martie Lisowski, publicity chairman.



MRS. JOHN A. RUDESILL

The club purpose is to seek out and attempt to meet the needs of the community, to be of service to others and to encourage women to take a more active and varied role in community, national and international affairs.

During the last year the club donated funds to Operation Groovy and baked cookies for the Police Declaratory Quorum. The membership tea was held in January, and in June new officers were installed at a dinner.

Sweater look

The sweaters for fall may not draw cheers from girl watchers. The New York Couture Business Council says the new sweater shape is looser, shows body curves less. Some are loose as sweatshirts.

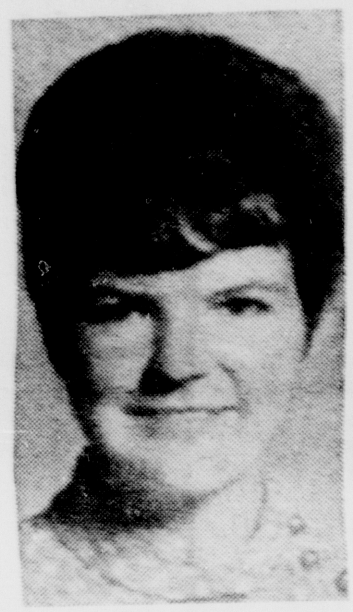
MISS MARJORIE RAYMOND



MRS ROBERT FLEISCHMANN

MRS. HAROLD LADWIG

MRS. JUNE CRANE

Business and Professional Women's clubs and other business clubs are organized to elevate the standards of women in business and in the professions and to extend additional opportunities to working women through programs of education, legislation and fellowship.

Miss Marjorie J. Raymond, 1196 S. San Antonio Ave., is president of the 48-member Pomona Business and Professional Women's Club. Vice president is Mrs. Maxine Bates, and Mrs. Ruth Lambly is secretary. Mrs. Lonnie Pomeroy is treasurer of the club, and Miss Betty Rexrode is publicity chairman. The club meets on the third Tuesday of every month.

Highlights of the last year's activities include sponsorship of Ingatherine Tea for Camp Fire Girls; celebration of the 50th anniversary of Pomona BPW; distribution of Christmas gifts to patients in nursing homes; participation in section, district, state and national meetings of the federation; selection of Mrs. Wilma Temple as club Woman of the Year; elevation of a Pomona member, Mrs. Betty Eagon to position of vice president of the California Federation of BPW.

Twenty-five members of Claremont Business and Professional Women's Club meet on the second Monday of the month.

Mrs. Robert H. Fleischmann, 469 St. Augustine Ave., Claremont, is president of the group. Other officers are: Mmes. Opal Clarkson, vice president; Florence Woodward, secretary; Elaine Ross, treasurer; and Meg Barber, publicity chairman.

The programs have included world affairs, Foreign Exchange students, legislation, community involvement, ecology and personal development.

The 50 members of Ontario Business and Professional Women's Club meet on the second Tuesday of the month.

Mrs. Harold J. Ladwig, 5390 San Jose St., Montclair, is president of the club. Other officers are: Mmes A. Mellen, vice president; Amy White, secretary; Renee A. Kovach, treasurer; and Eugene Warren, publicity chairman.

MRS. JOHN LYON

During the year the club celebrated the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Ontario Club, honoring the three charter members who are still active in the club; sponsored 10 students for the Youthpower Conference at Irvine campus. Fund-raising projects included the annual card party and sale of Christmas corsages.

The PBX Club of Pomona is headed by Mrs. June Crane, 940 W. 16th St., Upland. Other officers are Mmes. Mary Buettner, vice president; Beth Dennis, secretary; Mary Jane Brown, treasurer; and Buettner, publicity chairman. The club meets on the second Tuesday of the month.

Highlights of the club year were the dinner meetings, Christmas dinner-dance at Mt. Baldy Lodge, and Bosses' Night at the Castaway.

President of Pomona Valley Dental Assistants Association is Mrs. John Lyon, 3802 Barton Place, La Verne. Other officers are: Mrs. B. J. Swarts, vice president; Miss Nancy Gates, secretary; Mrs. Warner King, treasurer; and Mrs. Erma Flores, publicity chairman.

Education of its members along dental lines is the purpose of the club.

The highlights for the last year in the activities of the club were the midwinter meeting at Long Beach and the annual meeting in May at Disneyland.

College women urge increased education

MRS. DAVID ORR

The American Association of University Women seeks to unite the alumnae of college and universities to foster the development and maintenance of high standards of education, to strengthen the influence of women in the community for the solution of social and civic problems, and to secure a broader opportunity for women in education through fellowships and legislation.

Officers of the Pomona Valley Branch of AAUW are Mrs. David Orr of 11939 Farndon Ave., Chino, president; Mrs. Richard Hobbs, vice president; Mrs. Robert C. Gius, secretary; Mrs. Hugh Folkins, treasurer, and Mrs. Albert Golightly, publicity chairman.

The 130 members of the branch meet on the second Tuesday of each month.

Highlights of the year included a Christmas Home Tour and Boutique which earned over $1,000 for fellowships; the formation of a committee with the Pomona Unified School District to coordinate art experiences in the elementary schools, and a tour of Sybil Brand Institute. The branch also provided speakers on the changing roles of women to juniors and senior high schools.

Dr. Salley Seven of 1250 N. Harvard Ave., Claremont is the president of the AAUW Claremont Branch. There are 162 members in the branch which meets the second Thursday of each month.

Also serving as officers are Mrs. John Cobb, vice president; Mrs. Alan Jack, secretary; Mrs. Ensel Stutts, treasurer, and Mrs. Brian Morrison, publicity chairman.

During the past year the club conducted a book sale and a spring home tour to raise funds to provide financial assistance for women continuing their education; provided a scholarship for a local woman, and sponsored a symposium on relations between the college and community.

A newly organized membership of black educated women is the Pomona Valley Branch of the National Association of College Women.

The service organization is interested in promoting closer union and fellowship among college or university alumnae for constructive, education work; in studying educational, social and economic problems affecting college women, and in arousing a consciousness of the members' responsibilities in solving local and national problems.

Mrs. Lola Fox of Covina is the group's president. Serving with her are Mrs. Seleta Johnson, vice president; Mrs. Daisy Cook, secretary and publicity chairman, and Mrs. Ruth Culverson, treasurer.

The branch's 35 members meet the third Saturday of each month.

MRS. ARTHUR BERNARD

B'nai B'rith donates items to hospitals

Mrs. Arthur Bernard is the president of the Stella Kelber Chapter, B'nai B'rith Women which has 88 members who meet on the first Wednesday of the month.

The highlights of the club activities are the donation of layette items to health centers and the contribution of lap robes and slippers to veterans.

Other officers are Mrs. Rose Boches, secretary; Mrs. Harry Berman, treasurer; Mrs. Herman Schneider, publicity chairman.

Travel films offered

The Claremont Travel Film Series, sponsored by Mt. Baldy Council, Women's Campus Club of Pomona College, has 1,300 members.

Heading the organization is Mrs. Milo Tigner, 1542 Alameda St., Pomona.

Other officers are Mmes. Wesley Leighton, secretary; Roy Miller, treasurer; and Tigner, publicity chairman.

The group meets on the first or last Friday of the month, October through May.

Purpose of the group is to present outstanding travel films for enjoyment of the entire community, proceeds of which will be used for the Development Fund of Pomona College and the improvement of Garrison Theater, Claremont Colleges.

During the year the unit presented seven travel films in Garrison Theatre, with more than 1,300 people in attendance at each showing. The group gave $3,200 to Pomona College for use by the music, drama and economics departments. They also gave $600 to the Claremont Colleges for improvement of the theater. Two memorials were established at Pomona College for Margaret Perry Bunnelle and Suzan Meta Harris.

MRS. MILO TIGNER

Serve as volunteers in hospitals

Women's Hospital Auxiliaries provide thousands of hours of volunteer service to the staff and patients of the area hospitals in addition to sponsoring many fund-raising projects to assist the individual institutions in their goals of providing the best patient care.

The 415 members of the Women's Auxiliary, Pomona Valley Community Hospital meet four times a year under the leadership of Mrs. Robert V. Balch, 20728 Loyalton Dr., Walnut.

A pledge of $12,000 dollars was made to the hospital for the pediatrics wing and the auxiliary also donated $6,000 for special equipment in the neo-natal nursery. The organization sponsors a sick baby fund to provide financial assistance to families with babies requiring extensive medical care. Proceeds from the annual May Breakfast and summer barbecue, along with those of the Auxiliary Gift Shop and new baby photos, enable the group to make these donations.

Other officers are Mrs. Gerald S. Rathbun, vice president; Mrs. Delwin W. Ludwick, secretary; and Mrs. Harry C. Kinne, Jr., treasurer.

Meetings for the 82 members of the Doctors Hospital of Montclair Auxiliary are held on the third Wednesday of the month.

Officers are Mrs. Richard Warmouth, 9761 Felipe Ave., Montclair, president; Melba Conant, vice president; Mrs. John Fishbaugh, secretary; Mrs. Lee Young, treasurer; and Dorothy Paul, publicity chairman.

Since the auxiliary's formation in September, the group has opened and staffed the hospital gift shop, hosted the opening of Montclair Medical Square and Founded the candy striper program.

Mrs. Robert D. Lowry, 1421 Renwick Road, San Dimas, is the president of the San Dimas Community Hospital Auxiliary. Assisting her are Mrs. Gary Cox, vice president; Mrs. Adam McLeod, secretary; Mrs. James N. Lough, treasurer; and Mrs. Dennis Green, publicity chairman.

The auxiliary assisted at the open house held in October and in March opened their gift shop which features many hand crafted items. In June the group awarded $1,000 in scholarships.

Foothill Presbyterian Hospital Auxiliary has a membership of 275 and meets quarterly under the direction of Mrs. Raymond Swearingen, president. Other officers are Mrs. Donald Denison, president-elect; Mrs. Kenneth Wilmarth, recording secretary; Mrs. Gary Lachman, treasurer; and Mrs. Seymour Spungin, publicity chairman.

Procceds from the newly opened hospital gift shop and other projects enabled the auxiliary to contribute $5,000 towards the pledge made to the hospital fund.

Automatic doors for the hospital entrance were purchased by the Casa Colina Hospital Auxiliary this past year. The 60 members, who meet on the fourth Monday of the month, also sponsored sixteen fashion shows for local women's groups. Proceeds from the projects support the Casa Colina Hospital—Claremont Colleges Pre School for Multi-Handicapped Children.

CFWC projects listed

Clubs affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs encourage cultural and activities and work for the welfare of the community. Their purpose is study and advacement along literary, civic and philanthropic lines of general interest.

The Upland Woman's Club has 183 members and the group meets on the second Tuesday of each month with a tea on the fourth Tuesday of the month.

During the last year the club gave two nursing scholarships; supported We Tip; FINE Friendship Club; Meals on Wheels; Santa Claus Inc.; blood bank; San Antonio Hospital Auxiliary; Pennies for Pines and Poppies.

Over 4,800 hours were given by members for community service and $761 was donated for Youth and Family Living perpetuating the care of the Rose Garden in Upland Memorial Park.

Chino Valley Woman's Club has as its president Mrs. John Tomlinson, 5834 Chino Ave., Chino.

Other officers are Mmes. Peter Kastans, vice president; Charlotte Wangler, secretary; Zeke Cortez, treasurer, and Bernard Marty, publicity chairman.

MRS. JOHN SCHEWREN

MRS. MARVIN STUDTS

The 132 members meet at noon on the third Monday of each month.

During the year the club contributed to the Slaughter Adobe museum; contributed to the new Chino Library and made scholarships available.

Marie Edick

Has concern for others

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Asst. Women's Editor

"The best way to become acquainted in a community is to get involved in its organizations," says Mrs. Harold S. Edick, a 1973 Progress-Bulletin Woman Achiever.

Today Marie, as she is always called by everyone who knows her, is one of the better-known women in Pomona. But it wasn't always so.

As the wife of a career Navy man, Marie didn't know a single person when she moved to Pomona after her husband was assigned to the Corona Naval Hospital.

"I was born near Knoxville and I'm a hillbilly at heart. I'm used to their friendly way of life and their love and affection for each other.

"I was so lonely when we moved here in 1946 that I'd drive to Los Angeles to visit with acquaintances. Then my landlady arranged for me to attend Ebell meetings," recalls Marie.

Her natural interest in hospitals, stemming from her husband's work and her own volunteer service in military hospitals during World War II, led the Achiever to join the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary in 1948.

Since joining the auxiliary, Mrs. Edick has served as president, from 1958 to 1960, and as a member of the board for many years. She is currently the program chairman.

But her real talent has been the ability to present highly successful fund-raising programs.

Probably her most notable projects were the two "High Fever Follies" stage shows presented a few years ago to benefit the hospital. These shows involved hundreds from the community and were termed a great success by all the participants.

According to one coworker with Marie, "She has the ability to involve others and to develop their talents. Of course, she works hard and expects others to do the same."

Marie has also served as chairman for the past two annual May Breakfasts of the hospital auxiliary which raised thousands of dollars and involved large groups of volunteers.

"But I really like working in the hospital as an active volunteer," says Marie who recently passed the 2,000 hour mark as a worker.

"There isn't a day that you don't help someone. Patients, visitors and families arrive upset or confused. Often just a few minute's chat and you have them reassured.

"I especially like delivering the mail so I can stop and say 'How are you?' It helps, you know."

Marie's concern for her friends goes beyond regular volunteer duty. In one case recently, she stayed at the hospital from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. to keep tabs on a surgery patient and called the woman's husband frequently, so that he need not lose time from work.

She credits her involvement in Pomona Ebell, where she was president in 1960-and 1961, for widening her circle of friends. She has also served the club as program and publicity chairmen and in other roles.

While the Edicks have no children of their own, they have been concerned about the youth in the community. Marie was instrumental in establishing the scholarship program of Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary which provides financial aid to high school graduates who seek careers in medically related frields.

She is also a charter member of the Foothill Guild of the Crippled Children's Society which raises funds to provide improvements at the Pomona Regional Center of the society. The guild is responsible for the swimming pool and its shelter area in the center, among other things.

When the Visiting Nurse Association was organized in Pomona, this Achiever again volunteered to help on its first board of directors.

She also served a term as a member of the City of Pomona Library Board where, she reports, her interests were in providing adequate books to serve the needs of the youngsters and the establishment of Bookmobiles to bring the library to children and senior citizens who could not easily go to the central facility.

"We've always had a dog. (Judy, a French poodle, is the current pet.) So my love for animals is widely known," says Marie, in explaining why she's served on the board of directors of the Pomona Valley Humane Society for so many years.

Until recently, she was an associate member of the Assistance League of Pomona Valley, which supports the Hearing and Speech Center for deaf children.

A natural comedienne, Marie likes to spoof women by taking humorous roles in plays or being the "clown" in style shows. She has the ability to always see the funny side of a situation and to turn an embarrasing situation into a comic relief.

As a member of Pilgrim Congregational Church, she is involved in her guild and often helps with its entertainment.

Marie feels strongly that young women, especially newcomers, need to be involved in some type of club or community work.

"Some larger firms offer a chance for the young wife to get acquainted, but many don't and women need to have friends.

"Helping in a hospital is a great way to make contacts and serve others. After all, no one goes to the hospital for a vacation, so the patients need assurance and comfort.

"It's really satisfying to help just one person," concludes this Woman Achiever who assisted helped so many.

MRS. FRANCIS A. MCKEE

The newly organized Matthew Sparks Chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists meets four times a year for the purpose of perpetuating the memory of persons and events of American colonial history. The 15-member group is the first to be organized in the Pomona-San Gabriel Valley. Officers are Mrs. Francis A. McKee, regent; Mrs. Robert B. Thompson, vice regent; Mrs. Alfred H. Maupin, secretary; Mrs. Aris C. Sanders, treasurer; and Mrs. McKee, publicity chairman.

Slip-dresses

Bare slip-dresses have a summer freshness that will appeal to most women. But like most revealing fashions, they require a body that has stayed in shape. If you're not ready to flaunt yours, get into a good exercising program or look for another, less-revealing style.

Be natural

To avoid an artificial penciled look for eyebrows, follow the natural contours of your brows, brush or pencil in with gentle strokes and use two shades, such as medium and dark brown, for a more natural effect.

Rose Kelber

Volunteering comes naturally

By MARY REMILLARD
P-B Women's Editor

A valley woman who considers herself fortunate to have had the time to do all the things she thoroughly enjoys is one of the Progress-Bulletin Woman Achievers for 1973.

She is Mrs. William Kelber of Ontario.

Long known for her many years of involvement in working for the blind, Mrs. Kelber has been equally involved in civic, religious, public school and political activities in the last 26 years.

Rose Kelber comes by her volunteer work naturally. She inherited it. Her father and her husband's father worked very hard when Rose was growing up in Pomona to develop a congregation and build a Jewish temple in the valley.

"I learned dedication from them," she says.

When Rose Kelber graduated from Pomona High School in 1938 she worked in accounting in order to go through beauty school. She was a beautician until she was 21 and then went back to secretarial work.

"My father did not believe in higher education for women," says Rose, "but I have never stopped learning. I'm always picking up a course on this or that —whatever interests me—and now that my children are just about through school I intend to further my own education.

Even though denied higher education, Rose Kelber, by doing and reading and maintaining an eager, open mind, has accumulated a wealth of education in her own way.

The diminutive, vicacious Rose got her start in volunteer work through PTA about 25 years agb and stayed with PTA until last year.

"I really enjoyed that work," she says.

"I'm not a bridge player or a clubwoman, and perhaps this is why I turned to Recording for the Blind 16 years ago, for the recording is only of textbooks."

Mrs. Kelber had read a story about recording for the blind, got interested and, since there was no organization in the valley, she founded one.

Thirteen years ago she learned braille writing, and then she began teaching braille.

"I have fallen into so many interesting things," she says enthusiastically.

But one has to know Mrs. Kelber to realize it is this same enthusiasm and empathy that makes her involvement so very rewarding.

As for cooperation in her home, Rose Kelber has had lots of encouragement.

"My husband encourages me to become involved. I think he thinks I can do anything."

Dr. and Mrs. Kelber were married when he was a student at Texas A. and M. They had met when they attended Sunday School together as young teen-agers.

Twenty-six years ago Dr. Kelber built his veterinary hosiptal in Ontario, and Mrs. Kelber was his assistant for eight years.

"You see, I've done so many different things," says this enthusiastic woman, who counts among other things her work as secretary at one time to the late Father Flannigan of Boys' Home in Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Kelber has served in all offices including presidency of Stella Kelber Chapter, B'nai B'rith Women, and did the same for Temple Beth Israel Sisterhood. She was the president of Tri Valley Council, B'nai B'rith Women, and was named Woman of the Year by the council in 1967.

Mrs. Kelber's community services have included a post she has held with the West end Council of Community Services and membership in the Women's Auxiliary of the California Veterinarian Medical Association, West End Mental Health Association, West End Drug Abuse Coordinating Council and West End Parents of the Gifted.

She is a patroness of both Casa Alegra Auxiliary of Children's Home Society and Assistance League and as a charter member of West End Symphony Association has worked for 10 years on community concert committees.

Of her year as a member of the San Bernardino County Grand Jury, Mrs. Kelber says "That's certainly the way to learn civic government."

Rose Kelber has some very definite ideas about the public schools, and being a member of the board of trustees of Ontario-Montclair School District gives her opportunity to implement these ideas.

She is the secretary for the San Bernardino County School Boards Assocation; secretary of the Chaffey High School Task Force Advisory Committee; and chairman of the guidance and counseling committee of the Chaffey Task Force.

"It is good," she says, "to see changes coming about.

"Constructive criticism is good," says Mrs. Kelber. "If you ask a student who is the good teacher and who is the good counselor, you will learn a lot."

Today Rose Kelber is as actively involved in the Pomona Valley Transcribers Guild as when she founded it in 1960. Currently, she handles public relations for the guild, serving as a speaker for service organizations. From 1967 to 1969 she served as president of the California State Transcribers and Educators of the Visually Handicapped. She is on the national committee for tape recording for the blind and has taught braille classes for 10 years to adults who in turn transcribe books for the blind. She is currently teaching a class at Ontario Public Library, and a new class will begin in the fall. She has formed many Braille Transcribing Clubs at junior highs schools throughout the valley.

There seems to be no end to her involvement in helping the blind.

Mrs. Kelber transcribes a monthly newspaper for the handicapped students at the University of California, Riverside, and has taught a class at California Institution for Women on braille transcribing.

She has tutored three students at California Youth Training School teaching Braille for several years, and at California Institution for Men she has worked with inmates to develop a program of tape recording of textbooks and pleasure reading books for students and adults.

Tiny, smiling, persuasive Rose Kelber says of all her activities, "I wouldn't change a thing. Everything I have learned has led me to learn more. I am convinced the only way to find out what's going on is to be involved."

And for the mothers of young children she emphasizes, "Allow your child to explore everything he wants. How else will be know what it is he wants?"

Every woman, she says, ought to involve herself in order to grow and to keep up with young minds.

The five children of Dr. and Mrs. Kelber and their accomplishments are ample proof that the Kelbers have always done just that.

Lace touches

The latest material for this year's bikinis is a jersey with touches of lace or crochet, strategically positioned.

WCTU is celebrating 90th anniversary

Celebrating its 90th anniversary is the Woman's Christian Temperance Union which is an organization banded together for the protection of the home, the abolition of the liquor traffic and the triumph of Christ's Golden Rule in custom and law.

Officers of the Pomona-Claremont WCTU are Mrs. Clifford Henning Sr. of 735 St. Paul St., Pomona, president; Mrs. Alta Brown, vice president; Mrs. George Johnson, secretary; Miss Harriet Morley, treasurer, and Mrs. Henning, publicity chairman.

The organization's 73 members meet the third Thursday of each month. The members work in the interests of the community by protesting legislative bills which conflict with the goals of the organization on the state, national and local levels.

Mrs. H. Spenser Minnich of 2607 B St., La Verne, is the president of the La Verne WCTU. Serving with her are Miss Jane Wingard, vice president; Mrs. Ruth Weaver, secretary; Mrs. Jennie Via, treasurer, and Miss Wingard, publicity chairman.

The 60 La Verne WCTU members meet the second Tuesday of each month.

The group works through its eight departments Christian Outreach, citizenship, legislation, projection methods, public relations and special service. Monthly meetings provide information alerting members to films and literature adverse to their goals.

Pat Newton

Needs to be involved

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

A love of scouting carried over from childhood, a seemingly compulsive need to be involved and a fascination with people have motivated Progress-Bulletin Woman Achiever Pat Newton for the past 17 years.

Ever since 1956, when the first of her four children started nursery shcool, Pat has projected outward from her home.

Three organizations — the PTA, Girl Scouts and United Way — have received the major benefit from the thousands of hours of work she has volunteered.

There have, however, been other organizations through the years to feel her influence.

Now she feels there is occurring a change in her motivation.

"I find I'm doing it more for myself," she said. "The kids, the youngest is 16, they don't need me. I'd go nuts if I didn't have something.

"It is for my own personal well being that I remain involved." And, she adds, she has no intention of slowing down.

"I'll defintely keep as involved as I have been.

"Meeting new people is fun and interesting. They all have a different outlook and each one teaches you something. You learn to get along with people, all people, and that's really what it's all about."

She was born, she tells you, in San Pedro. She went through kindergarten and first grade there before the family moved to Pasadena. She was graduated from lower division Psadena Junior College in 1947, and in 1951 received a B.A. in English literature from Pomona College.

"I can't tell you exactly what I've done with it, but that's what I got." she said.

Two days after graduation, on June 12, 1951, she was married to Sanford Newton. They lived in Monrovia a year before moving to Pomona. They've lived here since. The family home is at 1449 N. Gibbs St.

"I had four babies in four years. It was miserable then, but it's great now," she said. Katy is 20, Karen is 18, Mary is 17 and Bill is 16.

"My original motivation in being a volunteer was getting my kids involved in the nursery school thing. I found I enjoyed being with and meeting new and different people.

"I was in scouting clear through my high school years and up to the time my kids quit scouts I stayed close to their activities and interests.

"I never worked with kids though, always at the administrative level. I found that was really my thing. It got to the point where I was doing it for me. I really enjoyed it.

"Initially I got conned into United Way by my friends. I kept at it because Girl Scouts was a member agency and I feel strongly that administrators and directors of agencies should be involved. But, there again, I have fun."

"Working in PTA I found was a good way to know what was happening at school. I got to know principals and teachers on a first-name basis."

Pat was Pomona High School PTA president in 1971-72 and 1972-73. Actually her PTA involvement dates back to 1960-61 when she was elected fourth vice president at Montvue School. She has served continuously through the years at Montvue, Lincoln, Emerson and Pomona High.

Her United Way involvement began in 1957 when she volunteered as a residential block worker. She has been at it ever since and this year is serving as vice chairman of one of the budget divisions in Los Angeles County United Way.

She has been with Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council since 1962. She served one year as a Brownie leader before going onto council. She has filled numerous positions and this year is a member of the nominating committee as well as chairman of the public relations committee.

In 1967 she was presented the Thanks Badge, Girl Scouting's highest award to adult volunteers.

Pat worked with Pomona Community Nursery School from 1956 to 1960. She was a member of the Pomona Jay-C-Ettes from 1956 to 1963 and served as president of that organization in 1961-62.

From 1960 to 1965, she filled numerous volunteer positions in the Sunday school at Pilgrim Congregational Church.

In 1968-69 she contributed untold hours to the Pomona school board's study committee on integration.

In between, she volunteered to promote school bond elections, the library bonds and individual political campaigns.

Her husband, Sanford Newton Jr., has suggested that she take a paid position since she is willing to devote so many hours to outside jobs.

"It's a possibility," said Pat.

In her spare time, Pat likes to read, knit and daydream at the beach where the family has a home.

"And I play bridge twice a month. That's my therapy."

Pat has a sister, Janice, living in Maryland. Her mother is Mrs. Kathryn Crook of Walnut Creek. Her father, now deceased, went into active Navy duty when she was 12 and was gone five years.

"While father was gone, mother was not well, and I was in charge."

Pat has been in charge ever since.

"I'm really quite an independent type person," she admits.

Jean Todd

Achieves individually

By JEANNE BRYANT
P-B Staff Writer

Self-motivation, a strong will and an intense interest in others are the characteristics that have made Mrs. Richard K. Todd a woman achiever not only this year, but for many years in Pomona.

Following the philosophy, "Think for yourself, interpret what to do and then do it," Jean Todd, a Pomona resident for 25 years, has shown determination to achieve those goals she feels would result in community improvement. She has worked toward effecting cooperation among people from all segments of Pomona and channeling the energies of young people in self-improvement.

Although she has participated as member of PTA groups, the hospital auxiliary and political committees, Mrs. Todd's greatest acheivements have been on a singular, individual basis, rather than as part of an organization. Her primary interst has been the youth of Pomona.

When Jean Todd recognizes the need for change, she likes "to get in there and hustle," and through her intereset the South Side Teen Post was born and a reading center for all ages has been developed.

When the teen post began in 1966 in a large room with inadequate plumbing facilities, Mrs. Todd brought together a group of interested people to support and improve the project. She solicited the aid of service clubs and through her interest the created an awareness in many people of the need of such a project in Pomona.

After a more permanent home for the teen post was found, Jean Todd assisted with the development of the North Side Teen Post. In an effort to stabilize and protect the existence of both teen posts, Mrs. Tood initiated a series of meetings of interested persons who formed the non-profit corporation, the Teen Post Sponsoring Group, Inc.

On a more personal level, Mrs. Todd volunteered many hours at the South Side Post tutoring reading and teaching sewing, and she and her husband helped in the rebuilding of the teen post after it had been burned in a fire.

Through her work at the Teen Post Jean Todd realized that a lack of study skills contributed to the social problems of many teen-agers. "I met so many young people who were so frustrated because they couldn't read and thus couldn't understand," the P-B Woman Achiever stated. For some reason they hadn't learned to read and weren't able to communicate."

With her usual determination Jean Todd resolved to do something to correct the situation. She had been trained as a teacher and received a B.A. degree at UCLA, but had married after college and did not seek a job. In 1968 she entered La Verne College to obtain a master's degree in the teaching of reading.

With the help of La Verne College teacher Joe Rosen, who gave her "the wisdom of his knowledge," Mrs. Todd developed a remedial reading program for the use of teachers at the sixth grade level. The multi sensory project incorporated the help of the student's family.

After an unsuccessful attempt to obtain a teaching job in the Pomona public schools the self-motivated Mrs. Todd started a search for another way to reach her goal. She looked at the large attic in her home and the plans started forming. With the help of her husband who did the carpentry work, Jean Todd opened the "Attic Reading Center."

In an atmosphere which enhances the learning process, Jean Todd works to build the self-confidence of her reading pupils and improve their communication skills. "As soon as a student gets going and his teacher at school sees an improvement, I get the child on his own," says the tutor. "I don't want to be a crutch, I want the student on his own."

"The child is in the center to learn. I don't want to say, 'This is what the child must learn.' I put myself in the student's place and figure out what practical skills he doesn't know and what he needs to learn to function and to get ahead."

Rosen helped Mrs. Todd choose the materials for her center and encouraged her to plan the center the way she thought it should be planned. "Mr. Rosen teaches people to think for themselves. He builds people up and I found that this is important to do with children and everyone."

Mrs. Todd works to build the self-confidence of her pupils, hoping that with added confidence other skills will improve also.

Jean Boyd Todd feels that her own self-confidence and determination comes from her upbringing as the only child of a farming family in Idaho. She married Richard Koenig Todd, a funeral director and life-long Pomona resident, after college graduation, and the couple recently celebrated its silver wedding anniversary. Possibly her greatest achievement has been raising her children, Mary, 23; Marty, 21, and Rick, 18, all third generation graduates of Pomona High School. Jean Todd states that she is a proponent of women's liberation, but follows it up by saying that "A mother is a great thing to be."

Jean Todd is a woman that has worked many years for her church, is devoted to her family and is intensely patriotic. She believes "in people being able to work to the best of their ability, no matter who they are, their sex, their race or their religion. I don't think the country can get ahead unless they do."

She sits in her Attic Reading Center, surrounded by quotations of great and famous people, and inspires her students to learn and become the best people they can be.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Conservation of America's natural resources is not a new concern. The following statement by President Theodore Roosevelt appeared in the 1909 World Almanac: "There is no other question now before the nation of equal gravity with the question of the conservation of our natural resources ... and so to handle the great sources of our prosperity as not to destroy in advance all hope of the prosperity of our descendants."

LWV urges political activity by public

The League of Women Voters is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that promotes political responsibility through informed and active citizen participation in government.

Heading the League in the Pomona area is Mrs. Robert Ringquist of 1105 Reno Ridge, Diamond Bar. Serving with her are Mrs. Werner Marti, first vice president; Mrs. Dwight Siler, second vice president; Mrs. Ronald Coonrod, secretary; Mrs. J. F. Mangrich, treasurer, and Mrs. Richard Larsen, publicity chairman.

MRS. ROBERT RINGQUIST

The 80 members of the organization meet twice a month. During the year the members held a candidates meeting for the school board election, participated in "Community Attitude Survey," held two meetings with guest speakers on solid waste, made studies on Los Angeles County land use and gave service to voters for the national elections in November by distributing ballot measures "pros and cons," sponsoring a speakers' bureau, registering voters and providing a telephone service and rides to the polls.

Mrs. Russell Martin of 1132 Baughman Drive, Claremont, is the president of the Claremont LWV. Other officers are Mrs. Gabriel Smilkstein and Mrs. Gerald Starrh, vice presidents; Mrs. Alonzo Stoddard, secretary; Mrs. Lee Goldstein, treasurer, and Mrs. William Dale, publicity chairman.

The 240 members of the Claremont group meet twice monthly

Activity highlights of the year included candidates meetings with those seeking assembly, state senate, and house of representatives seats; candidate meeting for the school board election; participation in the campaign to pass Proposition 20; land use conference and sponsorship of a program presenting both sides of the national election ballot.

The 48 members of the League of Women Voters of West San Bernardino County meet the second and fourth Thursday evenings and Friday mornings of each month.

Leading the group are Mrs. John Meyer of 2350 Orange Drive, Upland, president; Mrs. Arvid Wedin, vice president; Mrs. Harold McLaughlin, secretary; Mrs. S. L. Walters, treasurer, and Mrs. Richard Cobb, publicity chairman.

During the year the club members conducted a study on the Ontario Airport, studied the solid waste problem in the area and world trade policies and their effects on the state and the Los Angeles area, and sponsored local election candidate forums.

Girl Scouts develop growth

Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council is a girl-centered, informal, educational program. It involves girls and volunteer adults in an on-going partnership to help girls develop as creative, responsible individuals with a deep sense of personal growth.

Dr. John B. O'Hara of Upland is president of the Council, and Mrs. J. E. Perry is vice president. Mrs. Robert Muleady is recording secretary. Hugh Crombie is treasurer, and Mrs. Sanford Newton is publicity chairman.

The council represents more than 800 troops meeting in schools, churches and homes. Girl Scout activities encourage personal, social, ethical and individual skill development through a wide variety of projects in service, social and environmental action, youth leadership and career exploration.

Activities have included camping, home arts, service projects and creative arts approached from differing angles designed to expand awareness and imagination for the thousands of girl members who participate in the troops of the area.

A most unique adaption of the traditional Scouting program has taken place during the past year with the cooperation of the other two girl-serving agencies, YWCA and Camp Fire Girls.

YWCA offers variety

The YWCA is an agency which draws together women and girls of diverse experiences and faiths that their lives may be open to new understanding and deeper relationships and that together they may join in the struggle for peace and justice, freedom and dignity for all people, through a program that is social, recreational and educational.

Serving as president of the YWCA of Greater Pomona Valley is Mrs. John Mainiero of 1547 Granite Ave., Ontario. There are 500 adult members of the organization and 300 youth members and participants. The board of directors meets the third Thursday of each month. Membership luncheons are the second Wednesday of the month.

Also serving as officers of the YWCA are Mrs. Lawrence Woodruff, vice president; Mrs. James Kerwin, secretary; Mrs. Lloyd Van Deventer, treasurer, and Mrs. Donald Stewart, publicity.

During the past year monthly membership luncheons introduced members to the many activity programs offered by the YWCA and provided a variety of programs in several locations throughout the valley.

Classes and activities were sponsored by the YWCA for adult women and a new siminar, "La Raza: The Chicano in Our Community," was offered in an attempt to enrich understanding and communication.

A new YW Wives Club was organized for the Upland area and plans are being made for a program for single parents, especially the teen mother.

National Secretaries give award

The National Secretaries Association has as its president Mrs. William D. Lange, 1500 N. Euclid Ave., Upland.

Miss Alice Rose Wilson is vice president and Mrs. Earl Lane is recording secretary. Treasurer is Miss Jean Kenworthy while Mrs. Gordon Barrett serves as publicity chairman.

The 14 members meet on the second and fourth Wednesday.

Purpose of the club is to raise the standards of the secretarial profession.

During the year a scholarship was awarded to a secretarial student, Miss Linda Larson of Alta Loma High School. There were seminars, workships and three members took the CPS examination.

Preserve tan

Cocoa butter will help preserve your tan and prevent peeling. And for even more protection you can use cocoa butter soap to get the moisturizing effects every time you bathe.

Drip dishes

Clear plastic can covers — from coffee cans for example — make sightly drip dishes for your potted plants.

Concert Band is promoted by new club

Mrs. Harold Harts, 202 Garfield, is the newly installed president of the Friends of the Pomona Concert Band. The 35 members of this civic service club meet on the first Wednesday of each month for the purpose of encouraging and promoting activities in support of the Pomona Concert Band.

Other officers are Mrs. Carson Hawk, vice president; Elma Ries, secretary; Mrs. Paul Schuergens, treasurer.

In addition to the annual Corn Feed held in July the club hosted a Christmas party for members of the band and a reception for members and guests at the 25th winter concert at Grisworld's in February.

Thirty-one members of the Opti-Mrs. Club of Pomona meet on the first Thursday of each month.

President is Mrs. Marguerite Agee, 989-B N. San Antonio Ave. In addition, officers are: Mmes. Fred Hallock, vice president; Robert Frady, secretary; Dean Lewis, treasurer; Ted Rees, publicity chairman.

The club has as its purpose philanthropic work, monthly contribution to the Optimist Home for Boys in Los Angeles and local community youth work.

During the last year the club conducted a rummage sale, Christmas boutique and buffet and nine members attended the Opti-Mrs. convention.

There are 50 members in the Pomona Jay-C-Ettes and they meet on the first Thursday of the month.

Mrs. Douglas Hamilton, 691 Wellesley Drive, Claremont, is president of the organization and is assisted by Mmes. Jeff Sanner, vice president; Dee Wiley, secretary; Mike Wilcock, treasurer; and Mike Arrambide, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club is to assist the Pomona Jaycees with their social events and community projects; to provide opportunities for growth in leadership abilities; and to promote friendships among Jaycee wives.

Projects completed during the last year included participation in the Hike or Bike for the March of Dimes; contribution of 100 new toys to Santa Claus, Inc.; aiding the Inter-community Blind Center of Whittier in the purchase of a television reading device; and giving volunteer aid to the Red Cross.

The members assisted the Jaycees in helping staff the Los Angeles County Fair refreshment booth; hosted the pre-parade reception and post-parade banquet for Christmas parade; helped in the promotion of Pomona Valley Day at Disneyland and served as hostesses for the Miss Pomona Pageant.

Other officers of the 10-member group are: Mmes. Lee Beidleman, vice president; Leo Neeleman, secretary; Jorge Soares, treasurer; and Joe Baughman, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club, which meets on the second Monday of the month, is to aid and support educational and philanthropic enterprises including training and educating men and women through scholarships and awards; to promote friendship and fellowship among wives of Sertomans and to support the Sertoma Club.

Activity highlights include assisting at Casa Colina, distributing toys for Santa Claus Inc., sponsoring the Diane Samuels Kidney Transplant Fund, sponsoring a Girl Scout troop, a Guatemalan foster child, and the Walnut-Diamond Bar Girls' Softball League. To do this they have held potluck dinners, a garage sale and Las Vegas Night. The club also presented a youth service award to Judi Wong, a high school senior.

Mrs. Novita Cardin is president of the Eagles' Auxiliary. She is assisted by Mmes. Richard Warkentin, vice president; Henry Gunski, secretary; Gertrude Leppold, treasurer; and Margaret Wilson, publicity chairman.

The club's purpose is service to the community and support of the Eagles' organization.

During the year the club sponsored a hobo party, Christmas party and social gatherings. Money was raised for City of Hope, Muscular Dystrophy, Max Baer Heart Fund, Jimmy Durante Crippled Children's Fund and supported a workshop for retarded children.

Mrs. Robert Pitts, 379 Garfield Ave., Pomona, is president of the Emblem Club. Other officers are: Mmes. Barney Ross, vice president; David Haywood, secretary; William Parsonage, treasurer; and Henry Gunski, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club is service to the community and support to the Pomona Elks Lodge.

During the year the group supported the State Elks Cerebral Palsy project; gave three $100 scholarships to local high schools; carried on its charity march each month; contributed to Open Door, Gateway House, Operation Groovy, Meals on Wheels, YMCA camperships, Little League and Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets.

There are nine members in the Pomona Y's Menettes and they meet on the second Monday of the month.

Purpose of the club is to help the youth of the YMCA.

Mrs. Clarence Jackman, 193 Highgate Ave., Pomona, is president of the club. Other officers are Mmes. Lonard Drake, vice president; Elmer Le Donne, secretary; and Bob Mishler, treasurer.

The group raised funds by candy sales to help youth. Money was given toward Youth in Government program, for equipment and memberships. Had a program in which students who participated in Youth in Government program related their experiences in Sacramento.

MRS. CLARENCE JACKMAN

MRS. JOE GILLENTINE

Nursing mothers guided

Mrs. Joe Gillentine, 537 Cinderella Dr., Claremont, presides as leader at the 60-member meetings of La Leche League on the third Tuesday of each month.

The purpose of the club is to give nursing mothers information, encouragement and practical help through group discussion meetings and counseling. The group took part in the Southern California and Nevada Spring Symposium held at UCLA in March.

Mrs. Timothy E. Painter serves the club as co-leader and Mrs. Cecelia Stark is treasurer.

Foothill Guild aids children

MRS. KENNETH F. RUSSELL

The 35 members of the Foothill Guild for the Crippled Children Society, headed by Mrs. Kenneth F. Russell, 665 West 16th St., Claremont, meet on the second Friday of each month.

The purpose of the club is to aid, support and further the interest in and knowledge of the Crippled Children's Society for the benefit of the community.

Members have helped stuff campaign mailers, served as volunteer receptionists at the center and sponsored the opening of The Claremont Depot. The money from this restaurant opening will be used at the center to assist in the summer program or new programs as the center continues to expand.

Other officers are Mrs. John T. Tomlinson Jr., vice president; Mrs. T. Dwight Brown, secretary; Mrs. Ralph E. Gain, treasurer; and Mrs. J. P. Rimer, publicity chairman.

Veterans and families aided by auxiliaries

Pomona Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary 2018 meets on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month under the leadership of Mrs. Clyde McLaughlin, 3 Sunrise Lane, San Dimas. Other officers are: Mmes. Edward Nacker, vice president; Betty Klein, secretary-treasurer; and Cecilia Satterlee, publicity chairman.

The 91-member group prepared and served food for the Post activities, worked at the Pomona Boys Club on fund-raising luncheons, presented flags to schools and had one hospital day a month in the parapalegic ward of the Long Beach VA Hospital.

Miss Winifred Frater, 675 N. Caswell, is president of the Charles P. Rowe, Unit 30, American Legin Auxiliary. Assisting her are Mmes. Alred T. Davis, vice president; Edwin A. Galipo, secretary; Ford Ferris, treasurer.

The 117 members meet on the third Thursday of the month. This past year the club donated a T.V. to the patients of Long Beach VA Hospital, presented flags to youth groups and the Pomona Cemetery Association, and held annual Americanism Essay Contest locally.

The Keith Powell Unit 78, American Legion Auxiliary sponsored a representative to Girl's State, donated food baskets and aid to needy veterans and their families, gave flags to local scout troops and contributed to Friends of the Library.

Officers are Mrs. Wesley Osborne, 3346 Mural Dr., president; Freda Aiken, vice president; Ruba Loy, secretary; Lula Baughman, treasurer; and Marietta Osborne, publicity chairman. The 85-member club meets on the third Thursday of each month.

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit 112, Ontario, with 232 members, meets on the second Monday of every month. Officers are Mrs. Max Rowland, 8384 Via Ladera, Cucamonga, president; Margaret Dickson, vice president; Mrs. Harry Eason, secretary; Mrs. Earl Stephan, treasurer; and Mrs. Arthur A. Novelli, publicity chairman.

This past year the auxiliary participated in a rummage sale, fiesta, poppy sales, luau, joint activities with the post, child welfare, scholarships and Americanism Essays. All funds are used on committees for rehabilitation.

MRS. ELEANOR MARSCHALL

MRS. CYLDE McLAUGHLIN

The auxiliary presented flags to Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, visited shut-ins and did hospital sewing for veterans hospitals this past year. Meetings are held on the third Tuesday of each month.

The Vicksburg Woman's Relief Corps, Unit 37 is headed by Mrs. Stella Cook, 858 E. Eighth St., Pomona. Assisting her are Mrs. Anna Bentley, vice president; Mrs. Ernest L. Reinhard, secretary; Mrs. Virginia Spoonmore, treasurer; and Mrs. Rea Croxon, publicity chairman. The 62 members meet on the second Wednesday of each month.

Dinners, rummage sales and a country store enable the group to donate cookies, candy, games and other gifts to patients of the Sepulveda Hospital who are visited once a month.

All of the members of the group participate in a WRC social club on the fourth Wednesday of each month. Officers are Mmes. Ernest L. Reinhard, president; Anna Bentley, vice president; Virgina Spoonmore, secretary; Goldie Epley, treasurer; and Rea Croxon, publicity chairman. This branch supplies many of the items for sale in the country store as well as some of the gifts for the hospital.

Pomona Navy Mothers' Club, Unit 444 meets on the third Tuesday of each month. The club has donated three record players and a cassette tape deck to the hospital at Camp Pendleton. In addition they visit the patients and take snacks, gifts, records, tapes and games.

Funds for the group projects are earned through the sponsorship of the Pomona Valley Baby Pageant. Officers are Mrs. Marjorie Clark, 487 East Grand Ave., Pomona, president; Mrs. Georgia Grosdidier, vice president; Mrs. Eva Lee Lawson, secretary; Mrs. Elmer Burgess, treasurer; and Mrs. Lucille Bell, publicity chairman.

The 58 members of the American Gold Star Mothers, Pomona Chaper, meet on the second Wednesday of the month under the leadership of Mrs. Kenneth L. Bolton, 12386 Maxon Pl., Chino. Other officers are Mrs. Paul Hederman, vice president; Mrs. Ruth Tedrick, secretary; Mrs. Mary Carrier, treasurer; and Mrs. Eva Lee Lawson, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Bolton was the first woman to accept the torch from the Belgian Consul General in the 13th annual Sacred Torch ceremony held at Forest Lawn, Hollywood Hills on Veterans' Day. The organization donated to 13 hospitals throughout California, Arizona and Nevada, the Salvation Army Campership fund and gave Christmas couponbooks to the Long Beach Veterans' Hospital.

Widows, World War One has 27 members who meet on the second Sunday of the month. Chapter 44 was organized in November for the purpose of promoting legislation to give the widows more pension allowance and to provide a broader social life.

Officers are Mrs. Eleanor Marschall, 1120 Glen Ave., Pomona, president; Mrs. Bertie Kizziar, vice president; Mrs. Jean Spellman, secretary; Mrs. Alora Galliger, treasurer; and Mrs. Genoa Hurt, publicity chairman.

Transcribers type books for blind

Newly elected officers of the Pomona Valley Transcribers Guild are: Mmes. Marshall Mendel, president; Mrs. John Shibe, vice president; Mrs. J. L. Shumway, recording secretary; Mrs. Claude Culbert, treasurer; and Mrs. William Raburn, publicity chairman.

In addition to a business meeting once a month at the Ontario Public Library, members of the Guild spend hours transcribing printed books into Braille or large-print type. These books are provided to students for school work and to the general public for both educational and recreational reading.

After the books are transcribed, many are reproduced by means of a Thermoform process so that the same book may be distributed to other persons. The Ontario Public Library has many books available to the public which have been reproduced by Guild members.

All Braille typists are trained and meet specific requirements of perfection.

Keep the curl

A good setting lotion will help keep the curl in your hair during the summer's heat and humidity, but if your straight locks resist curling a professional permanent may be the answer.

Political activity encouraged by clubs

Local clubs of national political parties urge women to participate in political clubs to stimulate an active interest in government affairs, to increase the efficiency of popular government, to attain wider knowledge of the principals and practices of government and to have a voice in local and national government.

Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club, Fed., has 225 members and meets the second Thursday of each month. Officers are Mrs. Marvin Grove of 1785 Yorba Dr., Pomona, president; Mrs. Hollis Page, vice president; Mrs. Paul Weisend, secretary; Mrs. Robert Gustaveson, treasurer, and Mrs. Jack Fulton, publicity chairman.

During the year members of the club volunteered over 1600 hours working for local Republican candidates and 260 hours for Governor Ronald Reagan's tax initiative petition. They held three fund-raising events including a tea and tour of the collection of porcelain and crystal at Armstrong's; a luncheon and fashion show at Capistrano, and a "Day at the Swap Meet."

Through the Mamie Eisenhower Library the club contributed books to the public library, and members were sponsors of the Pomona Young Republicans and attended the southern division and Los Angeles County covventions.

Claremont Republican Women's Club, Fed., is headed by Mrs. Harry T. Boles of 3849 Mural Drive, Claremont.

Other officers of the club are Mrs. Harry McCarthy, vice president; Mrs. James Edwards, secretary; Mrs. Donald Cross, treasurer, and Mrs. Bernard Brown, publicity chairman. The club has 175 members and meets the third Wednesday of each month.

During the year the Claremont club sponsored a variety of programs, presented books to the Claremont High School Library and the public library, co-sponsored the Republican Headquarters with the Claremont Republican Club and held a patriotic dinner to honor Col. John Stavast, a former POW.

The Frances Reed Democratic Club has 76 members who meet the third Wednesday of each month. Mrs. Edward Goldstein of 2288 Halcyon Way, Pomona, is the president.

Also serving as officers are Mrs. Louie Robinson, vice president; Mrs. George McKoy, secretary; Mrs. Hyman Rosenberg, treasurer, and Mrs. Stephen Zetterberg, publicity chairman.

Activity highlights of the year included an all-day communications conference relating to freedom and responsibility of the press; workshops where candidate development and methods used by candidates to communicate with the voting public were studied; a conference on revenue sharing with Pomona and Claremont city officials; participation in the formation and staffing of a Pomona Democratic Headquarters, and a brunch exploring the role of women in politics.

MRS. RAYMOND SAILORS

NDGW preserves history

Rancho San Jose Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, has as its president, Mrs. Raymond Sailors, 11839 Crystal, Chino.

Other officers are Miss Annie Bidegain, vice president; Mrs. Senaida Baiz, secretary; Mrs. Donald Carpenter, treasurer; and Mrs. Alphonse B. Fages, publicity chairman.

The 70 members meet on the second the fourth Tuesday of the month.

Purpose of the club is patriotic preservation of California history and landmarks; support of NDGW Children's Foundation; veterans' welfare; and civic participation.

The club sponsored a fashion show and luncheon; named 15 of its members as Docents for the Historical Society of Pomona Valley; presented California flags to several foreign students and to the birthplace of Father Junipero Serra in Spain.

Help problem

No amount of make-up will hide a bad complexion. But a good cleansing routine will help problem skin. Start off with a cleanser and face brush for a deep cleansing of pores. Remove all make-up at night no matter how tired you are. A light moisturizer worn overnight is good for dry or normal skin. A face mask or astringent will help oily complexion.

Society honored

The organization, dedicated to furthering the interest and education in the care and culture of African Violets, has sixty members and meets on the 3rd. Monday of the month.

Mrs. A. Kennedy Baird, 1888 Morgan Ave., Claremont, president is assisted by Mrs. Frederic G. Astin, Jr., vice-president; Mrs. Edward-Pease, secretary; Mrs. Roy M. Wright, treasurer; and Mrs. Arlowe Collom, publicity.

Boy Scouts assisted by women

The Old Baldy Council, Boy Scouts of America Women's Service Board was recently organized.

The group meets on the third Thursday of the month with Mrs. Roger Wheeler, 2258 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, as president.

Other officers are Mmes. Robert Taylor, vice president; Mrs. Robert Shacklett, secretary; Mrs. Richard Kirkendall, treasurer; Mrs. Leslie Jann Jr., membership chairman.

Purpose of the club is to promote and advance the welfare of the Old Baldy Council. The main project is the Used Uniform bank.

The first activity held this spring was a tea and fashion show honoring Den Mothers in the council area. Other activities are planned.

Reduce bacteria

To reduce bacterial growth in picnic sandwiches, take a tip from commercial sandwich makers: use frozen bread and fillings chilled to 45 degrees or lower. Wrapped tightly in plastic and carried in an insulated container, they should be just right for eating when mealtime arrives.

Theater supported by group

There are 158 members in the Curtain Raisers of Garrison Theater who meet in October and Febuary and have a luncheon in May.

Purpose of the club is to enjoy, support and encourage attendance at student and professional theater. The club actively participates in the acquisition of essential capital equipment for the theater.

Mrs. Otto B. Christain, 2263 La Paz, Claremont is president of the group. Other officers are Mrs. John Esterline, vice president; Mrs. Eva Ballard, secretary; Mrs. Denman Gambill Jr., treasurer; and Mrs. Stanton P. Welsh, publicity chairman.

During the year the group heard Frank Capra, director, speak; staged a winetasting theater party in January; heard Director Delbert Mann speak in February when he also showed "Jane Eyre"; held a joint meeting with Honnold Library Society in April and heard Marion and Charles Holmes reading "Spoon River Anthology."

La Verne women assisted

The La Verne College Women's Club was organized to promote a fellowship among the women, other than students, who are associated with La Verne College and to be of service to the students, especially women students.

Mrs. Vernard Eller, 2448 Third St., La Verne, serves as president with assistance from Mrs. William Wagoner, vice president; Mrs. Dwight Hanawalt, secretary-treasurer and publicity chairman.

The 50 members meet on the fourth Monday of every month. The sharing of interterm experiences by both faculty and students was considered to be the outstanding event of the past year.

Told falsehoods to Watergate panel

Ehrlichman: Dean concealed facts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman defended President Nixon's response to Watergate today, testifying that rather than ordering a coverup, Nixon sought but failed "to obtain and publish a full, factual account" of the bugging incident.

Ehrlichman, a balding Seattle lawyer who served as Nixon's No. 2 aide at the White House until April 30, pinned the blame for Nixon's failure to learn the truth on presidential counsel John W. Dean III who, he said, concealed the facts from high officials and then told "falsehoods" before the Senate Watergate Committee.

He read a 30-page statement, then answered committee counsel Samuel Dash's questions about how two Watergate principals —E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy —while in the employ of the White House, had burglarized the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist to learn damaging facts about the man accused of leaking the Pentagon Papers.

While Ehrlichman testified, a spokesman for the President hinted that Nixon had no intention of complying with the subpoenas served on the White House Monday by the Senate committee and by Archbald Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor. Both sought tape recordings of Nixon conversations touching on Watergate, and the committee also sought White House papers.

The subpoenas —the first issued against a president since Thomas Jefferson was ordered to turn over letters in connection with the treason trial of Aaron Burr —were served when Nixon refused to surrender the materials voluntarily.

Gerald Warren, deputy press secretary, said Nixon would respond to the subpoenas "within the context" of his letters to Cox and Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., in which he refused to give up the papers and tapes on grounds he could not weaken the independence of the presidency.

Nixon said he had listened to some of the tapes and they would not answer the questions the committee is probing.

Warren said the tapes "have not been changed, have not been edited."

Ehrlichman told the senators that Nixon had been maligned by Dean and others, and been inaccurately portrayed as "paranoid, weird (and) psychotic on the subject of demonstrators or hypersensitive to criticism."

Dash questioned him about "The Plumbers" —the special White House unit, staffed by Liddy and Hunt and others — which had been created to counter news leaks.

After the Democratic breakin, Dash asked, wouldn't Ehrlichman have been embarrassed if word had leaked out that Hunt and Liddy, while in the White House employ, had broken into the Los Angeles office of Dr. Lewis Fielding?

No, Ehrlichman replied.

"It never was my view that Hunt and Liddy had done something that was completely irrational" since the Pentagon Papers case was so intertwined with the nation's security. He said a copy of the papers had "apparently' been delivered to the Soviet Union.

Deeply suntanned, Ehrlichman started out by looking at the committee directly and saying it would hear the truth from one in a position to know it.

Ehrlichman, in his statement promised he would answer questions about many issues including "the President's continued effort to obtain and publish a full, factual account of Watergate in its several aspects and why he never got it."

But the statement itself did not spell out why. It hinted that Dean was given the assignment and, because of his own Watergate involvement, concealed the truth from a President too occupied with more vital matters to worry much about either his election campaign or the Watergate break-in.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — An Ozark Air Lines Airliner, pounded by swirling winds and apparently struck by lightning, crashed in burning pieces Monday night. Thirty-six of the 44 persons aboard were killed.

The survivors included the pilot, copilot, and six passengers. Early today St. Louis County Hospital reported four of the survivors to be in critical condition, two serious and two more satisfactory.

A hospital spokesman said the discrepancy in the number of victims, earlier put at 38, came about because it had erroneously been believed that some disaster bags contained two victims when they only contained one.

A thunderstorm which many residents thought was a tornado was raging over the St. Louis area when the plane came down between two homes two miles from Lambert Field and across the street from the University of Missouri at St. Louis.

Chet Chickering, a former Air Force pilot who lives near the scene, said, "This huge bolt of lightning seemed to strike the plane while the plane was being buffeted by gusty winds.

"It kind of nosed down, then disappeared from my view. I couldn't see any funnel cloud, but the plane was buffeted pretty badly."

Witnesses said the plane came apart

9 die, 40 hurt as blaze traps hotel tourists

OBAN, Scotland (UPI) — Screaming guests leaped from upper floor windows early today when a looby fire gutted a crowded 6-story tourist hotel.

Hospitals reported at least nine persons were killed and more than 40 injured.

"Some of the guests managed to escape by sliding down sheets and blankets tied to the windows, but others had to jump as the flames reached their rooms," a witness said. "It was terrible. You could hear bones cracking as they hit the ground."

The blaze first swept through the lobby of the Esplanade Hotel in this western seaside resort, cutting off the exits and trapping the guests in their rooms.

As the flames crept higher, many of the residents decided to jump for fear of being burned alive, firemen said.

Oban ranks among the most famous resorts of the Western Highlands of Scotland and annually draws large numbers of both British and foreign tourists.

Predict smog alert in area

The San Bernardino County Air Pollution Control District has predicted a smog alert Wednesday with heavy eye pollution because of an ozone count ranging from .30 to .35 parts per million.

A community alert was called Monday afternoon in Upland with .44 parts per million and visibility of one to three miles due to fog, haze and photochemical aerosol.

The Monday report for Chino reflected a .27 parts per million and visibility of one to three miles.

$30,000 calf smuggling ring broken; Chino, Ontario dairymen victims

ONTARIO — West End sheriff's deputies said today they have broken a $30,000 a year calf theft ring operating in the Chino and Ontario areas, and recovered more than $3,000 in stolen calves and milking machines.

Because of the rising costs of beef, Chino and Ontario dairymen for the past year have been plagued by numerous calf thefts.

West End sheriff's deputies said that since July of last year between 65 and 70 calves have been stolen from more than a dozen local diary farms. "Those are only the thefts reported," said Detective Joe Henry. "There may have been others that were not reported."

Henry said deupties got their first break in the cattle theft ring July 13 when Chino diaryman Sylvester Vander Tuig caught several men attempting to steal one of his newborn calves. Vander Tuig, armed with a shotgun, told the men to halt, but was forced to fire when they tried to flee. One of the suspects, Charles Lane, 20, of Downey, was shot in the buttocks and captured by the dairyman.

A subsequent investigation by the sheriff's department resulted in the arrest of Robert Holman, 18, of 7711 Riverside Drive, Chino, and two juveniles who are charged with grand theft. Holman and Lane are now awaiting preliminary hearing on the matter in West Valley Municipal Court. The juveniles have been petitioned to Juvenile Court.

Henry said that last Thursday they went to Holman's home and discovered a number of suspected stolen calves grazing in a corral. Then they found suspected stolen milking machines in an undisclosed Ontario location. Holman's

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said today the secret bombing raids over Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 "were authorized at the highest level."

"There has been no usurpation of civilian authority," he said. "Military officials have meticulously followed the orders of civilian authorities."

Schlesinger discussed the secret raids on Cambodia border sanctuaries with reporters after testifying at a Senate hearing that he has no present intention of asking President Nixon to seek congressional authority for continuation of the Cambodia bombing after the Aug. 15 deadline imposed by only foreigners staying in the hotel.

4 air pirates arrested by Libyan police

Hijackers release hostages, blow up jet

CAIRO (UPI) — A Japanese Air Lines 747 hijacked five days ago in Europe landed today in Benghazi, Libya where the air pirates released their 154 hostages unharmed and then destroyed the $25 million plane with hand grenades which exploded "like a string of firecrackers."

The Middle East News Agency said the four hijackers were arrested by Libyan police. It said two of them were Arabs, one was Japanese and the fourth "looked like a European." A fifth hijacker, a woman with an Ecuadorian passport, was killed when her hand grenade exploded at start of the saga last Friday.

Japan Air Lines said there were 133 passengers and 21 crew members aboard the plane and that it has dispatched a relief plane to fly them to some European city, Rome or Paris.

The motives of the hijackers in the five-day drama remained a mystery.

Early in the hijacking they said they sought the release of Kozo Okamoto, 24, a Japanese kamikaze guerrilla serving a life sentence in Israel for an attack on Tel Aviv's Lod Airport which killed 26 persons in May 1972. Israel said it would not release Okamoto and the hijackers never mentioned Okamoto again. Nor did they make any attempt to bargain the plane and passengers for money, officials said.

The Israelia newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khaddafy either suggested the hijacking or gave his blessing to it to avenge the Israeli downing of a Libyan airliner Feb. 21 that killed 108 of the 113 persons aboard.

It said Khaddafy had proposed to Egypt shortly after the downing that a suicide attack be carried out on Haifa as revenge, that the Japanese hijackers referred to themselves as the 'Saints of Mt Carmel" —Mt. Carmel is in the Haifa vicinity —and that "they went to Libya when everything else went wrong."

The giant red-and-white Japanese 747 landed at Benghazi at 8:30 p.m. (2:30 a.m. EDT) after a three-hour 35-minute flight from Damascus, Syria, where it refuelled during the night. As the plane approached the airport a hijacker told the control tower if they did not get permission to land, "we will blow up the plane in the air." Two Arab nations earlier had refused the hijackers permission to land.

As the 747 was taxiing to a halt, the hijackers ordered the passengers and crew to get out, leaving their baggage behind. They started sliding down emergency chutes while the aircraft was still rolling and everybody was out within four minutes, an airport official said.

"They rushed all over the airport and airport police and Libyan soldiers collected them in cars," the official said.

The passengers and crew, who had been held under the menace of grenades and pistols for 87 hours, scattered in panic across the airfield as grenades began exploding aboard the plane. The plane exploded and caught fire, splattering wreckage across such a wide area Libyan officials closed the airport to traffic.

The Arab who did most of the speaking for the hijackers claimed to belong to a little-known Palestinian guerrilla organization called the "Sons of the Occupied Territories." The Japanese said they were from the revolutionary Japanese "Red Army."

Many of the passengers were in poor condition, but none was seriously hurt, an airport official said. As they gathered in the airport lounge some time after the landing, many of the passengers looked dazed.

"Some had bandages on their arms and legs and others were holding their stomachs," the official said.

He said two were taken to hospital for treatment.

The 747 had just left Amsterdam on a flight to Tokyo, by way of Anchorage, Alaska, when the hijack started dramatically Friday afternoon with an accidental grenade explosion that killed a young woman on the hijackers' team.

The plane's chief purser was injured in the explosion.

Gal bank robber gives women's lib new wrinkle

A woman with frosted brown hair and wearing sunglasses got $1,060 early Monday afternoon at Crocker National Bank, 17369 Valley Blvd., after shoving a note demanding cash to a teller.

The teller, Theresa Lowe, 21, said the woman handed her a note with $2,000 written on it shortly after 1 p.m. She said the woman told her to stamp the note as she would a check and to hand her the cash. The teller was warned not to give her marked money. After getting the cash, the woman walked out. No weapon was shown.

The robber was described as white, about 30, 5 feet 6 and weighing about 120 pounds. She carried a large white purse.

HISTORIC ACTION — Rufus Edmiston, representing the Senate Watergate Committee, arrives at the Executive Offices Building to present a subpoena to representatives of the president for taped conversations dealing with the scandal. With him at right is Polly DeMent, secretary to the committee, and a horde of newsmen.

166 years ago, subpoena served on a president—and he complied

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon became the first President in 166 years to be served as subpoena when he refused to surrender tapes and documents related to the Watergate affair. chibald Cox. He said he was withholding almost certainly will end up in the U.S. Supreme Court

Nixon formally refused to provide the recordings and documents Monday to the Senate Watergate Committee and special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. He said he was withhtlding the material to protect the independence of the presidency and because its release would not settle the "central issues" in the Watergate probe.

The committee and the prosecutor immediately served Nixon with subpoenas seeking to gain possession of the material. But White House aides made it clear Nixon would refuse to comply with the subpoenas, opening the way for court tests.

It was the first time a subpoena had been addressed to a President since Thomas Jefferson received one in 1807. Jefferson was asked to furnish documents in connection with the treason trial of Aaron Burr, and he did so.

No precedent

Cox said Nixon's stand was "without legal foundation."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate investigating committee, strongly denounced Nixon's action. Ervin said he deeply regretted Nixon's stand because he believed "the Watergate tragedy is the greatest tragedy that this country has ever suffered."

Ervin said he had hoped the tapes would "shed some light on that crucial question: How did it happen that burglars were caught in the headquarters of the opposition party with President's campaign funds in their pockets and their hotel bedrooms..."

An ANALYSIS

"And I don't think the people of the United States are interested so much in the abstruse arguments about the separation of powers or executive privilege as they are in finding the answer to that question," Ervin said.

Nixon rejects meetings

Ervin, who is considered the Senate's chief authority on the Constitution, said he believed the doctrine of separation of powers could not be applied to "alleged illegal activities or political campaign activities." Nixon said in a separate letter that he had decided a meeting with Ervin agreed to earlier would serve "no useful purpose."

"At long last I've got something I agree with the President on in connection with this matter," Ervin said. "If the President doesn't think that any useful purpose can be obtained by our meeting together, I will not dissent from that view. So I won't ask for the privilege of visiting the White House."

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., the committee's Republican vice chairman, said he agreed to the issuing of the subpoena because he felt the material was "essential" to the investigation. He said he was unhappy it was "necessary for us to come to the brink of a constitutional confrontation."

Criticism of Nixon's decision also came from Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., the Republican national chairman in 1972. He said it was his view that "the revelation that these tapes are available hasn't helped the President's cause with the American people."

Nixon's attorneys must answer the subpoenas in U.S. District Court in Washington at 10 a.m. Thursday. It was expected the issue eventually would go to the Supreme Court. The court is in recess until Oct. 1, but the chief justice may convene the court for a special term on extraordinary issues.

Nixon was conferring with a group of New England lawmakers in his oval office when the subpoenas were served and accepted by his attorneys in the executive office building next door to the White House. Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., described the President as "drawn but spunky." Nixon was released from the hospital Friday after being treated for viral pneumonia.

Garment received papers

The Senate committee voted unanimously to issue the subpoenas. Rufus E. Edmisten, an aide to Ervin who handed the subpoenas to White House counsel Leonard Garment, told reporters that "we had a nice friendly chat. The papers are in their hands now and the committee will be waiting."

Cox sought eight specified sections of the tape recordings. News of their existence electrified the Watergate hearings last week when FAA Administrator Alexander Butterfield, a former presidential aide, testified that Nixon has automatically recorded conversations in his offices since the spring of 1971. The White House claims Nixon has now shut off the system because it has been "compromised" by disclosure.

Nixon heard tapes

Nixon told the committee that "the tapes are entirely consistent with what I know to be the truth and what I have stated to be the truth."

Aides said that Nixon heard the tapes early in June, about two weeks after he had issued his May 22nd statement in which he categorically denied knowledge of the Watergate affair. It was not clear why he did not use the tapes in preparing the statement but apparently wanted to double check before his former counsel John W. Dean III appeared before the committee. As a witness in late June, Dean accused Nixon of participating in the cover up.

Nixon said he was keeping the tapes under his "sole personal control" and none will be transcribed or made public.

"As in any verbatim recording of informal conversations," he told the committee, "they contain comments that persons with different perspectives and motivations would inevitably interpret in different ways."

Lady Bird takes quick Europe tour

ROME (UPI) — Lady Bird Johnson, widow of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, passed through Rome Monday but didn't tarry while on a family tour of Europe.

Mrs. Johnson, accompanied by Charles and Linda Bird Robb, flew in from Tehran and immediately left by car for a two-day stay in Florence, the U.S. Embassy said.

Mrs. Johnson plans to leave Florence Thursday, go to Milan for a day and then take a train for Salzburg, Austria.

Release tapes, says former Nixon official

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — Former acting FBI director William D. Ruckelshaus said Monday he would have been more profound in his remarks with President Nixon, had he known his Oval Office conversations were taped.

But Ruckelshaus, who just ended a 75-day tour as the FBI's top administrator, said Nixon should release the tapes sought by the Watergate committee.

"I would like to see the tapes made public, but you've got to wait and see what the President's arguments are," Ruckelshaus said. Ruckelshaus said Watergate had left the feeling that "somehow our institutions should no longer be trusted." He said the government should take a stance of absolute honesty.

Resignation to end TV fear campaign

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clay T. Whitehead, President Nixon's communications director, who gained notroiety last year when he suggested that local stations refuse to run network news they considered unfair to President Nixon, will soon resign, New York magazine reported Monday.

The magazine said sources close to the administration disclosed that Whitehead's resignation will end the White House's attempts "to frighten the (television) networks and independent stations" into being friendlier to the administration.

The magazine said in its current edition that the White House had not decided whether to appoint a successor or abolish the job.

Colonel's successor resigns his position

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — John Y. Brown Jr., who turned fried chicken franchises into one of the world's largest food service operations, resigned Monday as chairman of the board of Kentucky Fried Chicken Inc.

Under Brown's leadership, the firm grew into an organization with sales in excess of $700 million with outlets in 25 foreign counties. He said he would remain as chairman of Heublein, Inc., a subsidiary acquired by KFC two years ago.

"I will always treasure my memories and experiences with KFC and my association with Colonel Harland Sanders and all of the employes and franchises that made KFC the nation's most exciting growth company in the 60's," he said.

Sousa's descendant leads the band

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A famous rame struck up the band at an Occidental college summer concert Monday night. Swinging one of his great grandfather's baton's ("It's my prized possession") was John Phillip Sousa IV, 25.

The descendant of the famous march composer has not followed in his namesake's footsteps. His own musical career was limited to some flute playing, which ended when he lost some teeth in a college football scrimmage. But he does make guest appearances.

Sousa, an employe of the Los Aneles County Republican Central Committee, is a fan of his ancestor's works. "I'v heard 'Stars and Stripes Forever' hundreds and hundreds of times, but it still sends a shiver down my back," he said. "It's exciting music, very American, the type that won't die out."

Calf thefts . . .

father, Manuel Holman, 43, was arrested on suspicion of receiving stolen property. The elder Holman is awaiting preliminary hearing on that charge.

Henry said officiers are still searching for several other men in connection with the cattle theft ring.

"We believe that we may have cleared at least 70 per cent of all the calf thefts in the area since last year," said Henry. "We haven't had a calf theft since last week. Before that the thieves were averaging at least one or two calves a week. Sometimes they would steal as many as eight." He said fouldsteal as many as eight." He said the sale of the stolen calves may have netted the suspects $30,000 in the last year.

Henry said the theft operation would work this way:

The thieves would drive around the Chino and Ontario dairy areas during the day searching for newborn calves. That night they would return to the dairies and load the 70-to-80 pound calves into a car or cars.

"Can you believe loading four or five calves into a small car and driving them away?" said Henry. "But that's how we believe they did it."

After stealing the calves the thieves would do one of three things: They would take them to the Ontario location and feed them a few days until they could be sold to a "fence" or take them to the calf auction held in Chino weekly. The other way was to take them to the corner of Chino-Corona Road and Pine Avenue near the Vera Vlla Market the next morning and sell them to calf buyers who usually meet there in the morning.

"This is a big business today," said Henry, "because of the premium prices paid for beef. We think it reaches statewide. We are almost certain the same calf theft ring operating in this area may have also operated in the Riverside area.

Tahoe planners reject hotel's expansion bid

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (UPI) — The staff of the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency has recommended denial of a proposed major expansion for Harvey's hotel-casino at Stateline.

The staff instead suggested Monday the proposed enlargement be scaled down before approval is given.

'Frightening' disclosures feared over Pentagon 'deceit' in bombings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, believes that a number of "frightening" disclosures about Pentagon deceit over the bombing of Cambodia before May, 1970, may emerge soon.

The Senate Armed Services Committee began an investigation Monday into the secret bombing of Cambodia for 14 months before the U.S. invasion, which President Nixon said marked the first aerial attacks over the country.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim testified in closed session Monday about charges from a former Air Force major that records were falsified to show no raids over Cambodia, although the 3,630 B52 sorties there beginning in March, 1969, dropped more than 100,000 tons of bombs, according to acting chairman Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.)

Hughes said he did not believe Friedheim's claim that the apparent deception was a mistake.

"To me it wasn't a mistake," said Hughes. This was set up deliberately to keep the information from the American people, Congress and this committee."

Hughes said: "The fact that these massive military operations and widespread falsifications of official reports could be kept secret so long convinces me that in this jungle of secret warfare and official deceit, there are uncharted depths perhaps more frightening than what has yet been disclosed."

Symington, angry over what he called a case of the Pentagon obtaining congressional appropriations under false pretenses, said Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, would be called to testify next week.

"We intend to pursue the matter and find out whom it was who gave the orders for tactical and strategic bombing and who gave the orders to falsify records," said Symington.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, testifying before a House appropriations subcommittee, dismissed the charges of deceit, saying the false information was "improperly sent to the Hill, for which the department has indicated its regrets."

"To say that these reports have been falsified is quite misleading in this case," eaid Schlesinger.

At the Pentagon, Lt. Gen. Daniel James Jr. said the Air Force is investigating charges made by former pilot Capt. Gerald J. Greven of Miami that U.S. planes bombed a Viet Cong hospital in 1969 contrary to the Geneva Convention rules of war.

and burst into flames upon impact. But the deaths—largely in the back area of the Fairchild-Hiller 227 Turboprop—were not attributed to fire.

Dr. D.A. Gardner, aviation medical examiner for the Federal Aviation Agency, said, "These people died from impact. The airplane stopped and they didn't... All the bodies were heavily contaminated with fuel, but there was no fire over the bodies."

The plane sheared off trees as it came down in the storm. One of the trees smashed through the roof and into the kitchen of Mr. and Mrs. William McCollum.

"We thought it was a tornado hitting the house and we went to the floor. Then we looked outside and saw the plane and the fire, so we took off running."

Howard Porter came running from his home to the crash site the first person to get there— entered the plane, and began slicing safety belts with a knife.

"One man was pinned in there real close to the fire and the fire was burning real close," he said. "The plane was busted out all over the place. People were pinned in it and they were hollering and screaming.

"I couldn't distinguish whether some were dead or alive."

The plane was Ozark Flight 809 from Nashville, Tenn., to St. Louis with stops in Clarksville, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Marion, Ill., where it made the last stop before the crash.

Clothes from suitcases on the plane were strewn outside the wreckage. Witnesses said shoes and socks were knocked off the feet of many of the victims.

The plane was ripped apart in the crash, and pieces of the fuselage were spread over several backyards in the neighborhood.

Financial report disclosed

Chrysler can't plead poverty this year, says union official

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp.'s position as a likely strike target in auto contract talks this summer is even stronger with the release of a financial report showing a $198.4 million profit in the first six months of 1973.

Chrysler's profit report Monday was the first from the major automakers and added weight to the demands of the United Auto Workers for a "share of the pie." Financial reports from General Motors and Ford later this week are expected to follow the record trend of Chrysler.

Fraser pointed out Chrysler's shaky financial position in 1970 — when contracts were last negotiated—let the No. 3 automaker off the hook then. In the first half of 1970, Chrysler lost $19.2 million. Profits so far this year are more than double the earnings in all of 1971 and almost equals all of 1972.

For its economic share, the UAW has demanded better inflation protection in the form of a modernized cost-of-living formula, a "substantial" wage increase, a $650 a month pension for workers retiring after 30 years of service regardless of age and a better medical and dental care plan.

Auto company negotiators have yet to put a price tag on the demands, but have said a contract settlement including all of the union's demands would exceed Phase IV guidelines.

Fraser said Chrysler this year "should be considered equally with Ford and General Motors" as possible strike targets. The target company is selected about two weeks before contracts expire Sept. 14 and must come to a tentative pattern-setting contract or face a strike while its competitors continue to build new cars.

Proposal assures workers of retirement funds

Big banks target of private pension system reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader joined Saturday with Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., in calling for reform of private pension systems and proposing several steps to help assure that workers get money promised them after retirement.

Nader and Hart, who intends to introduce legislation embodying their proposals, recommended licensing of private pension funds by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), and told a news conference they were concerned particularly about concentration of pension funds held by big banks.

Of an estimated total of $166 billion in pension funds across the nation, Hart said about $100 billion is held by banks and their trust departments —with 43 per cent of that amount in the hands of four New York banks which he did not identify.

"To compound this situation," Nader said, "the big financial institutions lend or invest the funds in other big financial institutions."

Under the Nader-Hart plan, workers would be allowed to select whatever SEC-licensed retirement fund they want in making their pension contributions. They also would have immediate vesting rights — eligibility for a pension —and, no matter how many times they changed jobs, they would be guaranteed portability, meaning they could carry accumulated pension rights to a new job.

Moreover, workers would get a share of the benefits, or earnings, from their contributions and would be issued a passbook like that given by a bank for a savings account. The passbook would show the total amount credited to the worker's account and would project yearly pension payments the employe would receive at different retirement dates.

Workers could retire at any time, but only once, and the pension payments would begin immediately, based upon the amount in the employe's account plus earnings from his or her contributions.

The Senate Labor Committee already has completed work on a pension reform bill that would give a worker 100 per cent vesting rights after 15 years on the job, provide federal insurance against plans that fail, and permit a voluntary program of portability.

The Senate Finance Committee is rewriting that bill, and a House Labor subcommittee plans next week to start drafting its own pension reform legislation.

Obituaries

Mrs. Mary E. Young

CHINO — Former Chino resident Mary Elizabeth Young, wife of John E. Young, died in Bozeman, Mont., last Wednesday following a short illness.

Mrs. Young was born in 1909. She was a graduate of Mt. San Antonio College and was a member of the Chino Methodist Church. She was a former school teacher in Chino. She and her husband moved to Santa Barbara following his retirement. They were visiting in Montana.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. David Deihl of Cheney, Wash.; a son, Jere Groninger of San Bernardino; a brother, three sisters and 10 grandchildren.

Services were held in Billings, Mont.

Harry B. Wilson

POMONA — Funeral services were held in Yucca Valley today for former Pomona resident Harry Blaine Wilson who died last Friday at the High Desert Convalescent Hospital following a long illness.

Burial was in Twentynine Palms cemetery.

Mr. Blaine was born Jan. 19, 1887, in Troy, Kan., and came to California in 1916. He lived in Pomona for 40 years before moving to Yucca Valley in 1963.

He is survived by two sons, Chester M. of Lakehead, and M.H. Wilson of Yucca Valley; four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Wiesels and Son Mortuary, Yucca Valley, handled the arrangements.

Mrs. Callie J. Huie

CHINO — Mrs. Callie J. Huie, wife of John R. Huie of Chino, died Sunday at the San Dimas Convalescent Hospital. She was 85.

Mrs. Huie came to California from Illinois 47 years ago, and had lived in Chino for most of the time since. Survivors besides her husband include two grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, one great-great-granchild.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. at the Rainbow Chapel at Rose Hills Memorail Park, Whittier, with burial to follow.

Edward J. Kinney

POMONA — Edward J. Kinney of 3106 N. Garey Ave. died Sunday afternoon at Rancho Los Amigos in Downey.

Mr. Kinney was born in Cuero, Tex., Nov. 6, 1920. He came to Pomona in 1948. He was an Army veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his widow, Della D., a son, Edward of Los Angeles; a stepson, Daniel Alvarez of Yuma, Ariz.; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Diana Velarde of Pomona; and three grandchildren.

Services will be held in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona at 3 p.m. Wednesday. Burial will be in the Pomona Cemetery.

Ellis W. Johnson

CHINO — Ellis William Johnson, 12972 10th St., died Saturday in Pomona Valley Community Hospital following a short illness.

Mr. Johnson was born March 3, 1894, in Denver, Colo. He came to Chino in 1946 from Fresno. He was a retired carpenter. He was a member of the Country Church in Ontario and American Legion Post 299 in Chino, and was past commander of the World War I Barracks in Chino.

He is survived by his widow, Alma; three daughters, Mrs. Joyce Gibbons and Mrs. Evelyn Starnes, both of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Catherine Santana of Los Angeles; two sons, Robert of Huntington Beach and Roy Bradley of Chino; several grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Services will be held Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in the Griffith Mortuary Chapel. Burial will be in Pomona Cemetery.

David E. Parker Jr.

POMONA — Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the Chruch of Our Heritage at Forest Lawn Covina Hills for David E. Parker Jr. of Pomona, who drowned Saturday while scuba diving in the ocean near Newport Beach.

Services will begin at 2 p.m. with burial following.

He was born Aug. 2, 1955, in Elyria, Ohio, and moved to Pomona 13 years ago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David E. Parker, with whom he resided at 1030 Sheridan Ave. He was a student at Pomona High School and a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Pomona.

In addition to his parents, Parker is survived by two sisters, Cynthia of the home, and Mrs. Deborah Balzar of Ontario; and two grandmothers, Mrs. Mildred Parker and Mrs. Emily Vanek, both of Elvria.

James R. Steffen

CLAREMONT — James R. Steffen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Steffen of 611 Purdue Drive, died Monday morning in Pacific State Hospital.

He was born Sept. 24, 1955, in Los Angeles and had lived in the Pomona Valley all of his life.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Philip L. and Paul, and a sister, Jody, all of Claremont.

Private services were held. Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona was in charge of arrangements.

Frances C. Traister

POMONA — Mrs. Frances C. Traister, wife of Thomas A. Traister of 11013 Kadota Ave., died Monday in Pomona Valley Community Hospital following a short illness.

Mrs. Traister was born Dec. 25, 1899, in Stevenville, Tex. She came to Pomona in 1934 from Oklahoma. She was a member of the Church of Christ, the Pomona Senior Citizens, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Disabled American Veterans, the Navy Mothers and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the World War I Barracks.

Besides her husband, she is survived by six sons, Charles R. and Carl D. of Chino, Loren G. and Robert L. of Pomona, Francis W. of Upland and Bill of Tustin; three daughters, Mrs. Lucille Ziemann of Miami, Okla., Mrs. June Erro of Fontana and Mrs. Pansy Spoulos of San Dimas; a sister, Mrs. Wanda Mathews of Fontana; 32 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Services will be held Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. Burial will be in Crestlawn Memorial Park in Riverside.

Late night robbery of Kwik-Stop

The robber was described as white, in his late teens or early 20's, 5 feet 9, 150 pounds, with dirty blond hair and wearing a yellow shirt and dark trousers.

A clerk, Robert Buzek, 27, of La Puente, told police that the suspect entered the store, pulled a gun, and ordered him to put the money from the register in a small brown bag which had a figure six on it. He then told Buzek to lie on the floor, and fled.

Grandma gets prison term

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — Susan Reid was sentenced Monday to 120 days in jail and three years probation for attempting to extort money from a North Hollywood grocery store.

Mrs. Reid pleaded guilty to charges she walked into the store and demanded a shopping bag full of money, saying she needed it to free her grandchildren, who were being held hostage in a motel.

She returned the money later and was arrested.

Mrs. Reid is 72. She is currently on probation for a similiar offense in Nevada.

Judge adds tip

LONDON (UPI) — A London judge ordered a woman who tried to avoid paying a $1.83 taxi fare to pay it Monday—and to give the cabbie an extra 12 cents.

"I don't see," said the judge, "why the driver shouldn't get a tip."

Easily predictable

27-day pattern controls winters in Southland

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California's winter weather is controlled by 27-day cycles that can provide accurate predictions for years in advance of rain, wind, peak smog days and temperature fluctuations, two UCLA reseacrchers say.

"Amateur weather observers can plan events months ahead by observing and noting the beginning of the winter cycles," said Ronald Rosenberg.

Rosenberg and Paul Coleman Jr., geophysicists, said Monday the key to the system is the date of the first significant rainfall —more than a quarter inch —during the fall.

From then on, they said, stormy days come in 27-day cycles, each of which is divided into a "rain half" and "dry half" period, each of a little more than 13 days.

Because the storms disperse the smog, accurate predictions can be made of which winter days will he the smoggiest, they said, and because periods of cold weather and Santa Ana winds appear to follow a related pattern with the rainstorms, they too can be predicted.

Coleman and Rosenberg were studying the effects of the solar wind on the earth's atmosphere for NASA when they discovered the 27-day pattern in computerized records of Los Angeles rainfall from 1929 to 1971.

From their findings, last autumn they prepared a table covering the coming winter, which turned out to be one of the wettest, stormiest winters in Southern California in years.

The predictions were not 100 per cent accurate, they said, but were so close so often that they consider the process valid.

Using Oct. 14 as the reference point, the date of the first heavy rain, they found that only seven of the 35 rainy days that followed fell in the "dry" periods they had predicted. They found they could "automatically forecast the rainy intervals correctly 64 per cent of the time, for months in advance," Rosenberg said.

In some periods, the cycles remain "in phase" for years at a time, they said. A forecaster who understood the system could have predicted rainy periods five years ahead of time for the period between 1966 and 1971, they said.

They are not sure of the source of the 27-day cycle, they said, but suspect it is related to the seasonal movement of the Polar air mass and the high pressure system over the Pacific between Hawaii and the West Coast.

Rosenberg said that as soon as the first major rainfall this autumn, he will prepare a table forecasting the weather for the rest of the winter.

SKYSCRAPER ABLAZE — Firemen battle fire which burned out 14 floors of 44-story Avianca Tower, tallest building in the Colombian capital of Bogota. At least four persons died and 132 were injured.

More bodies sought in skyscraper fire

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Police dug through fire-scarred debris today of the 44-story Avianca tower building, Bogota's tallest, for more victims of Monday's fire which killed four persons and injured 63, gutting 30 floors of the structure.

Only the rescue efforts of a fleet of helicopters which airlifted more than 300 persons off the roof of the burning skyscraper kept down the death toll. Authorities feared, however, there could be more bodies in the still smoking ruins.

The 12-hour blaze broke out at 7:45 a.m. on the 14th floor with only about 450 of the 1,500 persons that usually work in the building on hand because of the early hour. Within minutes the blaze spread upward and a panic stricken man and woman leaped to their death from a window of the 17th floor, seeking to escape the flames. The other two known deaths were attributed to asphyxiation.

Thousands of soldiers were called out to isolate the area and handle the huge crowds that turned out to watch the fire, hampering firemen's efforts. Every piece of firefighting equipment in Bogota was used to fight the blaze, and other equipment brought in from the nearby cities of Girardot and Villavicencio.

35 Americans died in Tahiti air crash

PAPEETE, Tahiti UPI) — The crash of a Pan American World Airways 707 which killed 78 persons when it fell into the sea off Tahiti Sunday night took the lives of 35 Americans, including a family of six from Hillsborough, Calif., and a family of four from New York.

Only one person, James Campbell, 27, of Toronto, Ont., survived when Pan American Airways flight 816 plunged into the South Pacific a mile off Papeete port on a flight from Auckland, N.Z., to Los Angeles and San Francisco via Papeete.

A total of 79 passengers and crew was aboard the plane. Reports from Hillsborough, Calif., said the dead included 18 Californians, six of them from the John Nelson family. The other family wiped out was that of Thomas McWeeney, Hong Kong manager for First National City Bank, his wife and two children.

The First National City Bank in New York said McWeeney, who would have been 41 on August 4, his wife Sue and his two children, Thomas, 13, and Elizabeth, 12, were killed in the crash.

More than 24 hours after the crash, 11 bodies had been recovered from the oil-coated area where a flotilla of launches, pleasure boats and fishing craft brought debris from the plane ashore for examination by experts. Police said they had identified four of the 11 corpses, but they did not disclose their names.

Tahitian officials awaited experts from France —Tahiti is a French territory—and the United States to start a commission of inquiry into the crash.

Contrary to reports Monday, officials said today the pilot did not radio a distress signal nor contact the control tower at Papeete between his take-off and the crash. Earlier statements by airline officials at Papeete airport said the pilot asked for an emergency landing after his windshield shattered.

Witnesses said there was a loud report, apparently from the plane's engines, and then silence, as if the engines had failed.

Police seek kidnaper of girl, 10

CHINO — Police this morning were continuing their investigation into a report that a 10-year-old Chino girl was kidnaped Friday in the 13000 block of 11th Street but managed to escape from her captor minutes later.

The parents of the little girl made the report Friday afternoon. The little girl claimed that a man in a late model white car grabbed her from in front of her home and forced her into his car about 12:30 p.m. She said minutes later she jumped from the car and escaped.

The girl described the suspect as a Caucasian, about 38, 6 feet, 180 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes.

Motorist loses glasses, control, rips out fence

POMONA — A car hit a fence along the San Bernardino Freeway Monday when the driver lost her glasses.

Teresa Esoto of 10884 Central Ave., Ontario, was exiting onto the Ganesha Avenue off-ramp when her glasses fell off, highway patrolmen said.

The woman lost control of the vehicle as she grabbed for them. About 50 feet of chain link fence was damaged.

Lettuce drivers approve pact

SALINAS (UPI) — Teamsters Union drivers have ratified a new three-year contract with Bud Antle, Inc., the Salinas Valley's second largest lettuce producer.

Sources said Monday some 600 drivers approved the pact last week after striking the firm on July 18.

Details of the contract were withheld pending negotiations with 35 other valley lettuce growers. All the contracts expired at about the same time.

Bradley looking for short-range, stop-gap measures on transportation

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Even as the drive began to sell the county's car driving commuters on the idea they should want — and help pay for — a $6.6 billion mass transit system, Mayor Tom Bradley was pushing for quicker action on stopgaps.

"I would like to see more short-range ideas, more things that can be done now . . . before they break ground on a high speed trunk system," Bradley said Monday.

He made his comments after the Southern California Rapid Transit District unveiled plans for a 116-mile system of trains, subways and buses.

The study cost $600,000. Public hearings on the proposal are expected to take at least six months. A financing measure is expected to be put before the county voters next year, calling for an increase in the six per cent sales tax of from .75 to one per cent. If it passes work could begin in three years, and the system would be completed in 1988 or 1989.

The system would cost nearly three times as much as the $2.5 billion plan that voters refused to pay for in 1968.

It includes plans to get federal funds amounting to $4.5 billion. That is almost half the total money the Urban Mass Transit Administration has to give away by 1980, and other cities also seek funds.

Both those who drew up the mass transit plan and Rapid Transit District official said they were keeping in mind the threat by the federal Environmental Protection Agency to drastically curtail auto usage in the Los Angeles basin to clean up the air.

"We have to take drastic action to get the EPA on our side," the mayor said.

"This is a start, but it does not go far enough. It is not a plan. It is a point for discussion."

The projected system is "refined over the 1968 proposal" that voters rejected, said Thomas G.Neuman, vice president of the Rapid Transit District.

"There is every indication that the Los Angeles community wants some form of transportation other than the automobile."

The system would be the second most heavily travelled in the nation, behind only New York's, the planners said. By 1990 it would be carrying 1.9 million persons a day, nearly double the combined passenger load of the Chicago and Philadelphia systems.

The system would consist of six rail routes and two busways fanning out from downtown Los Angeles to the San Fernando Valley, International Airport, Santa Monica, Long Beach, Orange County, El Monte and Norwalk. About 30 per cent of the system would be underground, mainly in the century city and Wilshire area. There would be 62 stations, including five downtown.

Rogers' visit fails to satisfy Japanese

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Secretary of State William P. Rogers has departed Japan leaving behind the usual diplomatic smiles but the Japanese with the feeling they still are being treated as second class citizens.

The occasion was the ninth annual U.S.-Japanese economic conference which always is held at the cabinet level and which the Japanese had looked forward to particularly this year because of pressing economic questions and because of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka's impending visit to the United States.

Especially the Japanese wanted to know what the United States intended to do about the dollar and about future agricultural exports.

They therefore were especially disappointed when the three men they most wanted to hear dropped out of the meeting at the last moment

They were Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Explanations that they were needed in Washington, failed to convince the Japanese they were being treated other than as inferiors.

It is a feeling which has been growing steadily ever since Washington's late notice to Tokyo of U.S. detente with China in 1971.

Latest strain on U.S.-Japanese ties had been the cutback without advance notice of the export of soybeans to Japan.

Next to fish, soybeans are the most important source of protein for the Japanese people, and 92 per cent of the soybean supply comes from the United States.

The Japan Foreign Trade Council denounced the ban as one "utterly ignoring internationally established commercial practices."

And it was one of the background reasons for Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira's stern admonition to the United States at the opening of the conference to wield more "discipline" over its economy.

From Butz they had wanted firm assurances that Japanese needs in the future would receive high priority in the allocation of U.S. agricultural products.

The Japanese also had wanted from a higher economic authority than Rogers recognition for the steps they have taken to help the United States ease its balance of payments problems.

U.S. trade with Japan ran more than $4 billion in the red last year. The figures this year still are running in the red but the deficit is expected to be reduced by half. Trade for June actually showed a U.S. surplus —$847 million in exports to Japan as against imports of $804 million.

The Japanese point out that in the last two years they have acceded to virtually every U.S. request, including liberalized trade and investment in Japan and an upward revaluation of the yen by more than 35 per cent. U.S. exports to Japan this year are up 35 to 40 per cent.

Shop center seen hurting Lake Tahoe

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The president of the League to Save Lake Tahoe says the battle to preserve the mile-high lake from overdevelopment has suffered a severe setback with approval of a major shopping center and a new high rise hotel-casino.

League president Steve Brandt, in a letter to the editor here, said the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency is a failure because of its approval of the Raley's shopping center for more commercial and residential development plus construction of more highways.

He said the TRPA "has shown it is a failure, a taxpayer-supported planning assistant to commercial and development interests in Tahoe.

"The approval of both Raley's 16 acre 900 car regional shopping center for quiet Tahoe Vista on the North shore and a new 15-acre 1,000 car Del Webb casino-hotel for the south shore remove any doubt that Tahoe will be completely urbanized in a few short years."

The coverup: everything from skin blemishes to Watergate

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You see these trim, clean-cut young witnesses testifying before the Senate Watergate committee and you want to ask, "What's a nice boy like you doing in a place like this?"

But, deep down, you already know the answer. If we but admit it, they are to a large extent victims of the American system.

From the cradle onward, they have had it drummed into them that cover-ups are desirable. The message comes across every time they turn on the television set or thumb through a magazine.

There on the tube or in a double-page ad they see exemplary people covering up grey hair, wrinkles, natural complexion, skin blemishes, odors of various sorts.

And all involved in these cover-ups are depicted as being better off for the deception.

In the circumstances, it is hardly surprising that when involved in something unsavory like the Watergate scandal the first instinct is to cover it up.

The scene may have unfolded something like this:

"Hi, John. Why the long face?"

"I'm in a heap of trouble, Bob. A couple of FBI agents are coming to question me about the Watergate break-in."

"Surely you aren't letting a little thing like that get you down?"

"But I'm involved, Bob. I knew about the plans to bug the Democratic National Committee. In fact, I was the one who took those $100 bills to the laundry."

"Silly boy! Haven't you ever heard of Scan-Shield?"

"Scan-Shield? What's that?"

"It's the new super-powered scandal covering with the miracle deluding agent that conceals involvement in political espionage with just one easy application."

"Do you mean that if I use Scan-Shield my involvement in the Watergate case won't be visible?"

"It's guaranteed investigation-proof, John. Keeps you looking innocent as a lamb even under the scrutiny of Washington Post reporters. I use Scan-Shield after every involvement in campaign dirty work and I feel safe 24 hours a day. It even withstands leaks to the New York Times."

White House distrust of CRP bared in testimony

Haldeman's jealous manner told to panel

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The way Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., interpreted the testimony, there was so much distrust in President Nixon's 1972 campaign that some things were kept secret even from the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP).

Baker came to this conclusion after hearing testimony Monday that H.R. Haldeman of the White House was so suspicious of CRP's polling that he spent $100,000 to $110,000 in campaign funds to hire his own. He allegedly kept the results secret even from his close friend and associate, John D. Ehrlichman.

"Mr. Haldeman's role was very substantial," the witness, Gordon Strachan, remarked to Baker.

The ninth week of the Senate Watergate hearings is focusing on the activities of Nixon's two former top aides—Haldeman, his chief of staff, and Ehrlichman, his domestic affairs adviser. Strachan, who finished two days of testimony Monday, was Haldeman's political liaison.

Ehrlichman was scheduled to testify today, and Haldeman probably Thursday.

Until now, the focus has been mainly on CRP—with testimony from former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, who was campaign director until two weeks after the June 17, 1972, break-in at the Democratic offices in the Watergate; Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director; Maurice H. Stans, the campaign finance director, and others.

Strachan testified Monday that: —

—Magruder informed him after a March 30, 1972, meeting with Mitchell at Key Biscayne, Fla., that a sophisticated intelligence gathering system had been approved. Strachan said he informed Haldeman of this in "political matters" memo No. 18.

—Haldeman and Mitchell conferred by telephone on April 4, and Haldeman signalled Strachan to silently eavesdrop on the conversation, something Strachan did 40 to 50 times over the thee years he worked for Haldeman.

— After the Watergate arrests, Haldeman told him to make sure the files were "clean," which Strachan interpreted to mean to destroy all intelligence-gathering memos, including No. 18.

—He informed Haldeman during a flight on Air Force One that he had disposed of the papers, which he felt was not illegal, but merely an act to destroy politically embarrassing material.

Strachan, who sat erect with hands in his lap and answered questions politely and in a tenor voice, was critical of Magruder but complimentary of ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III.

Strachan testified that Magruder often did not give him accurate accounts in reporting on what was going on at CRP.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked if Magruder "was less than honest," and Strachan replied, "Yes, that is my firm opinion."

Of Dean, who charged that he believed Nixon knew about the Watergate cover-up as early as last September, Strachan said: "I don't think he ever lied to me."

"Would it be your opinion that if John Dean said he had told the President about Watergate and the cover-up would you say that Dean was telling the truth?" Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., asked.

"My opinion would be that John Dean would be telling the truth," Strachan said.

Strachan, who is 30 today, testified that Haldeman had little interest in the field organization but a great deal of concern about advertising and polling.

That was the reason, he testified, that he was sent to CRP to get $350,000 in cash campaign funds and bring it back to the White House. Eventually some of the money was used in payments to the Watergate defendants and their attorneys.

"We didn't want the CRP to know we were conducting independent polling," Strachan said, adding: "We incurred over $100,000 to $110,000 in private polling expenses."

Baker commented that that "implies some distrust."

"There was definitely a feeling of distrust of the CRP and of the confidentiality of their polling," he said.

Strachan also testified what it was like to work under Haldeman, who he said had a "well-deserved reputation as a very, very tough staff man."

After the election, it was decided that certificates woule be sent to all persons who had attended the Republican National Convention. Strachan said he had been working at the project but wasn't finished.

One morning at 4 o'clock, he got a call from Haldeman, who was aboard Air Force One, Strachan said. He said Haldeman told him, "I had not performed, and the project was not completed."

Strachan said he was so sleepy that he called the signal officer to inquire if he had just received a call. The signal officer said that he had, and offered to read back what Haldeman had told him.

STRACHAN SIPS—Gordon Strachan, former White House political aide to H. R. Haldeman, had reason to soak up water as he testified during a longer-than-usual session of the Senate Watergate Committee Monday. At one point, after imbibing, he told the youth of the nation—in response to a question—to "stay away" from government service positions.

Sea gulls often fly hundreds of miles inland to scavenge city dumps, pick up worms behind plows and nest in woodland treetops, says National Geographic.

Summary of Strachan's testimony

Gordon Strachan, who served as political aide to former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman, said he informed Haldeman when a "sophisticated" intelligence-gathering plan was approved 10 weeks before the Watergate break-in in 1972. He said Haldeman ordered him to destroy memorandums relating to it when the conspirators were arrested.

Strachan said Haldeman discussed strategy for collecting political intelligence on President Nixon's potential foes at least a year prior to the Watergate break-in. The discussion was held with former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, Strachan said.

Strachan said Haldeman played a major role in a decision not to provide strong Republican opposition in the 1972 elections to about 100 Democratic congressmen and an unpecified number of Democratic senators, primarily from the South, "who had supported the President on crucial votes on the Vietnam war."

'Stay away' from career in politics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The audience laughed when Gordon Strachan said he would advise young persons seeking a political career in Washington to "stay away," but Strachan did not laugh.

When Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., put the question at the Senate Watergate Committee hearings Monday, Strachan's eyes filled with tears and his chin trembled. The unemployed lawyer, aged 29, reached for a glass of water.

"My advise would be to stay away," Strachan said.

When Strachan resigned from the job of general counsel to the U.S. Information Agency last April, he was the youngest counsel the agency had ever had. Before that, he held the important job of political aide to H. R. Haldeman, the most powerful man on President Nixon's White House staff.

Before Watergate clouded his life, Strachan was an achiever. In California where he grew up, he had earned his own money from age 7 on, mowing lawns. He was president of his class all through grade and high school graduating as valedictorian. He taught Sunday school.

His father died when he was 17, and friends used to say to Trude Strachan, his mother, "how do you manage to raise such two fine sons?" She said Gordon was "a fine boy and a fine man."

Text of letter denying tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Text of letter from President Nixon to Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., D-N.C. Chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee dated July 23:

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I have considered your request that I permit your committee to have access to tapes of my private conversations with a number of my closest aides. I have concluded that the principles stated in my letter to you of July 6th preclude me from complying with that request, and I shall not do so. Indeed, the special nature of tape recordings of private conversations is such that these principles apply with even greater force to tapes of private presidential conversations than to presidential papers.

If release of the tapes would settle the central questions at issue in the Watergate inquiries, then their disclosure might serve a substantial public interest that would have to be weighed very heavily against the negatives of disclosure.

The fact is that the tapes would not finally settle the central issues before your committee. Before their existence became publicly known, I personally listened to a number of them.

The tapes are entirely consistent with what I know to be the truth and what I have stated to be the truth. However, as in any verbatim recording of informal conversations, they contain comments that persons with different perspective and motivation would inevitably interpret in different ways.

Furthermore, there are inseparably interspersed in them a great many very frank and very private comments, on a wide range of issues and individuals, wholly extraneous to the committee's inquiry.

Even more important the tapes could be accurately understood or interpreted only by reference to an enormous number of other documents and tapes, so that to open them at all would begin an endless process of disclosure and explanation of private presidential records totally unrelated to Watergate and highly confidential in nature. They are the clearest possible example of why presidential documents must be kept contranscribed or made public and none will be.

On May 22nd I described my knowledge of the Watergate matter and its aftermath in categorical and unambiguous terms that I know to be true. In my letter of July 6th I informed you that at an appropriate time during the hearings I intend to address publicly the subjects you are considering.

I still intend to do so and in a way that preserves the constitutional principle of separation of powers, and thus serves the interest not just of the Congress or of the President but of the people.

Sincerely,
Richard Nixon

GETTING THE WORD — Sen. Sam Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, carefully reads a letter from President Nixon denying access to tape recordings of private White House conversations. Nixon, in a separate letter, also told the senator there would not be a meeting between the two of them, which Nixon had previously accepted.

Today's Watergate witness

A profile of John Ehrlichman

By United Press International

Until April 30, John D. Ehrlichman sat at the left hand of President Nixon. On that day he and H. R. Haldeman—Nixon's right-hand man—took their leave, victims of the Watergate scandal. It was the end of an era. "Fritz" (Ehrlichman) and "Hans" (Haldeman) were gone, and it seemed only the Presdent was really sorry to see them depart.

Ehrlichman had been Nixon's most-trusted adviser on domestic affairs and the chief architect of the administration's sometimes stormy relations with Congress.

When re resigned he proclaimed innocence of any involvement in the Watergate scandal, but he told Nixon: "The appearance of honesty and integrity is every bit as important ... as the fact of one's honesty and integrity."

Ehrlichman, 48, an attorney from Seattle, Wash., long has been one of Nixon's closest personal friend and political associates.

Like Haldeman, his roommate at UCLA, Ehrlichman is a Christian Scientist who neither drinks nor smokes. The two play tennis regularly, Haldeman recruited Ehrlichman for four Nixon political campaigns, and the men remain fast friends.

Ehrlichman has been a keymember of the White House staff since Nixon's inauguration Jan. 20, 1969. At first he was counsel to the President, a post he held until last November when he became Nixon's chief domestic adviser —the counterpart on domestic policy to foreign affairs adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Ehrlichman's successor as presidential counsel was John W. Dean III, whom Nixon fired at the same time he reluctantly accepted the resignations of Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman is considered far more personable by friends and associates although he sometimes strikes the public as being somewhat aloof.

According to one story, a reporter once asked a high White House official for a description of Haldeman, and the official went on for several minutes describing the sense of humor, personality, professional demeanor and other favorable traits of the then presidential chief of staff.

The next day the official called the reporter to apologize. That personable fellow he had described was Ehrlichman, not Haldeman, he said.

The public criticism of Ehrlichman and his old buddy Haldeman came not only from reporters who found them difficult to get in touch with but also from members of both political parties who said "The Germans" performed their job of insulating the President too zealously.

But Nixon didn't think so. For weeks after it became apparent that they had been so protective of the President that the scandal had lapped up to the very door of the White House, Nixon proclaimed his faith in both men.

NEW YORK (UPI) — One dollar a gallon for gasoline in the United States?

It's a possibility partly because of the long delay in building an oil pipeline linking Alaska's Arctic slope to western ports, Chairman Robert R. Dorsey of Gulf Oil Corp. said in a recent Rotary Club speech in Austin, Tex.

Dorsey said the American energy crisis will take 20 years to solve, and he doesn't believe there ever again will be enough energy for people to move around the way they have in the recent past.

Chairman William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations committee raised eyebrows even higher a few weeks ago when he said the worsening global energy crisis conceivably could lead to military seizure of Middle East oil resources by western nations if Arab rulers continue escalation of royalties and taxes.

President Sadat of Egypt is believed to be trying to persuade King Feisal of Saudi Arabia, the west's best Arab friend, to threaten to withhold petroleum from the western nations unless the United States abandons political support of Israel.

European motorists are feeling the energy crisis worse than Americans. The Arab oil supplies Europe first.

That relieves the eastern hemisphere, Asia and the Communist countries substantially from the burden of supplying the whole world. But the escalating demands of Middle Eastern oil producing countries have had a critical impact on gasoline prices in such countries as Italy and France.

In both countries, the price of gasoline is an inflammatory political issue with many implications.

The price in Italy, for example, is rigidly controlled by the government and the gasoline tax is a whopping 76 per cent on the retail price. Italy's domestic output of oil is small and her government oil trust, ENI, controls only a quarter of the 700 million barrles Italy consumes annually. International companies, American, British, Dutch and French, control most of Italy's oil and they are threatening to pull out of the peninsula because of the squeeze between the Arabs' demands and the Italian government's price controls.

Shell Italiana expects to lose $30 million, and Chairman Norman Bain said this is forcing the company to reconsider its future in Italy.

After losing $12 million last year, British Petroleum sold its Italian oil network to an Italian firm which now must find the oil and gasoline to fuel it.

Exxon Corp. announced it is seeking a buyer for 200 of its stations in Italy unless the government raises gasoline prices sharply.

Similar problems have emerged in France and Belgium.

Gulf's Dorsey clearly doesn't see much easing of the escalating demands of the Middle Eastern oil exporting countries to help bring about an earlier solution of the global energy crisis. And it will be years before Arctic Alaskan oil comes to market in the United States.

So, Dorsey predicts dollar a gallon gasoline for Americans and says "that will have a tremendous impact on our society." Not to mention the pocketbook.

A-blast success in freeing gas?

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (UPI) — A spokesman for the Lawrence Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., says the success of an underground nuclear blast to fee natural gas will not be known until the crater is entered next month.

John Toman, a project director for the laboratory, said instruments would be inserted into the crater late in August to test the volume of gas released by the Project Rio Blanco blast. Tests on its quality and commercial value should be finished by October.

Christian Academy adds grades 11, 12

POMONA — Grades 11 and 12 have been added to the American Christian Academy for the 1973-74 school year, principal Wayne Temple reported.

Directed by Dr. Ray Batema, the school has grown to include kindergarten through grade 10 since September 1970.

American Christian Academy was established to meet the educational, spiritual and patriotic needs of young people, and is an educational ministry of the Central Baptist Church of Pomona Valley.

Enrollment is open to students from other churches or faiths if they agree to abide by the school's standards.

Applications are being received for all grades. Parents of juniors and seniors are invited to consider the different education available at the American Christian Academy, 395 E. San Bernardino Ave.

More information on the school's program may be obtained by phoning 623-3017.

It pays to be a pessimist

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Sometimes it pays to be a pessimist. South was looking at 10 tricks in his own hand. That is, there would be 10 tricks if his trump suit would run. An optimist assumes that seven to ace-king-queen-10 is going to run. Only a real pessimist worries about something going wrong.

Anyway, South did check for aces and kings. When North showed two aces and a king South could easily have counted to 13 tricks, but he decided that a vulnerable slam with a hundred honors plus game and rubber would be good enough and that anyway, there just might be a spade loser.

Also, South allowed for the possibility that his partner might go to seven if he held the jack of spades.

South won the club lead in dummy. He wasted no time in idle talk about the possibility of having missed a grand slam. Instead he quickly played dummy's three of spades. East followed with the deuce and pessimist South promptly finessed the 10.

It was a mighty good play. He was willing to let West score a trick with an unguarded jack. He wasn't willing to lose his contract in the event that East held all five spades.

Cattle will do the unexpected

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Cattle, says the New Mexico Court of Appeals, can be expected to do the unexpected.

A motorist involved in a collision with a cow on a rural road claimed Wednesday that the cow's owner was negligent, but the court dismissed the case.

"The only evidence in this case is that cows might get out of a fenced pasture if chased by men or animals; that cows have been known to jump fences, and that they will do just about everything you would not expect them to do," the court ruled.

World of animals

Many factors affect happy seal-raising

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: If it was legal for me to keep a seal and I made sure that it was fed just the way it should be, would I be able to keep it healthy in our large swimming pool? I'd sure like to try it. A seal is such a great animal! — B.R.

Dear B.R.: Probably not. There are many physical and psychological factors involved in addition to adequate nutrition though this is, of course, important. One of many problems encountered with seals and other captive seagoing mammals of this kind kept in fresh water is lack of appetite and the developing of flabby muscles as a result of salt deficiency. While additional dietary salt will prevent this problem, unfortunately, many other difficulties could not be so easily solved.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Prune, our black cocker, had epilepsy as did her mother before her, as did other cockers related to her. This concerns me now because of Charcoal, our cat. She is still young and seems perfectly normal, so far, but her mother died from fits which we thought might be epilepsy. Would there be anything that could reasonably be done at this point to reduce the chances that Charcoal might develop fits and go the way of her mother? — D.D.

Dear D.D.: Inherited epilepsy in cats is extremely rare if, indeed, it does exist. Cats do undergo recurrent convulsions, seizures, fits and the like, stemming from a variety of causes. The most common causes in mature cats are related to toxins, or nutritional deficiencies. A good dietary history on Charcoal's mother and a current review of Charcoal's nutritional status would help the doctor pinpoint any potential nutritionally-related brain disease.

Charcoal's physical environment can and should be carefully scrutinized for clues as to toxic substances which might be precipitators of feline brain disease. Any cat owner should be constantly aware of the wide variety of chemical products used in and around the house which are potentially poisonous—to pussycats, particularly. Their penchant for washing, especially their feet, plus their particular sensitivity to any chemicals, makes them prone to pick up something poisonous around the house than are, for example, dogs.

City Council OKs $5,000 for downtown hotel study

By TONY NAVARRO
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — The City Council Monday night authorized the expenditure of some $5,000 for an updated study of the feasibility of a downtown hotel and also moved to change City Manager Fred Sharp's position to executive director of redevelopment.

Asst. City Administrator Joseph Korpsak said funds for the study, recommended by the Chamber of Commerce and Redevelopment Commission, would come from a "701" federal grant received by the city earlier for planning, updating of the master plan and other purposes.

Sharp had served as city administrator from 1949 to 1971 when he was named to the newly created post of city manager. Like the city administrator, the city manager was responsible directly to the council.

By a 4-0 vote, the council Monday placed on a first reading an ordinance changing Sharp's position, making him responsible and accountable to the city administrator, and spelling out his duties.

By an identical vote, the council authorized an amendment to a 1971 employment contract with Sharp, with the revised agreement to go into effect Sept. 1.

The study will be done by Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co., certified public accountants who specialize in studies for hotels, restaurants and country clubs.

Charles T. Richardson, chairman of the chamber's redevelopment committee, said the last hotel feasibility study was done in the late 1960s and that a new one is needed to see if efforts to attract a hotel here should be continued or redirected elsewhere.

He said the committee is aware the new study could invite criticism because of past studies made of Pomona but added that up-to-date information is needed to successfully promote a hotel.

Richardson said that once the study is started and the firm determines because of preliminary findings not to proceed any further, the study would be discontinued and the city charged only for the work done.

Mayor Ray J. Lepire asked, if the feasibility report turns out to be a positive one, if the firm is reputable enough to "carry weight" with hotel chains.

"Very definitely," replied Richardson.

Councilman Adrian T. Wright, who attended Monday afternoon but not the evening session, asked for support of the recommendations.

The study will not be limited to the site where Royal Inn had proposed to construct a hotel, north of Pomona Mall and east of Main Street.

"We don't want to put any perimeters on it, we want their whole thinking," said Don DesCombes of the chamber.

The amended agreement with Sharp, for a one-year period and renewable every year thereafter, changes his duties to correspond with the new position of executive director of the redevelopment program.

Although Sharp had been city manager since 1971, his main duties have been with the city's redevelopment program.

Among the duties spelled out in the amended agreement are to promote revitalization in cooperation with the chamber and other organizations, to exercise his influence in getting legislation beneficial to the city and to do whatever he can to advance development in the city and enhance its image.

Sharp would have the authority to negotiate in the name of the city and in the name of the redevelopment agency "concerning any project or proposed project vital to the redevelopment of the city" subject to the approval of the administrator, council or agency.

Cities urged to combat 'abandoned houses'

POMONA — Councilman Charles W. Bader Monday night suggested that Pomona Valley cities team up to fight programs which are resulting in large numbers of abandoned houses here and elsewhere.

Bader said Pomona presently had some 350 boarded up houses and noted Claremon's alarm over some 14 such dwellings in that city.

"Maybe with a little bit of political punch," said Bader, "we can change the federal programs that brought this situation about. I really don't know."

Mayor Ray J. Lepire, who earlier was invited to speak before the Claremont City Council tonight on the matter, said he would take Bader's idea there.

Bader said a "very critical" problem existed in Pomona, as the city is plagued with deteriorated housing administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Federal Housing Authority and owned "in many cases by mortgage lenders."

The councilman said cities faced with such problems possibly could merge their efforts to get the owners to clean up, improve the properties or reduce the price in an effort to sell them.

The subject of housing was brought up by Bader as an unscheduled agenda item. The council asked that the matter be placed on the agenda for further discussion next Monday.

Michael Silberhorn receives grant

POMONA — Michael Silberhorn of 2437 Kellogg Drive recently received a $250 scholarship award from the women's auxiliary of the California Landscape Contractors' Association.

FRANK STREETER

D.A. appoints representative in S.G. Valley

LOS ANGLELS — Frank Streeter, 48-year-old former Los Angeles businessman, has been appointed community affairs representative for the district attorney's office in the San Gabriel Valley.

As a community affairs representative, Streeter is to help provide increased public access to the DA's office, according to Dist. Atty. Jospeh P. Busch.

Streeter will work from the district attorney's offices in Pomona and Pasadena and at the Los Angles County Human Services Agnecy Multiservice Center in El Monte.

"I hope we can open new lines of communication between the public and the district attorney's office," Busch said. "Our goal is to bring the office closer to the people."

The community-based representatives are intended to help citizens solve any problems which lie within the operations of the district attorney's office. The idea of using laymen not trained in the law in such positions is new, Busch said.

Streeter is a native of Glendale and attended high school and college there. He was in business in Los Angeles for 25 years. The new position pays $15,000 per year.

Streeter's hours in Pomona are scheduled for 9 to 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

We are becoming a plastic society

Ours is often referred to as a "plastic" society, with unfavorable implications of cheapness and artificiality. In strictly literal terms, however, we have only begun to employ this versatile material.

Seers at the Stanford Research Institute, one of America's leading think tanks, have gazed into their crystal ball and predicted a phenomenal growth in consumer use of plastics by the year 2000.

Their figures suggest that just 27 years from now a good segment of the population will:

Be driving plastic cars. Will be living in plastic houses. In some parts of the country may be living in a city covered by a clear plastic dome.

According to the experts, the automobile of the future may have enough plastic in it to cut the average total weight of a car in half — from today's 4,000 pounds to 2,000 pounds. Gas tanks, structural frames and possibly even axles and entire engines will be made of plastic rather than metal.

In homebuilding, fiber-reinforced plastics may be used for the beams of the 21st-century house beautiful. Polycarbonate windows (which resist breaking or scratching), plastic window frames, plastic rain gutters, plastic siding, piping and plumbing fixtures could make housing relatively much less expensive than it is today.

As for air-conditioned, domed cities, we already have domed stadiums, and soon shopping centers and malls will be protected with clear plastic domes.

One of the most important things about plastic is that it can be made by utilizing far less of our natural resources than in processing other materials.

For example, only 0.104 kilowatt-hour of energy is needed to make one cubic inch of polystyrene. This compares with 2.231 kwhr to make a cubic inch of copper piping instead of plastic, or 2.034 kwhr to make a cubic inch of aluminum residential home siding instead of plastic, or 1.101 kwhr to make a cubic inch of steel automobile part instead of one of plastic.

Today, only about one per cent of our total energy stream is used for making plastics, says Ralph L. Harding, president of the Society of the Plastics Industry, out of 40 per cent of the energy stream used by all of American industry.

Did the draft end too soon?

On July 1, when the armed forces draft ended, proponents of the all-volunteer policy had high hopes of large benefits for the nation, both military and political.

The anti-military attacks which have been so prevalent, presumably would cease. There would be less turnover, lower operating costs, a reduced training base, higher morale, greater motivation, more professional and better trained leaders and units, etc.

Th skeptics saw, and see, a quite different picture. One of them is retired General William C. Westmoreland. In a newspaper article the General suggests that "As a nation we moved too fast in eliminating the draft," and expresses uncertainty as to the wisdom of the all-volunteer program.

Westmoreland cites surveys showing that young men, and their parents, in large numbers oppose the idea of their serving in the armed forces. Congress has cut off funds for paid advertising on radio and television, although a test campaign produced very good recruitment results. He fears the high cost of recruiting and maintaining an all-volunteer force will tend to dilute modernization of equipment.

The General's most poignant concern, however, seems to be what the ending of the draft will do to the social composition of our security forces. "As we kill the draft," he says, "we set aside the traditional concept that a citizen has an obligation to serve his country. I also deplore the prospect of our military forces not representing a cross section of our society."

Westmoreland would restore the draft on a reduced basis, but one that would be an inducement to enlightment. A volunteer force of "90 per cent or more" would be his goal, with the lottery draft providing, in addition to inducement, a quick flexibility in expansion when needed.

The general's thoughts merit consideration, especially if his fears prove well found.

The cable cars

Few are the visitors to San Francisco who have not ridden the city's fabled cable cars. On August 1 the doughty little vehicles will reach the century mark, and will be honored by a 12-day centennial celebration.

They don't really go "half way to the stars" as the song says, but the cable cars do have the distinction of being the only moving National Monument in the country, we are told. We hope they continue to enchant the tourists for at least another 100 years.

JACK ANDERSON

Details of San Clemente landscaping

WASHINGTON — Contrary to what the Secret Service has told the public about San Clemente, aides at the Western White House acknowledged in 1970 that the landscaping was designed to give the First Family an expensive view of the Pacific Ocean.

This admission was made, of course, before the public found out that the $700,000 renovation was financed by the taxpayers. Now the Secret Service claims that the landscaping was ordered strictly to provide presidential security.

Quite a different story was told in late 1970, however, when the Nixons decided to share their home with the public. They invited Cleon T. Knapp, publisher of Architectural Digest, to take a guided tour of the San Clemente estate.

The photographer was selected by the White House and the story was carefully supervised by the President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach. The final text was submitted to Kalmbach's office for approval.

Open area

The approved manuscript indicates that the landscaping had little to do with the President's security. "The patio and the grounds outside the house," states the article, "were landscaped in a natural, casual manner to maintain an open feeling and to allow maximum views of the ocean."

And again: "Dense planting that had grown up around the old house was cleared away to create new vistas of the lawns and the ocean." Removal of the dense planting, presumably, would also give a potential assassin a better view of the President.

Yet the Secret Service solemnly insists that the grounds were laid out, at considerable expense to the taxpayers, wholly to protect the President.

In May 1972, for example, the Kirkham Tree Service was paid $1,950 to "prune trees." The official excuse: "Eliminate safety hazard caused by dead branches." The firm of Buccola Carlos was paid $8,810 to "remove dry weeds to eliminate fire hazard."

Tree relocated

Another $750 went for "replanting fallen tree." Most incredible of all, the taxpayers forked over $1,800 to "relocate" a solitary tree. A government spokesman explained the tree was moved to give Secret Service agents a "clear line of sight zone, so they could see what was going on."

Confidential sources inside the Secret Service assure us that some of the landscaping, at least, was dictated by security precautions. When telephoto pictures of the presidential retreat were published, for example, the alarmed Secret Service concluded that the photographer could have been carrying a long-distance rifle. Result: Solid screening was installed on one side of the home.

The Secret Service has also scattered the grounds with sound sensors, advanced models of those the Army implanted in the forests of Vietnam. Some are camouflaged to look like sticks and stones, and they are sensitive enough, in the words of one source, "to hear a grasshopper burp."

President's Expenses.

We sought comment from Kalmbach who denied the tax money was used to pay for strictly personal improvements. "Anything personal," he said, "we paid with the President's funds."

Other sources confirmed that, of the $625,000 the President borrowed from aerosol king Robert Aplanalp to purchase the estate, $150,000 was spent for renovations. Most of this money was used to refurbish the interior, but the President paid for some outside improvements, including his own swimming pool.

Both the renovations and their financing were supervised in the White House by former chief of staff Bob Haldeman..

Footnote: Despite a law that requires the federal government to buy American goods, much of the material that went into Nixon's gazebos and garden walls was imported. The nails in his boards and the foundation steel in his "perimeter wall" came from the Far East. To cap the perimeter wall, the General Services Administration chose hand-made Mexican adobe tiles to maintain the "architectural harmony."

'Domestic Trucks'

The Mexican bricks were ordered through the Consolidated Supply Co. of San Juan Capistrano Beach. The company was instructed, however, to deliver the bricks in "domestic" trucks. "They didn't want any Mexican trucks pulling into the presidential compound," the owner of the company, Al Jimenez, told us.

A GSA spokesman said the Buy American Act was waived "on the basis that the products we wanted were not otherwise available in sufficient quantity or satisfactory quality." The agency, he admitted, did insist "that American transportation be used."

PAUL HARVEY

How HST would've handled scandal

Now you're told President Nixon has a "new strategy" for divulging the degree of his complicity in Watergate. I keep imagining how such a situation as this might have been handled by Harry S. Truman.

Martha Mitchell says "Mr. President" knew "all about Watergate and the coverup all along." And George Gallup's surveyors report most Americans think so, too.

Yet when the President appears in public—as during the Dirksen dedication at Pekin, Ill.—so enthusiastically is he hoisted on the shoulders of the electorate that he plans more such personal appearances in the weeks ahead.

It's fascinating to watch the public response to the person of the President. Where a year ago he'd have been applauded respectfully, now he is cheered affectionately.

There's something in Americans that inclines them to want to shoot down big guys and uphold those in trouble. Witness the way they rallied to underdog Harry Truman in 1948. President Nixon's forte—and you've heard him say this—is "international affairs."

It's his comparative disinterest in tedious home-front administration which resulted in the delegation of those responsibilities to H. R. (Bob) Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

President Nixon's years already have accomplished monumental progress in defusing armed international time bombs. He opened the door to China, secured meaningful co-operation from Russia and —however tardily—untangled us from Indochina.

But on the home fronts, President Nixon has been less effective in dealing with welfare misuse, street crime, wages, prices—inflation generally.

I say "embarrassed." I do not agree with those who say "discredited."

It is significant that the coals heaped on President Nixon's head over this Watergate thing have not been heaped by logical political adversaries. The McGoverns and the Kennedys and such have been discreetly silent, recognizing that ventilating closed closets leaves others vulnerable.

And they remember also the tendency of Americans to prefer the gadfly role until their giant is humbled; thereafter they are likely to rally to his rescue.

At the first news conference, when the question of Watergate was raised for the first time:

"Mr. President, did your campaigners spy on the opposition?"

I can hear Harry Truman laugh and say, "I don't know, but I should hope so. If they didn't, I'd ought to fire 'em. But if they broke the law, I'll have to."

And that would have been that.

LETTERS FROM P-B READERS

As others see it . . . letters

Acquires 'wrong' hobby

I was standing in line at my vets office to pay his bill when in walked an obvious emergency. I have never seen such a mutilated dog, but then, perhaps, others have. In spite of this mutilation, he was still recognizable. One of our well known "almost" male champion dog, whom I believe is nine years old, did walk in on lead "under his own strength."

The top inch or two from his right ear is gone, there were wounds about his face and gums, and legs, and a large blood-soaked area on his left rough, about three-four inches in diameter. He had obviously been involved in some form of physical confrontation.

I couldn't take my eyes from him as I've never seen such a mess. His handler was speaking to my doctor in a rather loud voice about three feet from where I was standing in line. At first I felt sorry for the owner that this nightmare had occurred because" accidents have been known to happen in the best of families." Then my sympathies turned into utter revulsion.

The handler—for lack of a better word— repeated over and over, "you cannot sedate this dog. He's nine years old, I'll hold him. He won't bite you. I guarantee that."

At this point, I had mixed feelings. We all worry about sedation, but how can anyone remotely expect an animal in this obvious condition to sustain suturing without it? Then came the ax. The handler said, "look, it's almost 2 p.m. You've got to patch him up. I have to get to the airport to pick up a bitch. I have to stud him twice tonight." I was unable to stay any longer. I was afraid to hear what might come next. I couldn't imagine in my wildest imagination what new horrors would be forthcoming from this insensitive fiend. If this is an example of what "the fancy" has become, I have obviously acquired the wrong hobby!—Diana H. Gould, Upland.

Gossip for today

"How are the mighty fallen". —And not the least of the mighty has been the almighty dollar.

Were Shakespeare alive today he would probably be writing a newspaper financial page column called "Much Ado About Nothing", where he would undoubtedly report that the once sound dollar has become a lot of sound and fury signifying nothing.

It is really a sad state of affairs in more ways than one. Consider the plight of the writer who wants to depict a man as a wasteful, prodigal spendthrift. Once he could start out by saying: "The poor oaf doesn't know the value of a dollar." But today such a near-do-well is probably every bit as smart as his friendly banker—and certainly a lot smarter than the international financiers.

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon unwilling to increase taxes

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Partly because of the political ravages of Watergate, President Nixon overruled the pleas of top economic advisers for a tax increase and personally drafted the tough Phase IV anti-inflation controls program to court the immediate good will of voters as the possible long-range cost of losing the anti-inflation war.

Just as he ordered the June 13 across-the-board freeze over the advice of those same advisers, Mr. Nixon has now constructed a Phase IV anti-inflation program streamlined for quick political approval and flying a bold "Made by Nixon" pennant.

Even when he was riding high earlier this year after his record landslide and before the Watergate scandal broke, his loose-controls Phase III program grew politically intolerable. Geared for high profits and hence expanding production, Phase III did not prevent prices from going up. The result: his much-delayed order of June 13 which put the economy in the straitjacket of a freeze.

Now fighting for his political life, Mr. Nixon understandably dare not risk a repeat of that baleful Phase III. More than any decision he has recently made, the President has proved by his choice of Phase IV weapons that approval of the voting public, not the opinion of business or economists, is now his first concern.

Burns Urged Increase

This alone explains the President's decision not to push for any tax increase. Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, strongly urged a tax increase. Only marginally less insistent was economic czar George Shultz, Secretary of the Treasury. These advisers were urging a choice of 12 different tax options on the President, including across-the-board personal and corporate income tax hikes between 2 per cent and 6 per cent.

The no-tax decision, made in a three-hour meeting of his economic high command, was the President's own. Only Dr. Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, backed Mr. Nixon. Burns pleaded for at least a temporary tax hike to sop up purchasing power.

Rejection of such advice may give Mr. Nixon more economic trouble tomorrow than political profit today. It puts the entire burden of the anti-inflation battle on Burns's Federal Reserve System and the extremely tough new Phase IV price controls.

This threatens the program's credibility in the world of business and industry, menacing the expanding production base essential for long-term control of inflation by creating more goods for sale.

Besides his tax decision, the President showed his need for immediate political gain by turning down Shultz and Burns on the politically dangerous question of the price "bulge" —that is, the immediate rise in prices—following the end of the freeze. Most economic advisers preferred a sharp, immediate bulge, no matter how high. Instead, Mr. Nixon will produce a long drawn-out price rise—a flattened bulge—by severely limiting the percentage of higher costs that business men may pass through in higher prices.

Prices sure to rise

With prices sure to go up anyway, Mr. Nixon's unsuccessful advisers argued that from a purely economic standpoint it is better to risk short-run political anger with a sudden bulge, to be followed by expanding production. Now, they fear, producers will be squeezed between rigid controls and spiraling raw material prices, holding production down.

In both the "bulge" and tax-rise debates, a Watergate-weakened Mr. Nixon lacks the political freedom to wheel and deal. He dares not risk further loss of voter support by adopting either higher taxes or looser controls. So, the President resurrected the old Phase II program, tailored to the slack, slow-moving economy of late 1971, and imposed it on the tight, full-employment economy of 1973.

The only appeal from the President's decision is in Congress. Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee is studying a novel scheme to "impound" receipts of higher income taxes, returning them to taxpayers in the next recession. Such a plan has been informally discussed by Mills and Burns.

But for Congress to increase taxes over a President's wish defies tradition and political common sense. The President almost surely will have to live with a Phase IV which, while acclaimed by voters today, may prove disastrous to long-run control of inflation and to Mr. Nixon himself.

MR. DINOSAUR, WHAT BIG TEETH YOU HAVE

At redistricting hearing

Speakers asked to notify board

WALNUT — In an effort to avoid confusion at an Aug. 1 public hearing on a proposal to redistrict North Diamond Bar schools fro mthe Pomona to Walnut school district, trustees are asking persons wishing to speak to submit their names and stands in advance.

"By having a list of the names of persons or organizations planning to appear and speak, the hearing can be organized in an orderly fashion, assuring everyone an opportunity to be heard," a school district notification on the matter stated.

Several hundred local residents are expected to attend the hearing, scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Walnut High School multi-purpose room.

Redistricting leader Nick Ruggiero will outline the history of the nine-month-old proposal and discuss data supporting redistricting. A representative of the Walnut Homeowners Association will speak against the proposal following Ruggiero's talk.

Anyone wishing to speak at the hearing may telephone the Walnut school district at 595-1261 no later than 5 p.m. July 30, indicating name and whether the person will speak in support or opposition to the proposal.

"The information will make it possible to alternate speakers so both sides of the issue can receive equal emphasis. The board must have an adequate presentation of all aspects and community opinions if it is to properly discharge its obligations and make a decision on the question," the district notification says.

The board is not expected to take a vote on the issue during the Aug. 1 meeting, but postpone action until September when trustee J. Edwin Nettell returns from vacation. According to law the public hearing must be held 30 days after the receipt of the petitions.

Walnut school officials received the 94 petitions containing 2,430 validated registered voter signatures for the proposal on July 13.

The latest redistricting action comes after several months of silence on the proposal first started by the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association.

The association wants North Diamond Bar out of the Pomona system, Ruggiero has said, because of deteriorating education in the Pomona system. In addition, he said, the community wants to be united under one school district roof. Diamond Bar currently is divided between the two districts.

The proposal has been a heated issue in both neighboring communities, with Walnut residents generally opposed to the proposal, according to a Community Club questionnaire.

DR. GEORGE A. DIBS

Administrator selected for Rowland schools

ROWLAND HEIGHTS — Dr. George A. Dibs, an administrator in the Paramount Unified School District, has been named assistant superintendent of education production in the Nogales area for the Rowland Unified School District.

Effective Aug. 1, he will assume responsibility for the conduct and outcome of programs in 10 of the district's 20 schools, as well as for Title VII (Federal) programs, Head Start and regular day programs.

Dibs said he was attracted to the district because of "the forwardness of its instructional program, excellent plan of decentralized management, and its openness to letting the community participate in the setting of goals and in advising the schools regarding programs."

He said he is a "strong believer in community involvement and community-centered schools" and his initial effort would be "getting to know the principals, staffs, parents and community leaders."

Dibs received his education at UC Berkeley, Cal State Long Beach and USC. He holds life credentials in general elementary teaching, general secondary teaching, elementary administration, secondary administration and general administration.

He lives in Westminster. He and his wife, Mary, have four children ages 8, 11, 13 and 15.

Junior Football physical exams set for July 31

DIAMOND BAR — Boys 9 through 13 who will play Diamond Bar-Walnut Junior All American Football the coming season will be given physical examinations July 31.

They are to be at Dr. Jack Little's office at 1770 N Orange Grove Ave., Pomona, at 5:30 p.m.

Interested boys who have not yet signed up may do so at the doctor's office. The fee, including the physical, is $20.

Film and chalk talks on highlights of this year's games will be presented at a general meeting for players and parents Aug. 1 at 8 p.m. at the Diamond Bar Country Club.

Coaches will talk about teams, practices, equipment and insurance. Equipment will be displayed.

Boys interested in playing may sign up.

Add potato chips to shortage list

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Processing plants in Maine report there is a severe shortage of the potatoes that potato chips are made from.

Chipman C. Bull, executive director of the Maine Potato Commission, said the problem "has existed for quite a few months."

New teachers to direct Walnut music classes

WALNUT — Walnut High School's music program will be directed by two district newcomers in the fall — Richard Massaro and Larry Cline.

Massaro, a Pasadena City College and Cal State Los Angeles graduate, will assume the position of musical director at the school. Cline will teach mixed chorus and concert.

Massaro has performed in the pit orchestra with the Pasadena Playhouse and in the official Tournament of Roses Band. A specialist in the brasses, he has taught all band and orchestra instruments to students from elementary through high school level.

"If we can interest young people in music when they are young that interest lasts a lifetime. I hope to make a start to that end here next year," Massaro said.

Cline will teach mixed chorus and concert at the high school, coming from Claremont High School where he has been musical director.

In his professional experience, Cline has sung with the Roger Wagner Chorale and has studied under Fred Waring and Howard Swan.

Cline is a graduate of Cal State Los Angeles and received his master of arts degree at the same institution in 1969. His ambition is to provide a complete vocal program at the school, including school performances "from pop to Bach," he said.

DIAMOND BAR — To raise money to establish an eye clinic. Diamond Bar Lions Club will co-sponsor three performances of "Music Man" at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut at 8 p.m. on Aug. 2, 3 and 4 .

Lions club president Ross Rohn said some $700 to $1,000 is needed to insure the clinic program. Plans, he said, are to bring it into the Diamond Bar area to serve primarily elementary school children through the Southern California Eye Institute, Fullerton.

Rohn is reserving "Music Man" tickets at his home. He may be reached at 595-1351 between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, and between 6 and 10 p.m. on weekends.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12.

Music and drama professor Gary Toops at MSAC is directing the summer theater workshop which also is presenting "Music Man" on July 27-28, Rohn said. The cast includes both professionals and amateurs.

The Little Theater at MSAC has a seating capacity of 230. Rohn is hoping he can insure a three-night sellout and secure the eye clinic which he said probably would be operated through the schools.

$8 million suit filed against school district

WALNUT — An $8 million claim has been filed against the Walnut school district by the parents of 10-year-old Todd Christopher Jepson, who was hospitalized after an accident at Evergreen School last spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jepson of Diamond Bar are seeking the $8 million settlement for their son's hospital costs and permanent hearing defects stemming from the accident.

Todd was knocked unconscious after colliding with two boys running in a school corridor April 10, Mrs. Jepson said.

The claim has been forwarded to the district's insurance agent, Jo R. Paden Insurance. Todd was reportedly hospitalized one week and missed three weeks of school following the accident.

"Todd is still under doctor's care because of a hearing loss in his left ear. It's not a real bad hearing loss but it's still there. The doctors say if he progresses as he has been it might clear itself up," Mrs. Jepson said.

School trustees turned the matter over to the insurance agent, who will work with the Jepsons in the hopes of reaching a settlement outside of court. If an agreement isn't reached, officials said, a suit will be filed in Superior Court.

New storage vault invented

LA PUENTE — Eddy Huberts of 436 Dalesford Drive here has invented a stackable, collapsible, waterproof storage vault and is trying to market the fiberglass wonder.

Huberts is negotiating for the sale or licensing for the vault to manufacturers through the Raymond Lee Organization, a company specializing in development of new inventions.

Adult School opens its doors for youngsters wishing to read

INDUSTRY — This summer the La Puente Valley Adult School has opened its reading instructional lab to elementary pupils who wish to improve, maintain or catch up on their present reading and verbal skills,

Situated on the Valley Vocational Center campus, the lab provides a complete, individualized series of taped reading lessons which allow students to progress at their own pace.

"The lab was designed to be used by anyone, but until now only adults looking to complete their high school requirements have been involved," said Mrs. Mary Kernodle, who is in charge of academic programs at the Valley Vocational Center.

Currently 12 children are enrolled in the lab program, but there is room for many more.

"We have set up the program," explained Mrs. Kernodle, "so that a child comes in for an hour a day for as many days a week as is possible.

"The student works at an individualized station called a carrel under staff supervision.

"He works on books, tape cassettes and response sheets and finishes lessons at his own speed. The child then receives awards as he completes each lesson and goes on to the next one."

There is no fee for the program. Children from any school district may enroll.

However, parents of children attending must enroll in courses offered at the adult school. The minimum time spent by the parent must at least equal the time spent by the child in the reading lab.

If the parent works days and wants his child to attend the lab days, arrangements will be made for the parent to attend nights.

Future plans call for part of the reading lab to be moved to the La Puente Adult School on the Hudson Elementary School campus.

"We feel this program is a fantastic opportunity for children to get a boost in their reading abilities," said Mrs. Kernodle.

"It also gives the parent a chance to learn a worthwhile skill.

"I know many times a parent will take a child for a dancing, swimming or baton twirling lesson and sit and wait for an hour. Now they, too, may participate."

Additional information on the reading lab program may be obtained by calling La Puente Valley Adult Schools at 213 968-4638.

SUMMER THEATER

Mrs. Connie Costellano, who is cast as the queen in La Puente Valley Theater's presentation of the musical fantasy "Story Theater," sprinkles Victor Martinez with stardust, using her magic wand. Performances are scheduled Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Hudson School auditorium in La Puente. Admission is free but donations will be accepted. The show is a retelling of old fairy tales set in modern language. Reservations may be made by calling the La Puente Community Adult School at 213 968-8452. Large groups are urged to call ahead.

Carol sets taping in Australia

NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) — The Carol Burnett Show will have a program originating in the new opera house of Sydney, Australia, as its official opening, which is to be attended by Queen Elizabeth Oct. 20.

Claremont Music Festival

Faculty, Students in concerts

By RALPH PIERCE

CLAREMONT — Faculty members of the Claremont Music Festival presented a concert in Bridges Hall of Music Pomona College, Wednesday night, and students and faculty combined for another program there Friday. On Wednesday evening we heard the two-piano artistry of Karl and Margaret Kohn and a string quartette made up of Charles Libove, Joanne Zagst, Raymond Page and Leonard Feldman.

The first half of the program was presented by the Kohns who have been heard on some previous occasions in years past. As one of the foremost of our American contemporary composers, Karl Kohn is certainly one of the most eminently qualified people to interpret some of the contemporary serial music. Both he and his talented wife also possess the type of pianistic technic to play it. Their main offering was the "Structures" Vol. 2 by Boulez. I don't know how often this work is performed but it would be difficult to conceive of many two-piano teams who would have the patience and comprehension to sudy and prepare such a formidably difficult composition. It is not an easy work to listen to and, unless one had made an exhaustive study of serial compositional technique it would be impossible to really understand what went on. Suffice it to say that it was brilliant, tremendoulsy dissonant and that it completely exploited the range and dynamic possibilities of the two pianos. As a listener who can't lay claim to understanding the complex style of the music, I can only have the greatest respect for the Kohn's ability to perform a work of such vast technical and tonal demands.

For the first piece on the program the Kohns played the short Schubert Sonata in B Flat, D. 617. In this work the 21-year-old Schubert gave us a work of melodic charm and simplicity which seemed to be somewhat over-interpreted by the soloists in some passages.

The evening closed with a very musical performance of the Beethoven string quartet Op. 131. The last four quartets, of which this is the second, were the last works of the great master and in these he explored areas of music never traversed by any composer before or, for that matter, since. The players showed a complete undertanding of the complex work and gave rewarding reading of it.

Friday's concert closed the third week of concerts presented during the summer festival. For this concert the director, Giora Bernstein, chose three works of widely diverse styles. The first half of the concert presented a group of 12 wind players plus a string bass in the beautiful Serenade in B Flat, K. 361 by Mozart. The players in this work were all choen from among the younger members of the wind section which made their fine performance all the more impressive. This is not an easy work to perform, as Mozart knew the possibilities of each instrument and knew how to use them to their best advantage. I t would be difficult to conceive of a more beautiful interpretation of the work than the one we heard. The young players not only handled their instruments with professional skill but brought every musical inflection to the fore to make it a prime example of fine Mozart playing. The first oboe, Sara Watkins, played her instrument with an expressive quality that one seldom hears and the other performers gave equally sympathetic support.

After the intermission the largest group assembled thus far filled the stage to play the Pampeana No. 3 by the Argentine composer, Ginastera. This work is sub-titled "A Pastoral Symphony" and the first and third movements both displayed a colorful and peaceful style. It was in the middle movement marked Impetuosamente that the group had a chance to display the members' brilliant technique. A battery of percussion players, piano, harp and a full orchestra brilliantly interpreted the exciting rhythms and sounds used by this truly great contemporary composer. The conductor and the orchesta shared a real ovation after the exciting work.

The Ginastera was "a hard act to follow" but hornist Barry Tuckwell proved to be one who could do it. In the Weber Concertino for Horn and Orchestra, Tuckwell displayed about every technique you have heard on the horn and a few this reviewer hadn't heard previously. Actually the Weber Concertino is a rather weak work and far from a good example of better moments of Von Weber. If anyone could make it sound, it was Tuckwell who,with the able support he received from the conductor and orchestra, made it a performance long to be remembered.

'The Mikado' slated at Redlands Bowl

REDLANDS —"The Mikado," produced and directed by Dr. Edward C. Tritt, will be presented Friday night at 8:15 at the Redlands Bowl Summer Festival.

Tritt, on the music faculty of the University of Redlands since 1945, has conducted several operas for the Bowl as well as having founded and directed the University-Community Symphony for 24 consecutive years. He has been minister of music at the Redlands' First Baptist Church for 23 years and has taught in Salzburg during two semesters of the university's program abroad.

Dr. Richard Henderson, son of soprano Lara Henderson, will play the part of the Mikado, with his wife Lynn as Katisha.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Paul Bunyan is a mythical hero of huge dimensions, who accomplished many fantastic tasks. During the 1920s, James Stevens' stories popularized the lumberman. Bunyan became a national symbol for bigness, strength, ingenuity and exaggeration that reflected America's motivation to undertake immense tasks, The World Almanac says.

A very promising new partnership will be formed this coming year. It will be of help to you in harvesting your hopes.

Sanity not an issue in trial--ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The State Supreme Court ruled recently that the guilt or innocence of accused murderer Brent Bedayan must be decided before his sanity is tested.

Bedayan's lawyer, Frank J. Cox, deputy Marin public defender, asked to consolidate the court's finding because, he said, he would not deny Bedayan's guilt.

Bedayan is charged with the murder of three members of the Melvin Schallock family March 16 in Mill Valley.

Nolan Ryan not bitter about slight

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A friend of Nolan Ryan's was talking to him on the phone.

This was early last Thursday some hours before the California Angels' 26-year-old smokeballer made a lot of people's hearts jump by nearly pitching his third no-hitter of the season.

Only a short time before this call, Ryan had been informed he had been added to the American League All-Star squad.

It was sort of an after thought.

Due to a special provision, each league was allowed to name a 29th player. The National League tabbed 42-year-old Willie Mays in what amounts to a farewell gesture. The American League picked Ryan, who was not among the eight pitchers originally named by Oakland manager Dick Williams.

"Why don't you tell him to go spit in his hat now?" Ryan's friend said to him over the phone.

"No," replied the hardthrowing, softspeaking Texasbred righthander, "I'm not that kind of guy. Naturally I'm a little disappointed about not having been picked before this, but it's still a great honor anyway. You never know. Nobody can say how the game will go. I may get in there in the late innings."

Nolan Ryan may not know it, but he's practically a cinch to pitch in tonight's ball game here. Catfish Hunter, the ace of Williams' Oakland staff, probably will be named by him to start against the National League, but Ryan very likely will be in there somewhere along the way.

He is The Man now.

He's baseball's biggest sparkler, its shiniest gem at the moment, the same way Denny McLain was five years ago, Vida Blue was two years ago and Steve Carlton was last year.

Ryan is the one star among all the All-Stars everybody's eager to see, and Dick Williams knows that. Williams may have had his appendix taken out four days ago but his brains are still intact.

In defense of Williams, it should be pointed that at the time he originally was called by American League President Joe Cronin and asked about the All-Star pitchers he had in mind, Ryan didn't enjoy the same status he does today.

He hadn't pitched his second no-hitter for one thing, and he was under .500, as he still is now, for another.

But he was and still is the major league strikeout leader and when Williams named his eight pitchers without including Ryan, Cronin asked him:

"What about Ryan?"

"What about him?" said Williams. "I know he's one helluva pitcher, but (Bill) Singer is the one carrying the California ball club. Ryan isn't even pitching .500 ball. What am I supposed to do? Who do you suggest I drop. Look, I'm not playing any favorites. I wanna win this game."

Cronin did not pursue the matter further.

After all, the manager is supposed to be allowed free rein in picking the pitchers, isn't he, and if some "outside party" comes along and tries telling him whom to choose, well then you can see the kind of chaos that could develop.

When Cronin called him at the hospital in Oakland where he was operated less than 24 hours after his surgery, Williams was startled at the suggestion that someone else could handle the club for him.

"I wouldn't miss it for the world," he assured Cronin.

There's one more footnote about the pitchers Williams originally named, Wilbur Wood, the White Sox kunckleballer, was one of them, but he had to withdraw—regretfully.

Wood wanted to be a part of the All-Star game here and would've been except that his six-year-old son is undergoing an operation.

THEY'LL START TONIGHT

Rick Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals, left, and Jim "Catfish" Hunter of the Oakland A's will start for the National and American League All-Stars tonight in Kansas City.

Aaron center of attention

By CHARLIE SMITH
UPI Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The nation's fans will be looking for the "new Babe Ruth"—Hank Aaron—but the two men entrusted to get the 44th All-Star game underway tonight are Catfish Hunter and Rick Wise, who could wind up seeing each other again in the World Series.

Set against a backdrop of a 12-story scoreboard and a water spectacular that stretches 322 feet from tip to tip,

Channel 4, 5:15 p.m.

baseball's annual showcase game begins at 5:30 p.m. (PDT) in beautiful new Royals Stadium which is part of the $70 million Harry S Truman Sports Complex.

Aaron, who clouted his 700th home run Saturday night and is only 15 away from breaking the mighty Babe's record, will be the center of attention when he tries to jack one out against Hunter, who has yielded 27 homers this season, the most by any pitcher on either All-Star team.

Encircled by newsmen at Monday's workout, Aaron took the opportunity to express his disappointment over the fact that Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn didn't wire his congratulations following No. 700.

Kuhn, when he heard of the slight, said, "I'm certainly sorry that Hank Aaron was disappointed, and I am sure he knows I am one of his biggest rooters. I want to lead the baseball celebration when he hits Nos. 714 and 715."

Hunter of the Oakland Athletics and Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals, a pair of righthanders making their first All-Star starts, have led their teams into division leads after early reversals. Hunter, 15-3, has won 10 straight, while Wise, 11-5, has been a part of the Cardinals' stunning comeback from a 5-20 start.

Also on hand is Willie Mays, who will be playing on his 24th All-Star team. Mays, probably making his last appearance in the mid-summer classic, took offense when it was suggested that he was added to the roster out of sentiment.

"First of all," said Mays, "I don't need no charity, And if I didn't come, it really wouldn't bother me. But it would hurt baseball. There are a lot of guys hting better than me and there are a lot of 'em who aren't here.

A sellout crowd of 40,613 and a national television audience will be hoping to see Wondrous Willie take one more swipe.

Perhaps the most significant development in the lineups announced Monday was that Kansas City's Amos Otis will be patrolling centerfield in place of New York's Bobby Murcer for the American Leaguers. Murcer will be in left.

Otis said he expected to be playing left since Murcer drew more votes in the fans' poll.

"I know I'd feel the same way if it was the other way around," said Otis.

Chuck Tanner, Chicago pilot, ran the American League workout in the absence of Oakland's Dick Williams, who did not arrive until Monday night. Williams underwent an emergency appendectomy last Thursday, but will manage the American Leaguers.

The game could develop into a rash of home runs—including some into the water spectacular, which stretches behind the fence from centerfield to the right field bullpen and cost $750,000. Excluding pitchers, the National League All-Stars have hit 276 homers this season while the American Leaguers have hit 204.

Tonight's game will be the 40th anniversary of the All-Star idea. Nineteen players who participated in the 1933 event will attend the game as guests.

The starting pitchers in '33, winner Lefty Gomez of New York and loser Bill Hallahan of St. Louis, will simultaneously toss out first balls along with Kansas City Royals' owner Ewing Kauffman.

It was fitting that Ruth pounded a two-run homer in that first gathering of baseball's best. On this All-Star anniversary most of the fans will be concentrating on the man chasing his record.

Broncos gain a Jackson, lose one

LOCAL-NATIONAL Sports

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer.

POMONA — The Denver Broncos ended the first day of regular practice for the veterans Monday at Cal Poly with two less players than when they started.

Starting offensive guard Larron Jackson, a 6-3, 270 pound third year man from Missouri, was suspended and sent back to Denver when he and the club reached an impasse on salary negotiations.

Wide receiver Ike Hill, starting his fourth year of pro ball, was traded to the Chicago Bears for what the Broncos termed, "future considerations."

Bronco coach and general manager John Ralston said he had serious doubts as to whether Jackson "really wanted to play football."

"He wants quarterback wages at the level of a nine-year veteran," remarked Ralston. "I don't have anybody that is ready to make that kind of money after two years. We negotiated a new contract for him last year and gave twice as much as we should have then. With these kind of demands, there isn't even a chance of trading him since a club will want him signed first."

The Broncos began the day with 73 players in the camp and closed it with 71.

However, a 72nd is on his way back and will report next Monday. Tom Jackson, a rookie linebacker from Louisville and no relation to Larron Jackson, was notified by doctors that he will not require knee surgery as had been feared and should be able to play this year with protective wrapping.

Tom Jackson injured his knee in drills last week and was sent back to Bronco headquarters in Denver.

The scheduled scrimmage with the Dallas Cowboys one week from today has been postponed. Denver publicist Bob Peck said that Tom Landry (Dallas coach) decided there was no need to scrimmage Saturday and again on Tuesday and then play an exhibition game with the Rams Friday.

However, Ralston is hopeful the scrimmage, slated to be held at Cal Poly, can be held Saturday August 4. Whatever the outcome of the negotiations with the Cowboys, the Broncos will hold some kind of a scrimmage, possibly an intra-squad affair, on that date which will be open to the public admission free.

Williams gives U.S. some glory

MINSK, USSR (UPI) — Steve Williams could not believe what was happening.

There he was, anchorman in the 400-meter relay and running against Valery Borzov, a double gold medal winner in last year's Olympics and the man the Russians call the world's fastest.

Then, with virtually no effort, the 19-year-old San Diego student blazed past the Russian to gain an American victory which highlighted Monday's openng day events in the 11th annual track and field meet against the Soviet Union.

It was a rare bright spot for the American squad, riddled by absences and injuries.

The Soviets won 13 of the 18 events and rolled to a quick 118-71 lead on what, according to Jim Bush, the head U.S. coach, was supposed to have been the Americans' "stronger day."

The Soviet women completely dominated their American counterparts. They took first and second in each of the seven first-day events for a 53-20 margin. The Soviet men led 65-51.

The muscular 6-foot, 3-inch sprinter said he'd been saving all his energy for Borzov, winner of both the 100 and 200-meter sprints in the Munich Olympics, since the squad's European tour began.

"I only ran one event in Italy and Germany because of him," Williams said. "I was expecting serious business but it was all so ridiculously easy."

Williams said he wouldn't like that because he doesn't want to think Monday may have been a fluke.

"I'd rather have him out there and lose (myself), than not to have him out at all," Williams said.

Tom White of Van Nuys, Calif. took the 110-meter hurdles in 13.5 on a track slowed by several days of rain. But Evgeni Arzhanov upset Rick Wohlhuter of Chicago, the world record holder at 880 yards, in the 800 meters with a time of 1:49.2. Wohlhuter clocked 1:49.4

James Redd of San Diego, Calif., took the 400 meters in 46.7 and reliable Al Feuerbach of San Jose, Calif., his shoulder-length hair held in place with a head band, won the shot with a toss of 67-10.

The U.S. suffered a disappointment in the pole vault when Mike Cotton of Ocala, Fla., aggravated a torn hamstring muscle and failed to jump.

College All-Stars won't be pushovers

CHICAGO (UPI) — The College All Stars, though certain to be underdogs, shouldn't be pushovers for the National Football League champion Miami Dolphins Friday night.

The pro team, which won the NFL crown last year with a perfect 17-0 record, won't have any edge in size on the collegians, and probably won't have an advantage in speed or stamina either.

Southern California's John McKay, coach of the All Stars, has more beef for his line than any previous All Star team with his nine defensive linemen and nine offensive linemen averaging 254 pounds.

Since only five interior linemen can be on offense and four on defense at any time, he should have adequate reserves too. And since Miami doesn't rate as a big team, the Dolphins should have no edge when it comes to the scrapping up front, uniess experience can make the difference.

"We didn't bring anybody up here to sit on the bench," McKay said, "so everybody is going to play."

That ought to mean that the Dolphins will be going against fresh material at all times whether they're on offense or defense, and could make the game close all the way.

The Stars haven't won in this annual contest since 1963 and in 39 games have won only nine times, lost 28 and tied two. But the collegians have won only three of the last 20 games.

Biggest of the Stars' linemen is John Matuszak of Tampa, at 6-8 and 270, but the other defensive linemen are almost as huge. Wally Chambers of Eastern Kentucky is 6-6 and 255, Rich Glover of Nebraska 6-1 and 236, John Grant of Southern California 6-4 and 240, Gary Hrivnak of Purdue 6-5 and 250, Greg Marx of Notre Dame 6-5 and 265, Derland Moore of Oklahoma 6-4 and 255, Ernest Price of Texas A & M 65 and 256, and Jeff Winans of Southern California 6-4 and 256.

Violent storm strikes Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Catfish Hunter and Rick Wise, the two starting pitchers, were eager to go but the weatherman suddenly stepped in with a violent electrical storm which threatened tonight's 44th All-Star Baseball Game at Royals Stadium.

The game was scheduled for 5:15 p.m. PDT and the weather bureau said there was a 30 per cent chance the rain might continue until then. Should the contest be washed out, it will be rescheduled for 11 a.m. PDT Wednesday.

The Cincinnati Reds were on their way to a first place finish in the National League West and Buckner complained bitterly about Walter Alston's inability to field a set lineup.

He would be. The Los Angeles Dodgers have pulled way out in front in the Western Division, Alston is using a set lineup and Buckner is playing every day.

"This," said the mustachioed athlete, "is a big improvement over last season and I think going with one lineup most of the time has had a lot to do with our success. I know I feel good just knowing that I'll be in there every day."

"I'm not surprised at the way we've played so far," he said, "but I wasn't sure how good we'd be in the spring. I wasn't sure who he (Alston) was going to play and I've learned not to become too optimistic about what happens in spring training because we alwyas do well then."

He poined out that rookies Ron Cey and Dave Lopes won the starting third base and second base jobs, respectively, since the season started and Steve Garvey, a failure as a third baseman a year ago, earned the club's first base job with his hot bat.

Garvey's insertion in the lineup on a regular basis resulted in Buckner being moved to left field.

"I don't care where I play," he stated, "just as long as I get to play."

A lefthanded hitter who was the No. 2 selection of the Dodgers in the June, 1968, free agent draft, Buckner admits he is a changed man from last season.

"I wanted to play more last year and I was unhappy because we weren't winning," he declared. "This year the club has a winning attitude and everyone is happy."

The No. 2 hitter in Alston's lineup is confident his team will win the NL West.

"Of course," he continued, "The playoffs are a different story. Anything can happen in a five-game series. We lost three in a row to San Diego at the beginning of this month. On the otherhand, we have the pitching and we have Don Sutton and I think he's the best pitcher in the league."

Buckner, a native of Vallejo, Calif., has tried to curb his hair-trigger temper in his third full season in the big leagues. However, he still throws an occasional bat or batting helmet and kicks a water cooler once in awhile.

"I'm doing a little better, though," he said with a grin. "But I have to let off steam every now and then. It's a long walk back to the dugout after you strike out."

Although his batting average is 45 points down from the .319 he hit last season, Buchner is not concerned.

"My hitting will come around," he said firmly. "I hate to alibi but I've hit in a lot of tough luck this season. I've had a lot of line drives caught.

"I think I could still hit .300, it's not that far away. I have lowered my sights, though. Before the season started, I had hoped to be somewhere up there in the batting race."

World Series chief target for Concepcion

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds Shortstop Dave Concepcion will miss his dream of playing in tonight's All-Star baseball game. But he's already working toward another goal—playing on a World Series winner this fall.

Although selected for the National League All-Star squad, Concepcion will miss the game while a broken ankle bone begins to heal in Christ Hospital here.

But the slick-fielding Venezuelan is confident that both he and the Reds will be in the National League playoffs and World Series later this year.

"I'm sure we will make the playoffs and I think I can be ready to play," Concepcion said Monday in a bedside interview.

To make the playoffs, the Reds need to catch the National League West leaders, the Los Angeles Dodgers. At the All-Star break, Cincinnati trails the Dodgers by five and a half games.

The playoffs begin in October and Concepcion broke his ankle sliding recuperation timetable based on the Reds winning the western division.

"I'll be in this cast for three weeks and then in another cast that I can start walking on for three more weeks," he said. "Then the doctors said it should take about a month more, so I think I can be ready to play at the end of September."

Concepcion borke his ankle sliding into third base Sunday in a game against the Montreal Expos here. The injury came as Concepcion darted from first to third on an infield out. At the time the Reds were leading 6-0, which turned out to be the final score.

Namath's objective: improve Jet offense

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Joe Namath tied for the National Football League lead in touchdown passes last season but apparently it wasn't enough. He says his No. 1 objective this year is to improve the New York Jet offense.

Namath took part in his first training workout Monday as the Jets went through two-a-day sessions in preparation for their Aug. 3 pre-season opener against the Oilers in Houston. He moved gingerly on his surgical knees, handled the ball well and had the familiar zip on his passes.

"We need to improve our offense if we're going anywhere this year," Namath said. "We had a good year offensively last season—we were way up in a lot of categories—but we weren't consistent. We need more consistency this year. We have to control the ball more, keep it away from the other team. That helps our defense, too.

"We just had too many errors last season as far as I'm concerned — fumbles, interceptions. There were the errors that everyone could see and a lot of other ones that the people watching don't see but that foul up an offense. Mental errors. That's got to be one of our keys this year—to play good mental football."

The Jet quarterback said he's still working at improving his own game.

"Last year my reflexes weren't all that good," he explained. "I wasn't reacting the way I thought I should and I wasn't really as quick as I would like to be. Maybe it was the year layoff that did it but I could see things I wanted to do but I wasn't able to do them. I've been working on my reflexes a lot. I played a lot of basketball in the off-season to try to help my quickness."

Namath recently celebrated his 30th birthday and says he feels, "a little more settled but as confident as ever. I still have the same attitude—I want to win. It's great to win and it just isn't the same when you lose. Nothing seems to be right after you lose a game. In my head I feel I'm the best quarterback in the game but you still have to go out and prove it."

Namath laughed when asked about his reaching "the establishment age."

"I stopped counting the first time I walked into a bar and wasn't asked to show an I.D."

Rams release three players

Two rookies, Larry Battle, a wide receiver who had been a free agent, and Herman Christoph, a running back from Grambling College, were dropped.

Larry Shears, who was signed by the team during the off-season as a cornerback from the Atlanta Falcons was also dropped from the team.

Problems stalk N.Y. Giants

By United Press International

Two players—defensive end Larry Jacobson and wide receiver Tom Gatewood — were injured even before training camp opened. On Saturday, Bob Tucker, the No. 2 receiver in the National Football Conference last season and one of the premier tight ends in the NFL, suffered a broken hand.

And more bad news came Monday when George Hasenohrl, a promising rookie defensive tackle from Ohio State, walked out of camp.

Hasenohrl, an outstanding player in college under Woody Hayes, said he never really wanted to play pro ball but was talked into it. He reported to camp at 275 pounds, about 20 pounds overweight, was unable to complete the compulsory two-mile run and had difficulty with early practice sessions.

But he received high praise from the Giant coaching staff on Saturday for his work in a rugged drill and his departure shocked Giant Coach Alex Webster.

Tucker, meanwhile, went through practice playing one-handed Monday and caught three passes.

"The doctors say it's going to be five weeks in a cast," Tucker said. "I'm hoping it's quicker than that. I can do everything but contact work right now. It's pretty painful and I feel terrible about the whole thing. I don't even know how it happened. But I'll be ready for the regular season and that's what's important."

The only tight end remaining on the Giants' roster is veteran Gary Ballman, a $100 waiver pickup from the Philadelphia Eagles. Rod Freeman, a high draft choice out of Vanderbilt being tried at tight end, left camp last week to try out for the National Basketball Association Philadelphia 76ers. Freeman did not play college football.

Elsewhere around the camps, Joe Namath went through his first workout session with the New York Jets and said he hoped to establish "more consistency" in the offense this year. "We have to cut down our errors offensively," Namath said, "and play good mental football. This would help both our offense and defense."

Linebaker John Babinecz, a second-year player from Villanova, will be lost to the Dallas Cowboys for about three weeks with a broken hand and guard Ed Budde, a 10-year veteran with Kaasas City, walked out of the Chiefs' camp, apparently over a contract dispute.

Chiefs Coach Hank Strram said Budde and defensive tackle Ernie Calloway, obtained from Philadelphia in the off-season, would be fined each day they stay out of camp.

Baltimore continued to deal off its veterans, sending cornerback Charlie Stukes to the Minnesota Vikings for a high draft choice, and the Pittsburgh Steelers came out of a scrimmage Saturday with three injured players—wide receiver Ron Shanklin (shoulder), safety Glen Edwards groin) and offensive tackle Gerry Mullins (back). All are expeactd to return in a few days.

Veteran John Hendrson informed the Vikings he is retiring, leaving the club with only two experienced wide receivers, and a San Diego spokesman said rookie quarterback Dan Fouts of Oregon, who suffered a broken collarbone in the Coaches All America game last month, would need three more weeks before he can begin to work out with the Chargers.

Veteran running back Ken Willard, who had asked to be traded, reported to the San Francisco Forty Niners' training camp.

Ex-Trojan A.D. builds new PCAA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jess Hill, who built a college sports dynasty during his 15 years as athletic director at the University of Southern California, is now quietly laying the groundwork for another sports power of the future.

Hill's new plaything is the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, a relatively new college conference that brings together some of California's secondary sports powers: Cal State Long Beach, San Diego State, Fresno State, University of Pacific, and San Jose State.

Hill should know something about excellence, having watched his Trojan teams pile up a total of 29 NCAA titles during his tenure, which ended in 1972. He then immediately went to work as the PCAA's first fulltime commissioner.

The league is living in the shadow of the Pacific Eight Conference and will inevitably compete for athletes, spectators and finances with schools like USC, UCLA and Stanford.

"It's going to take some time for us to really compete with the PAC-8," said Hill. "They have been playing major football schedules for years, while we're only in our fourth year of existence. As time goes by, my feeling is that we'll become stronger.

"You have to learn how to walk before you run and to run before you sprint and when you start sprinting you better be awfully sure you know what you're doing."

The PCAA's first move to beef up its football program was the expulsion of UC Santa Barbara and Cal State Los Angeles last February. The two schools maintained competitive teams in all sports except football, which is where the league officials felt the PCAA needed improving.

Cal State Fullerton is scheduled to join the league when the two schools leave next June 30. Another school, Idaho State, was asked to join the league but its board of trustees vetoed the plan.

"We were always in the NCAA's university division in all sports, but we weren't a major conference in football until presently," Hill said.

"Football is the dominant sport because through football income these schools are able to help finance their athletic program for a lot of other sports."

From his years at the head of one of the nation's powerhouses, Hill knows that "some schools do make money" from their athletic program, "but not a great deal."

"People say colleges are interested in making money through sports," he said. "They're really interested in financing an athletic program, to give the students the opportunity to compete in and enjoy athletic competition.

"The most important problem facing intercollegiate athletics today is the financial program. It confronts all schools—the big, medium and small.

"If one of our games draws 20,000 people and USC draws 50,000, who's going to have more money to plow back into their athletic program?"

Hill admits PCAA teams are finding it "difficult to recruit (athletes) against the major institutions," but hopes the situation will improve somewhat when a new NCAA rule limiting the number of football scholarships to each school takes effect this year.

"This will mean that some players who would have gotten scholarships at major schools before might go to other institutions," he said.

"Some of our schools now are getting the top prospects in the state," added Hill, perhaps thinking of basketball All-America Ed Ratleff of Cal State Long Beach. "Some of the boys feel they have a better chance at one of our institutions than at a school with so much more outstanding talent."

Hill strongly believes that the PCAA schools should conduct a "well-rounded athletic program" with an equal emphasis on some of the "lesser sports" such as golf, tennis, and swimming.

"Football, basketball and baseball are normally considered the major sports," he said, "but they're no more important to those athletes than the lesser sports are to the boys who participate in them."

What the league needs most of all, he admits, is some time to grow. And Jess Hill plans to be in the midst of the development of the PCAA, just as he was at USC.

"It's a real challenge and I enjoy it very much. I feel I'm too young to retire and I think I've got a number of good years left. I'm very hopeful that together we can grow."

Connors broke Ashe's serve

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — The championship tennis match could have gone either way until unseeded Jimmy Connors broke the service of veteran Arthur Ashe in the second game of the fifth set.

Until then, it was a 2-2 match and no one knew who would win the $12,000 top prize in the U.S. Professional Tennis Championship at Longwood Cricket Club here. But after the service break, Connor, 20, of Belleville, Ill., took over and trounced Ashe, 30, of Miami, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 in a grueling three hour and 10 minute match.

"Ashe ran up to the net and hit back one of my mis-hits, said young Connors, who had never played the experienced Ashe. "It was really lucky for me. He hit it out, that broke his service, and if anything that was the turning point."

The methodical and smooth Ashe fought gallantly, rallying from a 2-1 set deficit to take the fourth set 6-3. But the energetic Connors took command in the last set and won it handily.

"I couldn't hold up under the pressure," the second-seeded Ashe said. "My concentration was pretty good but the problem I had was I was waiting for Connors to fold and he never did."

Connors, who turned pro in January said, "I just stayed in there. I was fresh all the way through and I just tried to sit down and relax between games. I went out there prepared to play five sets. I started putting too much pressure on myself in the fourth set. I had to pace myself better tonight than other nights. I lost a little concentration but I didn't get nervous."

Connors took command in the fifth set. After the service break in the second game, he won all his serves and ended the match by breaking Ashe's service without allowing a single point.

"He (Ashe) made a few more errors than I did especially in the fifth set, Connors said. "I concentrated on winning my service in the fifth.

"This is the best I have ever played in my life," the jubilant Connors said when he received his check and his trophy. "You may not believe this but nobody can continue to play like I have this week. I did everything well. I came here, like all the other players, to win."

In the final doubles match, the second-seeded team of Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C. and Eric van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., defeated Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and Ismail El Shafei of Egypt 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Hollypark ends season

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Millionaire Thoroughbred Cougar II was the last victor to prance into the winner's circle for the 1973 Hollywood Park season Monday, climaxing its Sunset Handicap triumph.

During the 76-day session which saw such champions as Susan's Girl, Convenience, Quack, Life Cycle, Amen II, Groshawk, Century's Envoy and Special Goddess in the running, attendance was up 12.8 percent over last year. A state season track attendance record was set with 2,244,667 race fans.

Cougar II finished the season as the leading money winning horse with $178,350 and the seventh leading money winning Thoroughbred of all time with earnings of $1.1 million.

Cougar II and jockey Bill Shoemaker, who rode the horse in the Sunset Handicap Monday, were double winners at the track. Shoemaker won 10 stakes, the most of any jockey for the season.

The biggest winner of the season turned out to be the state of California which pulled in a record $20,449,599 in parimutuel tax and breakage. The figure was up 14 per cent from last season.

Records were also broken for total mutuel handle, daily average mutuel handle and gross and net purse distribution to horsemen.

The leading money winning owner was Fred W. Hooper with $409,755, and the trainer winning the most stakes was Charles Whittingham with 7.

Colt general manager still cleaning house

Cornerback Charles Stukes, a six-year veteran who has started for the Colts since 1969, was traded Monday to the Minnesota Vikings for a high choice in the 1974 NFL draft. Stukes is expected to report to the Vikings within the next two days.

The trade of the cornerback followed by a week the dealing of defensive end Bubba Smith to the Oakland Raiders. Thomas has traded away a number of other veterans, including quarterback John Unitas, in his bid for a young Colt team.

"We have four other cornerbacks and that's what makes him expendable," a team spokesman said, explaining the trade of Stukes.

Stukes started 12 games in 1972 and led the Colts in interceptions for the second straight year with five.

Stukes played quarterback at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and also played basketball and baseball. He was sought by professional baseball scouts.

San Dimas, Chino lose

By TOM FAHEY
P-B Correspondent

POMONA — San Dimas was dealt its Waterloo by a modern-day Napolean Monday in the opening round of the Senior Division Section 7 tournament at Ralph Welch Park. San Dimas fell to Galaxie, 2-1, in an 11-inning marathon.

The Napolean that beat San Dimas was Galaxie's Napolean Sparks. Sparks scored both runs for his team, and was the winner of the contest thanks to 10-innings of brilliant pitching.

Sparks scored the first run of the game in the fourth. He was walked by San Dimas' Rick Harriman and then went to second on a wild pickoff attempt.

He went to third on a wild pitch and from there he scored on John Warren's sacrifice fly.

San Dimas sent the game into overtime when they tied the score in the bottom of the seventh. Greg Sayegh walked and Ken Normington reached base when second baseman Art Montano booted his grounder.

Sayegh reached third on a fielders choice and then scored on Bob Alexander's sacrifice fly to center.

The game remained silent untill the 11th inning, when an error started the inning off. Sparks reached base when first-baseman Kevin Pokrajac pulled his foot on the throw to first.

Valinda scored both of its runs in the second inning. Mike Kelso singled and Larry Cervantez was safe on an error by the first-basemen Gene Campbell, Kelso then scored from third on a fielder's choice by Ron Quintana. Cervantez later scored on a wild pitch.

San Dimas will meet Chino Hills today in the second round of the double elimination tournament. The game will be played at Ralph Welch Park at 5:30 p.m.

Valley Connie Mack teams bite the dust

LOS ANGELES — Only one local Connie Mack squad remains in contention for the state tournament after Monday's play in the district playoffs at Cal State Los Angeles.

Walnut was eliminated from the tourney after suffering its second loss, 6-3, to Hemet. Walnut lost the first game it played Saturday to Hawthorne, 4-1.

Claremont, meanwhile, was charged with its first loss of the playoffs, as Norwalk topped the Cardinals, 4-0.

The Cardinals ran themselves out of a potentially big inning in the first. Gary Bach singled to lead the inning off, and was caught stealing. Todd Ervin was aboard on an error, but suffered the same fate as Bach. John Beckwith doubled, but was caught rounding second too wide.

Bach got two hits in his three trips to the plate.

Walnut starting pitcher Lance Parrish spotted Hemet three runs in the first, but proceeded to pitch six strong innings, striking out 11.

Walnut left a total of 12 men on base, including eight during the first three innings.

Chino enjoys 19-2 victory

CHINO —Chino Western Appliance and TV kept its first-place hopes alive in the Tri-Star semipro baseball league Saturday night with a 19-2 shellacking of the Hawaiian Garden Aztecs.

The game was called after Chino Western exceeded the 15-run lead limit, which automatically ends gams under league rules with the team leading declared the winner.

Phil Carlo came up with two hits good for four runs batted in for Chino. Ken Bajema had two hits including a triple for three RBIS. Roy Nursement duplicated Benjamin's plate performance with three more RBI.

The win gives Chino Western a 6-2 record in league play, and snaps a two-game losing streak.

Chino will host the Pomona Patriots Sunday at 11 a.m. at Chino High.

L.V. settles for split at Riverside

Post 330 lost its second game in a row in the opener, 4-2.

Vallone started the second game and went five innings, striking out nine. Harold Drake started the sixth, and picked up the victory, while striking out four.

Drake hit the ball that was thrown away to allow Vallone to score the winning run.

Marty Schroedter had walked and been sacrificed to second but was thrown out trying to score on Vallone's base hit.

Jim Richards had two hits in the loss.

Post 330 winds up the regular season with an overall record of 30-14.

Claremont Pony wins to continue comeback

RIALTO — Claremont Pony League has a shot at the District 34 title, if it can pull off a doubleheader victory over host Rialto tonight.

Claremont reached the finals of the double elimination tourney by routing Cucamonga, 8-0, Monday evening.

Claremont broke the game open with a four-run third inning. Claremont picked up six hits, including a two-run home run by Jeff Johnson and a double by Mike Davis. Davis had doubled in the second and scored on a wild pitch.

Tonight's first game will start at 6 p.m. Should Claremont win and force a second game, the nightcap will begin 15 minutes after the last out of the first game.

After the opening 4-1 loss to Cucamonga, Claremont has bounced back to win three consecutive games over Upland, 11-1; Colton, 5-4; and Cucamonga.

Third skating title for Robin Miller, left, Jim Bray?

Skaters go for national title again

MONTCLAIR — Jim Bray of Ontario and Robin Miller of Claremont will try for their third national elementary pairs roller skating crown next month at the National Skating Championships in Lincoln, Neb.

If they succeed they will be the first team ever to win the national crown three times.

Both are 11 years old and will join a dozen other valley youngsters in the national competition. All are coached by Tom Panno, owner and teacher of the Holiday Roller Rink here.

The youngsters qualified for the national meet early this month at the Pacific Coast Regional Roller Skating Championships at Bakersfield. The local contingent won seven first, seven seconds and three third places in the regional competition, earning the team the high point award in the meet.

Qualifying for the national meet were Scott Sardahl, David Scott, Heidi Tyson, Rene Menegay, Kathalene Ford, Scott Sackin, Virginia Brown, Allen Tilton, Robert Watson, Pam Stewart, and Jim Sallenbach.

Good showings in the nationals would be a stepping stone towards the Pan American Games next year and the Olympics in 1976.

First youth track meet set at MSAC

WALNUT — It's harder than ever now to get something for nothing in sports. The first annual summer youth track meet, to be held at Mt. San Antonio College this Saturday, is one exception.

The meet, open to all kids, age 17 and under, is completely free of charge. There will be no entry fees or entry requirements, according to meet manager Ernie Gregoire.

The place is MSAC's outstanding track and field facility. The meet is co-sponsored by Gregoire's Southern California Track Club, The Pomona JayCees and the MSAC Community Services Department.

The actual competition will start at 10 a.m. and last until approximately 3 p.m. There will also be free instruction in track and field fundamentals offered in min-clinics to be held from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Competition in the meet will be in age-group brackets for both boys and girls. Awards will be given for first through fifth place in each event and age-group.

"This is strictly a fun-type meet," says Gregoire. "We want to provide an opportunity for kids to compete against each other in their own age-group. We hope to have kids from summer recreation programs come out and join us. There will be no entry or affiliation requirements."

The meet is being made possible through donations from the Pomona JayCees and the Pomona Police Officers' Association. Manpower at the meet is being provided by the JayCees.

More information on the meet can be obtained by calling Gregoire at 595-2211, ext. 353.

Sports news in brief

IF YOU SENT IN YOUR ALL-STAR BALLOT and didn't vote for Bobby Bonds, Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson says you blew it. The National League skipper says Bonds will be his first substitute. The San Francisco star is hitting .305 with 25 homers and 64 RBIs despite being the Giants' leadoff hitter.

FULLBACK KEN WILLARD, admitting he was late to the San Francisco 49er camp because he figured he would be traded, has rejoined the club and promised to do his best.

DAN FOUTS, the University of Oregon quarterback who was a third round choice of the San Diego Chargers, has ended a brief holdout to join the team at Irvine.

THE HOUSTON OPEN this year failed to attract the established 'big' names and lost money and may be cancelled in 1974, the president of the Houston Golf Association said Monday.

HARMON KILLEBREW, who ranks fourth on the all-time career home run list, underwent "very successful" surgery Monday to repair a torn medial cartilage in his knee and hopes to return to the Minnesota Twins' lineup in six weeks.

JOHNNY LIPON submitted his resignation Monday as manager of the Toledo Mud Hens of the International League "because he was unable to motivate the club any more". Pitching coach Cot Deal will handle the club the rest of the season.

ALTHEA GIBSON, winner of both the United States Amateur and Wimbledon championships in 1957 and 1958, said she would like to play in the mixed doubles of this year's U.S. Open at Forest Hills in partnership with Arhtur Ashe.

HOUSTON OILERS' coach Bill Peterson says he's "extremely excited" about the work quarterback Edd Hargett is doing for the team in summer camp. Hargett is a former Texas A&M standout.

Claremont netter makes eastern tourney semis

CLAREMONT — Alan Zetterberg, former No. 1 player on the Pomona College tennis teams of the late 1960s, made it to the semifinals of the Metropolitan Tennis Championships at Newport, R. I., last weekend.

Zetterberg, who also starred at Claremont High as a tennis player, now lives in Boston and has been involved in Boston Legal Aid work for two years.

Zetterberg recently advanced to the semifinals of the Massachusetts Open and the quarterfinals of the New Hampshire Hardcourt Tournament at Quincy, Mass.

His entry into the eastern tournaments was the first competitive tennis he has played since graduating from Pomona College in 1968.

Montclair girls now 6-1

UPLAND — Montclair Golden Girls continued playing successful softball Monday night, as the Major division claimed its sixth victory in seven starts, 8-7 over Corona.

The Montclair Minors, however, are still seeking to go above the .500 level after losing 4-3.

Kathy LaVallee singled in Patricia Neal with what wound up to be the winning run in the top of the seventh. Corona staged a five-run comeback in the bottom of the inning.

LaVallee was credited with the victory on the mound.

The Minors' record in the Inter-City Round Robin tournament stands at 3-4 after Monday. They were stymied by the pitching of Corona's Jeanette Ljaarda.

Both teams will be in action again tonight against Upland at Kingsley Park. The Minors play at six, while the Majors take the field at eight.

LOS ALAMITOS — Charger Bar, twice a world champion but a rumored "over the hill" mare earlier this year, was on the brink of pastured retirement, a casual life on a grassy knoll, little foals who would grow up and be world champions, oats in a silver platter, that type of thing.

But then Los Alamitos Race Course racing secretary Donald "Curly" Smith suggested a new stakes race to track president Frank Vessels. It was to be called the Winner Take All Invitational.

The track would put up $50,000. Owners of world champions in all nine categories—gelding, mare, older mare, etc.—would be invited to bring their horses to Los Alamitos for the one race. If the champion 3-year-old gelding wasn't coming, the second horse would be invited.

There was one catch. Winner Take All meant just that. Not a cent for second place.

So there was Charger Bar, owned by Dr. Ed Allred and Kenneth Wright, taking it easy after finishing fourth and then a dismal eighth in her last two races—back in late January and early February.

The idea of a Winner Take All intrigued the owners. Trainer Wayne Charlton started to work. But a month of the summer season went by and still Charger Bar, a horse who had won $226,172 in only 24 career starts, still hadn't arrived at Los Alamitos.

Then, on July 10, Charger Bar made an official appearance—an 18.3 workout.

Her first race was to be the $10,000 Chicado V. Stakes, a 400-yard allowance in which she'd be going against such horses as $93,600 Derby winner Al Due, another former world champion in Kaweah Bar, and two-for-two stakes winner Flight 109, along with such stakes stars as Ruby Khan, Plunder Bay and Native Empress.

James Dreyer, who rode her to such wins as the $100,000 Los Alamitos Championship, $90,000 Derby and $50,000 Go Man in 1971 and the $81,350 Maturity in '72, felt that the Chacado V. would determine whether she'd be entered in the Winner Take All.

Joe Mullaney leaves Colonels, joins Stars

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Joe Mullaney, who guided the Kentucky Colonels to two American Basketball Association playoffs in two seasons and also an impressive 68-16 record for one year, today was named coach of the ABA's Utah Stars.

He succeeds Ladell Anderson who resigned at the end of the 1972-73 season to become athletic director at Utah State University.

Utah Stars owner Bill Daniels and club president Vince Boryla presented Mullaney to the Utah fans in a surprise unveiling today by riding with the new coach on the back seat of a convertible in the annual Days of '47 Parade through downtown Salt Lake City.

Just prior to the start of the parade, Boryla said, "We're absolutely delighted to have Joe Mullaney as the new Stars' coach. He's a super coach and one hell of a guy. We have the best coach available; our kind of man."

In his first season with Kentucky in 1971-72, Mullaney won more games (68) than any man in ABA history. In the process he experienced fewer defeats (16) and had the best winning percentage (.805) in league history.

Last year the Colonels slipped slightly to 56-28, finishing second to Carolina in the Eastern Division regular season race. But they won the ABA Eastern Division playoffs for the second straight year, only to lose to defending champion Indiana in the ABA championship playoffs.

Mullaney is the Stars' third coach in four years. And for Mullaney, it will be his third professional team in five years. Prior to his two years with the Colonels, he spent two seasons as head coach of the Los Angeles Lakers of the rival NBA.

Merchants win on forfeit

POMONA — The Pomona Merchants Semipro baseball team won by a 9-0 forfeit over the West Cajon Cowboys and will take a 6-2 Sunset League record against the Colton Mercurys in an 1 p.m. game Sunday at Ralph Welch Park.

Napoles will defend title

TORONTO (UPI) — A world welterweight championship bout between current title holder Jose Napoles of Mexico and Canadian Clyde Gray has been "basically all settled" for Maple Leaf Gardens in September, Gray's manager said Monday.

Irving Ungerman said a "few things remain to be finalized" before the official signing for the bout, expected before the end of the week.

Ryan's boss is predicting third 'gem'

By JIM COUR
UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bobby Winkles, the peppery rookie manager of the California Angels, is pulling harder than anyone for Nolan Ryan's bid for baseball immortality.

The flame-throwing righthander from Alvin, Tex., is one of five pitchers ever to record two no-hitters in one year. And two months of this season remain.

"I definitely think Nolan will pitch at least one more no-hitter before his career is through," said Winkles, "but a no-hitter is an unpredictable thing. Nobody can predict he's going to get a third one this season."

Ryan's third no-hitter—if it comes—will be easier than the first two, according to the California skipper.

"After a man throws that first one," declared Winkles, "he's more relaxed. There's still a heckuva lot of pressure on the man and the element of luck still plays a big part but it definitely is easier.

"Take Nolan's second no-hitter this year. There was less luck involved in that one than the first one."

Ryan's first no-hit job came at Kansas City May 15 and he duplicated that effort at Detroit July 15. In his last start before Tuesday's All-Star game, he went seven innings before giving up a hit to Baltimore last Thursday night.

Winkles is dismayed at the 26-year-old fireballer's 11-12 record.

"Nolan pitches in some kind of tough luck," he said, shaking his head from side to side. "He goes until the eighth inning against the Orioles last week with a no-hitter and has a tie and then winds up losing the game.

"In four of his losses, we get shut out. You take those five games and put them in the win column and he's 16-7. That's not too bad, is it?"

On the rare occasions this season when opposing batters have been able to solve Ryan's stuff, the problem has been his control, Winkles said.

"He's had problems," the manager explained, "when he hasn't been able to get his curve ball over. Then they can wait on his fastball. He has so much stuff that he's able to get by basically with those two pitches.

"Anybody who throws as hard as Nolan has the potential for a no-hitter but he must have good rhythm like any other pitcher in the big leagues. Good rhythm is the key to success."

Since being acquired by the Angels in a trade with the New York Mets for Jim Fregosi, Ryan has been general manager Harry Dalton's big drawing card at Anaheim Stadium. He was the major league strikeout king in 1972 and is on his way to that title again in his second season with California.

Still, his record as an Angel is only 30-28.

"It's a funny record all right," said Winkles, "but this man is the type of guy who can win you eight games in a row because he throws so hard."

Sunday racing scheduled for Del Mar through Sept.

DEL MAR — Racing returns to Del Mar Wednesday and operators of the Del Mar Thoroughbred Club are anticipating another record-breaking meeting as Sunday racing is added to the many attractions that make the seaside course popular with both racegoers and horsemen alike.

With Sunday racing to be presented each week during the 34th season that ends Wednesday, Sept. 12, the "dark day" will be Tuesday. First post time Wednesday through Monday will be 2 p.m.

Since 1970, when the Del Mar Thoroughbred Club assumed control of the track, tremendously increased business — 37.2 per cent in attendance and 43.4 per cent in wagering — has contributed to and reflected continuing efforts to make the Del Mark meeting the most eagerly-awaited racing season in California.

Net purse distribution that averaged more than $64,000 daily in 1972 placed Del Mar ninth on the national list in that category according to figures released this year, and that ranknig is considered especially remarkable in view of the fact that Del Mar was 20th in daily average purse distribution in 1969.

More than $3 million in purses will be offered during the 43-day 1973 meeting, with the richest stakes schedule in the track's history including seven added-money events on Sundays topped by the $100,000 Del Mar Invitational at a mile and three-eights on the turf.

Extensive improvements in the race track grounds have greeted Del Mar patrons for the past two seasons, and the improvement program has continued through 1973.

Additional beautification of the infield, expansion of betting facilities in the plaza area near the main grandstand entrance, installation of closed-circuit color television for watching the races live and on instant replay and a revamping of the paddock-walking ring area are the most important of the changes that will be in evidence when the season opens.

Many of the toop Thoroughbreds in the West will swing into action during opening week when stakes events will highlight four of the first five programs.

Topping the opening day schedule is the $20,000 added Palomar Handicap, a turf race for fillies and mares. Leading the roster of candidates for the seven and one-half furlong contest are sophomore star Bell Marie and Impressive Style, the speedy filly who won the 1970 Del Mar Debutante.

Two-year-olds will meet Friday in the Graduation Stakes, the Oceanside Handicap will bring out three-year-old sprinters Saturday, and the first Sunday racing program in Del Mar history will be highlighted by the San Diego Handicap, and mile and one-sixteenth contest for three-year-olds and up.

The San Diego Handicap is the first in a series of races leading up to the $100,000 Del Mar Invitational Handicap Sept. 9. Completing a trio of rich races on the stakes schedule is the $75,000 Del Mar Debutante, a six furlong encounter for two-year-old fillies, and the $100,000 Del Mar Futurity at seven and one-half furlongs on the turf for two-year-olds of either sex.

Chappaquiddick will remain Kennedy's political albatross

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said recently that he will announce after next year's midterm elections whether he will seek the presidency in 1976. Sen. Barry M. Goldwater promptly underscored the dilemma facing Kennedy and his party.

The Arizona Republican, who went around the presidential track in 1964 only to be outdistanced massively by Lyndon Johnson, said the nation could do without Kennedy's moralizing about Watergate "when all the facts involving the Chappaquiddick tragedy" still are not known.

Goldwater referred, of course, to the death of Mary Jo Kopechne who drowned in July, 1969, when a car driven by Kennedy went off a bridge at Chappaquiddick Island off Cape Cod, Massachusetts. If his decision is to run, Kennedy must find some way to deal with the incident.

Otherwise, he would be tossing away what many in both parties see as a major Democratic advantage in 1976 —the public suspicions and misgivings aroused by the bugging of the Democratic National committee and the alleged cover-up by high White House aides.

Kennedy unquestionably is his party's most attractive potential nominee at this point. A recent Lou Harris poll gave Kennedy a lead of 50 to 42 per cent when matched against Spiro Agnew and a lead of 49 to 45 per cent against Republican convert John B. Connally.

Even so, some Republicans say privately they would welcome a Kennedy nomination because Chappaquiddick would offer them the best chance to offset Watergate. In support, they cite brisk sales at the recent Young Republicans convention in Atlanta of bumper stickers reading "No One Drowned at Watergate."

Goldwater, who leveled his blast at Kenneay at the Atlanta meeting, conceded the Republicans had been damaged by Watergate and that they faced a big job in regaining public confidence. But he also said:

"One does not have to excuse or condone any of the stupid illegalities of the Watergate affair to suggest that Senator Kennedy is the last person in the country to lecture us on such matter."

What upset Goldwater was a speech Kennedy made when he appeared July 4 at a rally in Decatur, Ala., honoring Gov. George C. Wallace.

He said the Massachusetts senator "constituted himself as both judge and jury in the Watergate affair."

Chappaquiddick has been a political albatross for Kennedy. Bruce Biossat, a highly respected political reporter and analyst who does his homework, checked out New York Democratic leaders about the time Kennedy was appearing in Alabama.

Biossat quoted one source saying that to the extent people are speculating on the party's 1976 nominee, Kennedy is leading but they are looking for somebody else.

"No deep new quest is required to search out the reason," Biossat wrote. "It's Chappaquiddick. And anyone probing Democratic governors at the June national conference in Lake Tahoe could quickly discover that this is a national appraisal."

However, the question confronting the Democrats is: If not Kennedy, who?

Kennedy said it was in fairness to other potential Democratic candidates that he had decided to spell out on his own plans after the 1974 elections. He probably will make the announcement at a news conference as did his brothers John and Robert.

If he decides to run, one of the first questions almost has to be: "What affect do you think Chappaquiddick will have on your candidacy?"

She clinched the decision

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — Mrs. Arjean Chambers, 38, being held on a charge of attacking her husband with a knife, was ordered released on her own recognizance recently. But she told the judge she wanted to stay in jail.

Jailers said that when she was returned to a holding cell, she piled up furniture, a mattress and a blanket and set fire to them, sending smoke billowing through the courthouse and causing the evacuation of several courtrooms. Damage was estimated at $800.

Fire alarm reveals many stolen items

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Firemen answering an alarm at the home of Morton Zisman, 41, found a fire alarm box, a fire hydrant, several street marker cones and city street signs, police said.

Zisman was charged with receiving stolen goods.

Pilot who refused to fly sent back to his home base

BANGKOK (UPI) — A B52 bomber pilot charged with disobeying an order to fly a mission over Cambodia has been sent back to his home base in the United States, U.S. Air Force sources said today.

The sources said Capt. Donald Dawson, 26, of Danbury, Conn., had left U Tapao air base south of Bangkok in the past few days under orders to report to his permanent station at Westover Air Force Base, Mass.

Air Force spokesmen said Dawson had left Thailand, but said they did not know his destination. They said investigation was continuing to determine if Dawson should go before a court martial.

Dawson, a 1969 Air Force Academy graduate, refused to fly a bombing mission on June 21 and said later he opposed the bombing in Cambodia on moral grounds and that the destructive force of B52s was not necessary in the Cambodian fighting.

A co-pilot on his third tour of duty, Dawson applied for a discharge from the Air Force and sought conscientious objector status shortly before the June 21 order.

Our Challenge Pays Off in Southern California!

DODGE SALES SET RECORD AFTER RECORD

This year, we Dodge Dealers are selling more Dodge cars and Dodge trucks than ever before. Our brand is very hot. Dodge car and truck sales are 28.8% higher in the Los Angeles region than last year (and we haven't stopped dealing, yet!)

SAN BERNARDINO/ RIVERSIDE COUNTY GOOD GUYS

THE HOT VAN!

NOW CALIFORNIA'S No.1 AMERICAN VAN

Southern California is America's hot spot for vans. Buyers know what they want—and most times, it's a Dodge Strong Box Van (instead of some other American made unit). Why Dodge? More models. We're the only Dealers with Maxivan, the largest compact van built in this country. We also offer shorter vans, on 109" and 127" wheelbases. We're the only van with Electronic Ignition, standard. You also get front disc brakes, independent front suspension, and lots of other goodies, too. But the biggest factor in making Dodge the HOT BRAND VAN is the kind of deal your nearby Dodge Dealer can give you. You might say we outsell the others in Southern California because we always try to give you a better deal. Check out a Dodge Tradesman Van now.

CHARGER

SETS RECORDS AS IT SETS STYLE

No mistaking the look of our "Great Shape"—Charger. When you pull up in a gleaming, low-slung Charger, people know you've arrived. But Charger's beauty goes beyond its great looks to great engineering. You get the Electronic Ignition System. It has no points or condenser to wear out or get wet. Charger gives you front disc brakes, standard. And, while they look much alike, there are actually five great Charger models in the line—from low-priced Charger Coupe to the elegant Charger SE. Here in Southern California, we Dodge Dealers are selling more new Chargers than ever. That's because we try to give you the best deal possible. We back it with dependable service—so that you'll always drive out smiling, because you're happy with the way we treated you. Price out a new Charger now.

HOT ITEM!

DODGE CLUB CAB PICKUP

We'll be first to agree: "exclusive" is a pretty tired word in advertising. But in the case of our Dodge Club Cab pickup, "exclusive" is the best way we can describe a truck that none of our competitors has! You see, nobody else has a cab with 34 extra cubic feet of inside storage space. Your valuable tools, sporting gear, hunting dogs, even groceries (at current prices) are safe and out of the weather—under lock and key. (You can even get two optional flip-down seats in the back.) Our Club Cab pickup also features front disc brakes and the Electronic Ignition System. To round out our great Dodge pickup line we also have the regular Dodge cab as well as the larger, 6-man Crew Cab pickups. No matter which one you need—you can be sure you're getting the kind of a deal that made our brand of pickup "hot"!

SMALLER DODGES— BIGGER SALES

This year, over half the Dodge cars we sell are Darts. People are just plain astounded over the amount of room inside the car and its trunk! People like the way we deal on our 1973 Dart models, too. When the car is right and the price is right—little wonder we sell so many! Right now, we can show you 7 different Dart models: two hardtops, two 4-door sedans, the Dart Sport, Sport 340, and the Sport "Convertriple" (our famous 3-in-1 compact car). To date, over 1,800,000 Dodge Darts have been sold. It's always been a fine car and a terrific value. This year, we've added Electronic Ignition, standard—making it even a better buy. No matter what size of car you're shopping for, drive a Dodge Dart now. Check our deals, our fine choice of options, colors and models. You'll see why our brand of compact is mighty "hot" this year!

Plan for full security Camp Rockey hit

SAN DIMAS — Los Angeles County's proposal to turn Camp Glenn Rockey in the San Dimas foothills into a full security boys' camp came under the fire of city councilmen concerned with fire prevention Monday night.

Councilman D. F. Hooper said that the conversion of the camp, which is run by the county probation department, from minimum security to full security would preclude future use of the camp members on fire fighting lines and would end the brush clearing and fire prevention activities currently carried on by camp members.

The central issue of the controversy is a proposed 14-foot wall around the camp. Construction of the wall would elevate the camp to full security status and thereby change the type of youths to be housed there.

According to Hooper, the foothill communities need the fire protection services now available through the work of the camp members. He suggested that if the county goes through with its plans to convert Glenn Rockey into a full security camp, that the county also establish a new facility in the area with fire prevention responsibilities.

The subject of the camp's security came before the council with the receipt of a letter from County Supervisor Peter Schabarum asking the council to reconsider its previous position opposing the construction of the wall around Glenn Rockey.

In addition to Hooper's statements, Councilman Keith Brogan also reiterated his position opposing the camp's conversion. No official council action was taken.

In other action, the council:

—Heard a report concerning the erection of new electrical towers for the high tension power lines that run along the northern portion of the city. According to the latest information, the only detrimental effects to be felt by the city will be the possible closing several holes on the city golf course for several days while the new towers are erected. No date for work on the new towers, which will double the lines' capacity, has been set.

—Approved tentative tract for the development of 154 condiminium units on 21 acres on the south side of Cypress Street at Lone Hill Avenue. Next step for the development will be the submission of construction plans.

Potential juror interviews go on

ONTARIO — Interviews of potential jurors, secluded from each other, for the murder trail of three California Institution for Men inmates accused of killing a fellow inmate and wounding another on Dec. 17, 1972, continued this morning in West Valley Superior Court.

The three defendants: Juan Figueroa Colon, 29; Raymond Ledesam Contreras, 35; and Frank Phillip Mendoza, 28; are accused of killing inmate Rudolph A. Cadena, 29, and wounding inmate Gilbert R. Sandoval in a fight at CIM's Southern Reception Guidance Center.

Cadena was stabbed more than 50 times by his assailants. Sandoval was stabbed numerous times as well. Both men were then shoved or thrown over a steel railing, falling to a cement floor two stories below.

Since last week the attorneys for the defendants and Deputy Dist. Atty. Kenneth Kloepfer have been questioning potential juror. After the initial inquiry into the jurors' backgrounds by Judge James Cunningham, each juror individually, out of the presence of the the other jurors, was asked persoanl questions. The questions apparently were designed to determine if there were any prejudice because of past experiences toward the prisoners, attorneys or the law.

The defense attorneys jointly have numerous peremptory challenges they may use to dismiss any juror for cause. A number have already been dismissed for various reasons.

Meanwhile the defendants have been placed under tight security by the West End sheriff's office for undisclosed reasons.

'Friends' of college name slate

CLAREMONT — New officers of the Friends of the Claremont Colleges are Robert P. Hastings, president; Charles F. Horne Jr., and H. Safford Nye, vice presidents; and H. Russell Smith, secretary. Ralph V. Arnold continues as treasurer and Elsie R. Schlick as executive secretary.

A partner in the Los Angeles law firm of Paul, Hastings, Janofsky and Walker, Hastings is first vice chairman of the board of Harvey Mudd College and a trustee of Friends of the Huntington Library, the Civic Light Opera Association and the Music Center Operating Co.

Youth's nose broken by group in car

POMONA — A youth's nose was broken in what he said was an unprovoked attack late Monday night in the 700 block of S. San Antonio Avenue.

The victim, Bryan T. Parker, 16, said he was walking when a carload of youths stopped, grabbed him and he was beaten, knocked down and kicked. He said he had never seen the youths before and knew of no reason for the attack.

Parker said his principal attacker was white, about 17, 5 feet 9, and weighed 170 pounds. He had brown hair, wore a brown jacket, yellow-and-maroon shirt, dark trousers and shoes with 2-inch heels.

The victim was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Man accused in stabbing of wife, 26

POMONA — A Pomona man was arrested Monday night and accused of stabbing his estranged wife at 1717 Grier St.

Robert Alan Edwards, 28, a stock clerk, was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder after his wife, Joyce Ann Edwards, 26, was found lying in the bathroom of the home, stabbed several times. She later was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Edwards was treated there for a cut forearm.

Police said Mrs. Edwards was preparing to leave on vacation when she was attacked with a 6-inch kitchen knife. The couple had been separated about three months, officers said.

Artist makes

Jewelry with taste

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Kushner, an artist who invented edible clothes, is out now with munchable jewelry.

He says you can make string bean earrings, scallion headpieces or cocktail onion-mushroom-and-olive necklaces. You need needle and thread and the food.

"Fresh looks best," Kushner said. "You can wash it off after wearing and eat it. You spray with water to keep the jewelry from wilting."

The artist is well-known for creating events and performances, using natural and found materials, this edible fashion shows—were, happenings — first took place in California and New York a spell back. They featured hot dog aprons, Velveeta epaulets, a scallion dress and a string bean cummerbund.

Kushner was interviewed at a rehearsal for a happening he's staging next week at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts of the American Crafts Council. The week-long event in New York is part of a make-it, wear-it, share-it craft summer program supported by the National Endowment for the Arts.

The flower and vegetable week will center on the art of making mouth-watering and creative jewelry and-or complete costumes from vegetables and flowers.

Produce will be kept fresh in a portable green house installed in the museum. Yarn, needles, thread and cutting utensils also will be on hand. Visitors will sit down and make edible wearables.

Those inclined this way are asked to bring raw materials— carrots, green onion, peppers, cucumbers, celery, cabbage, zucchini, mums, marigolds, dried macaroni, lemon orange and grapefruit peels, pretzels.

Pretzels? They make wonderful belts and vests.

"These materials are not only fun to work with, but are delicious," Kushner said. "The pleasure of eating your own creations is an important part of the total experience."

Kushner made a neckpiece of cheese and salami slices while I watched him rehearse. It looked as though he was making salads and cold plates. Snipping, stripping, arranging.

"Wearable edibles are an interesting idea," he said. "To me they highlight the tension between clothing and food."

"You mean," I asked him, "the kind of tension that happens when you eat too much and your clothes get tight?"

"Not at all," he said "It's the way wearable edibles change one's perception of food. It's fun to shop for food in terms of what you will wear."

He cut a red cabbage in two, strung a lot of scallions—green onions—between the halves. Presto—a fresh headpiece worn this way: the cabbage halves are like earmuffs holding the onions on across the cranium.

He also made a zucchini necktie (cut it long and used a slice out of the middle about one-quarter inch thick). This was suspended from a necklace fashioned of slices of carriots, cucumbers, green beans. He made a tie pin of carrot. Only it wasn't pinned on. It was stitched on.

A second headpiece was pretty, interesting and maybe suitable for a wedding in a garden or woods. It was made of scallions or green onions, the tops cascading down the sides like a mini-veil. Petunias and button marigolds were laced into the crown.

Also dangling were string bean earrings and another pair made of peanuts in their shells and Cheese Doodles. A peanut, a doodle, a peanut, a Doodle— until you have the length you want. The dried food jewelry keeps best.

Kushner lives in the New York artists' community Soho. He is a graduate of the University of California at San Diego.

He says carrot tops make a nice choker. Outer leaves of cabbages, often discarded by stores, make fine, tough vests. Onion peels can be turned into a hat with an interesting aroma.

"The possibilities of fashioning an esthetic as well as a gustatory experience are endless," Kushner said.

He does not make his living at art For that, he manages a Soho restaurant.

He has not been seen making clothes or jewelry out of the restaurant's leftovers. Not yet.

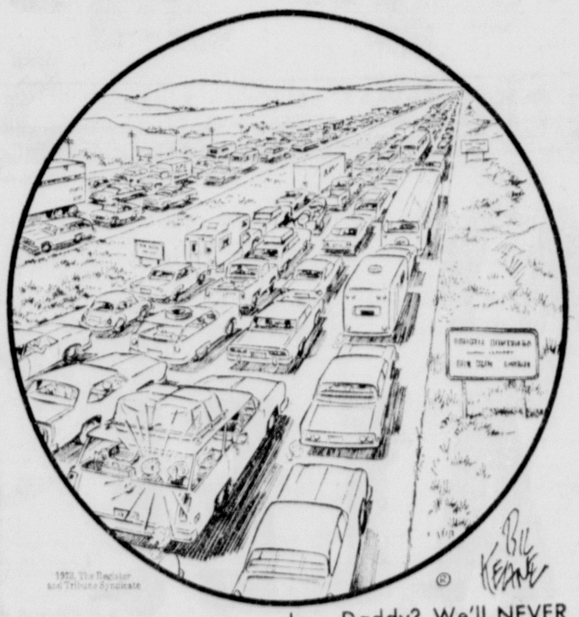
THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"Why are you going so slow, Daddy? We'll NEVER get there."

Ask Dr. Brothers

Likes older man

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Dear Dr. Brothers: My husband and I are very upset because our daughter is engaged to a man 20 years older than she is. We're both sure this will end in divorce and because of our religion, this means even more problems and tragedy. My husband is determined to break up this relationship but it only results in terrible fights between my daughter and him. This hurts me as they were always very close. My daughter adored her father all her life and now she treats him as if he were an old fool. I just don't understand how this could happen when we've been such a close family.

Fortunately, my daughter can still talk to me and I know it's important to keep it this way, otherwise there will be nothing left. She keeps telling me what a nice, good man this is, but I know that he'll be an old man when she's still young. I can't stand to see her robbing herself of half of her life. What about later? I ask her, but she won't answer.—S.D.

Dear S.D.: Today people, especially the young, think much more of the moment, the present, than they do of the future. This is one reason people of all ages feel freer to explore new ways of living. They refuse to be bound by old ideas, old prejudices and rigid life styles. This way of thinking is not necessarily bad. For instance, your daughter's fiance may meet many of her needs. She may see in him qualities she admired in her father.

You and your husband are jumping to quick conclusions by assuming that this marriage is automatically going to be "tragic" just because there is an age difference of 20 years. If your daughter and this man share common interests, if they respect each other and fulfill each other's needs, she may have a rewarding relationship that will be as stable, or even more stable, than a marriage to a man her own age.

There are risks, naturally, when there is a marked age difference, but there may be compensating factors you are unaware of. According to Dr. John Cuber, the ability to even contemplate an unconventional marriage, such as a marriage to a man 20 years older, requires an unusual amount of selfconfidence and a kind of inner resolve and strength.

Since your daughter is going against tradition in terms of friends her own age, she is demonstrating independence and an ability to make decisions on her own. Many older men give women a kind of instant status, and some women need an older man who is emotionally mature and secure within himself.

It used to be that health was a tremendously important factor when there was a great difference in a couple's ages, but now this is much less significant. Neither men nor women age as rapidly as in the past and many an individual in his or her 80s is still extremely active. None of us can be absolutely certain that we will not suddenly become disabled and age is not always a factor.

The main point is that even if the odds were stacked all the way against this marriage, there is little that you or your husband could do about it. You cannot live your daughter's life and by trying to do so, by interfering, you will only alienate her and destroy what you have built up over the years. There is even some indication that parents who try to break up their children's personal relationships actually only make those relationships look more appealing, and attractive.

Sometimes a 'sucker list' is high class

By PAUL R. ALLERUP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Did you ever get the feeling you've suddenly landed on "a list"? (Discretion forbears use of the term "sucker list").

Such a feeling grips me.

My mail has taken a most surprising turn in recent days. Surprising because whatever list I've landed on, someone seems to think I'm either loaded or soft in the head.

It started with an "invitation" to inspect a private two-jet airplane, just the thing for the busy executive who can't be bothered riding the airlines.

That could happen to anyone, one supposes. But then arrived still another invitation, this one to join "a select new community" in Florida where a home was waiting for me for as little as $94,500, or up to $195,000 if I needed a bit more room.

In a matter of days I was offered other homes in various places around the country, all of them seemingly in the $90,000-$200,000 category. One letter also spoke of a little chalet in Switzerland that could be mine for "about" $250,000.

My most distinguished mailed invitation — these things all seemed to be "invitations" — came from His Grace, The Duke of Leinster, in Sussex, England. He wanted to sell me title to 25 square feet in Anderita Park in Sussex, where Julius Caesar fought and William the Conqueror landed, for $675. Just think, wrote His Grace: "Julius Caesar, William the Conqueror. And You."

Then there have been the letters from brokers starting, "If you have $50,000 or more to invest...."

Flight from Lithuania stirs hassle

HELSINKI (UPI) — A freighter picked up Viktor Schneider as he rowed across the gulf of Finland — and touched off a diplomatic hassle involving the United States and three other countries.

Schneider, 25, was rowing across the Gulf of Finland when a Finnish freighter picked him up last week. He said he was a Lithuanian whose parents were German and he was going to West Germany to ask for asylum.

But, Finland said it wants to return him to the Soviet Union as required under an agreement with Moscow. The Soviet Union says it wants him. West Germany says he possibly is, as he alleges, a German citizen. The United States is appealing on humanitarian grounds for his release.

The foreign ministry said Monday he wants West German ambassador Detley Scheel to present written proof that Schneider is entitled to German citizenship.

Schneider flagged down the freighter because, he said, he thought it was West German. The freighter's skipper took him to Helsinki—and the police, who said he must go back to the Soviet Union.

Schneider carried no passport or identification papers and did not ask Finland for asylum. Under consular agreements with the Soviet Union, Finland is obliged to return Soviet citizens in such cases.

However, a West German embassy spokesman said that under German law anyone who is a direct descendent of a German father is a German citizen no matter where he was born. Schneider's parents lived and died in the Soviet Union, he said, but their family on the father's side may have been German.

The embassy said it could not be sure of its facts unless allowed to question Schneider. The Finns refused.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said Monday that the embassy appealed to Finland on humanitarian grounds to release Schneider.

The affair embarrassed many Finns who believe they must honor the agreement with the Soviet Union, but also are aware the affair again makes Finland seem under the Russian sphere of influence.

Protests put Khadafy back in charge

CAIRO (UPI) — Col. Moammar Khadafy withdrew his resignation as chairman of the ruling Libyan military junta Monday after 12 days, saying he was doing so under public pressure.

Tens of thousands of Libyans had shouted for his return in rallies all over the oil-rich country.

But Khadafy warned he might again resign if and when he realizes his ambition to see his own country and Egypt merge as a single nation. Or if he is unhappy with the pace of bringing the two North African neighbors together.

Khadafy, 31, whose title is chairman of the Revolution Command Council, said in a three-hour speech that he was returning to office because of widespread popular insistence.

Khadafy spoke at the town of Al Abiar, near Benghazi, where he has stayed in an army camp since he resigned July 11. He quit because, he said, to make the Libyan-Egyptian merger easier.

"Now for the sake of all of you, for the sake of those staging sit-in strikes and for the sake of those who suffered," he said Monday, "I return to my post as of now, provided that I review this stand after the union."

He said if things did not go as he wished after the merger, "I will have the right to take the appropriate stand."

Khadafy's resignation was at least his third since taking office in 1969 and prompted demonstrations and strikes in Tripoli and Benghazi.

Thousands of Libyans marching to Cairo to demand the immediate merger Khadafy sought returned to Benghazi during the weekend to join the calls for his return to office.

In an effort to persuade him to withdraw the resignation, the entire cabinet submitted its resignation and the 10-man Revolution Council theatened to do likewise.

In his speech, Khadafy said the merger with Egypt will take place regardless of Cairo's wishes. Egypt was enthusiastic at first, but is now reluctant to merge with Libya and has postponed a decision until September, 1974.

Khadafy wants Islamic law applied more strictly in Egypt and is critical of the Egyptian civil service, which he said was corrupt.

'Tight' gas for 2 years, says official

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A top executive of Standard Oil of California foresees two more years of "tight" gasoline supplies for Americans.

Following an address to the local Chamber of Commerce, Standard's vice president and director J. R. Grey Monday told newsmen that what appears to be improved gas supplies at service stations was the result of cutbacks by individual motorists.

"I still see a tight situation, and I see it staying tight but not impossible," Grey said.

Asked for a prediction on the length of the shortage, Grey said he expected "two years of tight supplies and Americans will have to be more careful with energy from now on."

He defended his firm against Federal Trade Commission charges that Standard and seven other oil companies violated antitrust laws. He said it was "in the public interest" that major producers continue to be involved with oil exploration, drilling, refining and marketing.

The FTC has issued a complaint against the eight oil giants, charging they manipulated the shortage.

"If what these critics say were true—that the shortage is indeed contrived—it would undoubtedly go down in history as one of the greatest hoaxes ever perpetuated by man, requiring the full cooperation and top secrecy of scores of different competing oil companies and thousands of employes throughout the petroleum industry," he said.

Coke and aspirin: will it turn you on?

Dear Walt: Is it true that drinking coke and aspirin will turn you on sexually? One of my friends said this happened to him. — Mike

Dear Mike: If you think that drinking coke and aspirin, or munching Hershey bars, or sniffing lemon juice will turn you on, the thought alone will usually turn the trick. But, actually science has yet to find any foods or scents that are true aphrodisiacs.

Personally I'm not happy to hear of anyone taking an unnecessary aspirin. We're too prone already to overdose ourselves from that barrage of TV-hawked medications. If you want to pursue this further, spread the word that drinking orange juice and munching celery will send you into erotic orbit. At the least it will be a healthy input. — Walt.

Dear Ele: I'm in a theater crew this summer and want to do my best so that everyone likes me. Yet I know if you do too much it looks pushy and then people get turned off by you. Considering this, do you think it would be OK or too much if I gave a party for all the regular people and the other summer apprentices too? —Karen

Dear Karen: I think it would be cheeky if a single newcomer gave a party for one and all. It might also ring as "rich girl tries to buy attention." But if you serve as catalyst to get all the summer apprentices to join in hosting a party for their "seniors," it could be inspired action. —Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: With all the Washington scandals, and my own parents' divorce and what happened to me at schoo lthis year, I have just about lost faith in the older generation. Now I have a chance to work with two people who are over 50. We would be in contact with each other eight hours a day, five days a week. Do you think I should take the risk, or stay where I am with people of my generation? (The new job would pay 25 cents more per hour. —Rachael

Dear Rachael: If this is going to be a do-or-die situation, where you make your final judgment of all older people on the basis of this experience, stay where you are. But if you'll accept the truth that people are individuals — and that these two potential coworkers might be pluses or minuses — give it a chance.

But before you do, sit down in a meditative spot, and draw up a list of all the adults whom you'd want to rescue in advent of catastrophe. Looking for the good ones may open your eyes to realize you've had more positive relationships than you recall in time of disappointment.

Think of teachers, relatives, neighbors, friends' parents, shop owners and salespeople, medical people, church and social-work personnel youth agency workers, etc. —Ele and Walt

Students in U. S. as good as any in the world

NEW YORK (UPI) — Students in elementary, junior and senior high schools in America did at least as well as and in many cases better than their counterparts in the schools of 19 other nations on science, reading comprehension and literature Achievement Tests. The tests were given on a world-wide basis for the IEA—International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement.

Inouye denies he's seeking governorship

HONOLULU (UPI) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, a member of the Senate Watergate committee, has denied a report by a Honolulu newspaper columnist that he might be considering running for the governorship of Hawaii.

In a call from his Washington office, Inouye said he underwent a complete physical examination two months ago and was given a clean bill of health.

He said, "In my most recent conversations with myself I have decided that I have no interest in running for the governorship of Hawaii. I hope the people of Hawaii will permit me to continue to serve them in the U.S. Senate."

Inouye's statement came in response to an item columnist Dave Donnelly ran in Wednesday's issue of the newspaper which said Inouye was rumored to be considering returning to Honolulu to seek the governorship because of poor health.

P-B Salutes Women

Clubwomen in Pomona Valley are known for their interest in the community and for their dedication to improving conditions for the underprivileged. Other women dedicate their efforts to education and concern for the young and the old.

The Progress-Bulletin salutes four Woman Achievers along with the thousands of valley clubwomen in the 12th annual edition of Valley Women for their great effort in aiding their communities.

Winners of the awards are Mrs. Harold Edick (Marie), Pomona; Mrs. William Kelber (Rose), Ontario; Mrs. Sanford Newton (Pat), Pomona; and Mrs. Richard Todd (Jean), Pomona. Their stories are found on pages 16, 17, 20 and 21.

The women's staff of the Progress-Bulletin is very grateful to the individuals who submitted nominations for the awards and who completed forms on the many organizations so their stories could be told.

We regret omissions and request that organizations who did not fill out club blanks send us their stories so they may be printed in our regular women's news columns during the year.

Thank you,

Firemen assisted in emergencies

The Pomona Fire Department Auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Larry Ogle, 982 W. 19th St., Upland, meets on the second Tuesday of the month. Assisting Mrs. Ogle are Mmes. William Holt, vice president; Ronald Bozarth, secretary; Dale Janssen, treasurer, and Ramon Daunis, publicity chairman.

Fund-raising activities included a Montclair Plaza Bazaar, T.V. pilot preview, and food sale at an auction. The group was organized as a social club for Pomona Fire Depactment wives and also to provide assistance to the department in emergency situations.

The auxiliary contributes to many philanthropic projects as well. Some of these are: Joe Brown Project, Casa de Vida Convalescent Hospital, Pomona Valley Historical Society and the Hillview Acres Children's Home.

DR. MABEL HAMMONS

MRS. ROBERT HANER

McKinley Boys Home assisted

The 83 members of the San Gabriel Valley Chapter, Women's Auxiliary to McKinley Home for Boys meet on the first Monday of the month under the leadership of Dr. Mabel Hammons, president.

The club is dedicated to assisting the maintenance of a home-like environment for the boys of the San Dimas home. In addition to a Christmas party and awards banquet, the club observes each boy's birthday with a gift and refreshments. This year a fashion show was held to raise funds for projects such as curtains and other room accessories, scholarships and clothing.

Other officers include Mrs. John Keith, vice president; Mrs. Crawford Edler, secretary; Mrs. F. B. Lancaster, treasurer; Miss Thelma Loys Wright, publicity chairman.

Service agency assisted

The Family Service Auxiliary meets on the fourth Wednesday of the month. The club's purpose is to help support the West End Family Counseling Service Agency by organizing fund-raising activites; to interpret the purposes of the agency to the community and to provide service to the agency.

Officers are Mrs. Robert Haner, 643 Anaby Court, Upland, president; Mrs. Gary Vollers, vice president; Mrs. Edward Powers, secretary; Mrs. Martin Schwarzbach, treasurer; and Mrs. Mike Koslosky, publicity.

The 50 members took part in a model home decoration contest at Christmas, presented the Bob Baker Marionettes and decorated the new agency office along with many other activities this year.

Guilds aid children

Fund raising events are held throughout the year by the auxiliaries to The Children's Home Society, a private counseling and adoptive agency. The proceeds are used in support of the society and the presentation of information and service to adoptive parents, unwed mothers and for special childrens' needs.

The 50 member Claremont Auxiliary, Children's Home Society, presented a Christmas bazaar, associate membership luncheon and spring party entitled The Godfather's Birthday, for fund-raising projects.

Mrs. Jack Doyle, 1987 Radford Ave., Claremont, serves the club as president with assistance from Mrs. Michael Koslosky, vice president; Mrs. Harold Parker, secretary; Mrs. Lee Harlan, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Verrill, publicity chairman. The auxiliary meets on the fourth Thursdday of each month.

The Cradle Guild Auxiliary, Children's Home Society has 13 members and meets on the second Monday of each month. Mrs. Robert H. Montoya, 3419 Sagehurst Dr., Duarte, is president of the auxiliary which contributes proceeds frm the annual bazaar, held in September, to the society. Other officers are Mrs. Earl Munsey, vice president; Mrs. George Riggs, secretary; and Mrs. David Haugen, treasurer.

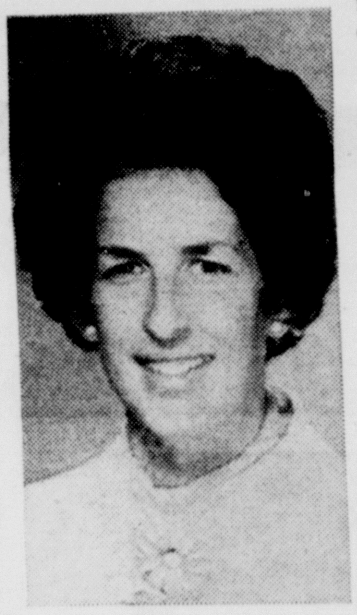
Membership brunch, ghost party mailing and a casino party were the highlights of the year for the 25 members of Casa Alegre Auxiliary, Children's Home Society. Officers are Mrs. Allyn Scheu, 2031 N. Euclid, Upland, president; Mrs. Emil Torkar, vice president; Mrs. Charles Hillman, recording secretary; Mrs. Vernon Hesseltine, treasurer; and Mrs. Jim Sparks, publicity chairman.

Les Gardiens Guild, Children's Home Society held a foster parents brunch, assisted in the management of The Lady Bug, and presented other activities in their fund-raising program to help support the society. Mrs. Jay Stine, 2815 Fallowfield, Diamond Bar, serves as president to the 27-member guild which meets on the second Wednesday of each month.

Assisting Mrs. Stine are Mmes. Richard Martin, vice presidents; David Darrow, secretary; Laurence Goldsmith, treasurer; and Robert Kohnert, publicity chairman.



MRS. LARRY OGLE

Hurts hair

Sunshine can be deadly for the hair. A little sun will do wonders for added highlights, but anything more than that will result in dry, burned locks. Protect your hair overexposure with a floppy straw hat or bright scarves while sunning on the beach. Also, be sure to use a conditioner during the summer months.

Professional recognition encouraged by secretaries

The Professional Secretaries Association is headed by Mrs. Larry Irwin, 1135 W. I St., Ontario. Other officers are Mmes. Mel Buechel, vice president; Vic Morrow, secretary; Lucille Tweed, treasurer; and Mel Buechel, publicity chairman.

There are 25 members and they meet on the first Thursday of the month.

Purpose of the club is: To see the secretarial field recognized as a true profession throughout the business world; to offer opportunities for all secretaries to become more professional by sponsoring educational programs; to develop and refine individual talents and capabilities; to encourage those beginning a secretarial career to strive for perfection; to offer top quality secretarial services to management.

In addition to regular meetings there have been dinners with the presentation of a qualified speaker in different fields. In October the group held its annual VIP night where bosses were invited as guests. They presented a scholarship to a deserving woman entering educational classes to become a secretary. In December the group held its annual Toys for Tots Christmas party.

ELNA SPEAKS OUT:

WE INTRODUCED STRETCH STITCHES 20 YEARS AGO. HOW CAN ANYONE ELSE TALK ABOUT "NEW" STRETCH STITCHES? Those "new" stretch stitches may be new to some . . . but not to Elna. Elna created the multiple stitch zigzag in 1952. Triple reinforced stretch stitch in 1960. Overlock stitch in 1963. And recently, Elna has added some more stretch stitches. Elna delivers seven different and practical stretch stitches. Not just decorative patterns with reverse stitching action. Then there is no question that "Elna Outstretches Them All!" All this performance is backed by years of experience producing the finest home sewing machines in the world. The name quality and dependability. Come in and test sew on Elna. You'll see for yourself. "Elna Outsews Them All!" Elna o-u-t-s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-s them all..

Juniors serve in their communities

The Junior Women's Clubs of the valley are affiliated with General Federation of Women's Club, Junior Membership, and all have as their purpose the wish to make their communities a better place in which to live and to better these areas through civic, educational, philantropic and cultural endeavors.

MRS. CAREN POPE

Mrs. Caren Pope, 1521 San Bernardino Ave., Pomona, is president of the 27-member Pomona Junior Women's Club. Vice president is Mrs. Glen Stewart and secretary and treasurer are Mrs. Richard Drake and Mrs. Larry McIntyre. Mrs. Fred Bellows is publicity chairman.

The members meet on the third Tuesday of every month.

Activity highlights during the last year included a Conservation puppet show, organization of a class for mentally gifted minors at San Jose School; carried on a Big Sister program at David and Margaret Home; organized a volunteer group for the Pomona Psychiatric Hospital; hold immunization clinics at the Pomona Health Department; aided Volunteer Vital English program; assisted at Le Roy's Boys' Home; and sponsored the Christmas Stocking Tree for needy children.

MRS. LARRY ADAMS

MRS. EARL McPEAK

The group of 18 women meets on the first Wednesday of each month.

During the year the group held "Buckboard Days" in Rowland Heights; held the Miss Rowland Heights beauty pageant; put on puppet shows for children and held parties for Senior Citizens; made tray favors and entertained at the Beverly Convalescent Hospital; held Easter Bunny luncheon; donated money to various groups and agencies, including March of Dimes, Kidney Foundation, Heart Research and Project Concern in Tijuana. The group also gave $525 to Rowland High School Band for two french horns.

The group meets on the second Monday of each month.

The club, during the last year, held the Junior Olympics; held a salad bar luncheon for Area D Conference; participated in toy drive for Santa Claus Inc.; participated in Air National Guard Day; participated in March of Dimes Bike-A-Thon at Ontario Motor Speedway; gave a Christmas party at Le Roy Boys' Home; sent valentines to March Air Force Base for returning POWs; sponsored the dedication of the first civilian MIA Freedom Tree.

There are 17 members in the newly organized La Verne-San Dimas Junior Women's Club.

Mrs. Larry Adams, 1220 Canyon View Drive, La Verne, is president of the group and vice president is Mrs. Crosby Nagengast. Mrs. Joseph Wessel is secretary-treasurer, and publicity chairman is Mrs. James Watkins. The group meets on the second Tuesday.

The club received its charter in June and has just begun to outline its activities for the year. A babysitting clinic and volunteer work at the San Dimas Library are the first activities.

Twenty women are mebers of the Claremont Junior Woman's Club which meets on the second Wednesday of the month.

The club participated last year's and the 1973 July 4th cclebration; sponsored a program to help the Meals on Wheels program begin in Claremont; delivered meals on Wheels every other week to approximately 25 recipients; participated in the POW—MIA program by selling bracelets and were responsible for the welcome home festivities for Col. John Stavast in March; conducted a dental and vision screening clinic for school children; worked with Recording for the Blind unit by providing readers and monitors on a weekly basis; established a Reading Is Fundamental program in one of Claremont's school in which the club provided five books each to 55 third graders to encourage reading.

MRS. FRED O'MALLEY

Mrs. Elvin Yoakum, 4661 Rosewood, Montclair, is president of the 11-member Montclair-Ontario Junior Women's Club.

Other officers are: Mmes. Lee Larson, vice president; Leonard Wells, secretary; Lee Larson, treasurer; Scott Kenley, publicity chairman.

Freedom Trees have been the major accomplishment of the group which meets on the first Wednesday of the month. With preceeds from a Las Vegas Night the Juniors were able to establish two living monuments to POWS abd MIAS. The Montclair Freedom Tree was dedicated to Capt. Michael Masterson at the Montclair Civic Center.

In Ontario, at the corner of Euclid avenue and B street the second tree was dedicated to Lt. Fred Fortner.

MRS. ELVIN YOAKUM

The Juniors have also donated money for the purchase of books on POW—MIA at Montclair and Ontario libraries.

during the year and $600 was colected. Over 75 families were helped with the clothing donated at the March of Dimes baby shower.

Teaching assistance was provided at Cypress Orthopedic School and at the local elementary schools. Nearly 20 teaching aides were made for the local schools.

Cakes were provided each month for Montclair Manor residents' birthdays.

Assistance Leagues serve in community

Highlighting the club year for the Assistance League of Pomona Valley was the October garden party at which the inagural ball gowns worn by the first ladies of the United States were shown. In March the league hosted the premier opening of a new Claremont restaurant.

The money raised from projects and sales at the Bargain Basket Thrift Shop is used for the operation of the Speech and Hearing Center in Pomona. Two new projects are planned for the fall: senior citizens and teaching aides.

Membership is composed of auxiliaries, life members, associates, sustaining members, assisteens and the 52 actives who meet on the first Tuesday of each month. Officers are Mrs. G. Roger Ellison, president; Mrs. William W. Garrison, vice president; Mrs. Ray J. Lepire, secretary; Mrs. Charles L. West, treasurer; and Mrs. Nickolaus H. Brinkama, publicity chairman.

The 60 members of the Assistance League of Upland meet on the second Thursday of the month under the leadership of Mrs. Dean Smothers, 8516 Bella Vista, Alta Loma. Assisting Mrs. Smothers are Mmes. Robert Jensen, vice president; Del Hensley, secretary; J. T. Waller, treasuer; and Richard McElvany, publicity chairman.

The group's purpose is to maintain a program of philanthropic work and act as a friend to people of the community in need of care, guidance or assistance.

Activity highlights during the last year include: Christmas dance, spring fashion show with 500 women in attendance and Round Robin bridge. Money raised by these events was used to support Cucamonga Girls Club and the Dental Center held at San Antonio Community Hospital, where 250 children received dental care.

MRS. G. ROGER ELLISON

MRS. JACKSON S. NIEBRUGGE

Shakespeare is studied by women

The 60 members of the Shakespeare Club of Pomona meet on the second Monday of the month from October through May for a cultural program on Shakespeare and related subjects.

Mrs. Jackson S. Niebrugge, 375 Sutton Court, is the president of this study group which is in the 69th year of organization.

Other officers are Mrs. Erle V. Simon, vice president; Mrs. C. DeWitt Cothran, secretary; Mrs. Rbbin E. Fisher, treasurer; and Mrs. Robert C. Davidson, publicity chairman.

12 models

Twelve refrigerator models and one freezer model in one manufacturer's line now come with a built-in device that is said to provide a quick diagnosis of trouble for home service repairmen. The Rapid Electrical Diagnosis, R-E-D, terminal helps the repairman find source of difficulty in most electrical components and wiring without unplugging or moving the appliance to which the R-E-D is attached.

MRS. BETTY GUSTAFSON

MRS. ELMER BOCK

Secretaries stimulate interests

There are 40 members in the Ontario Legal Secretaries Association. They meet on the third Wednesday of the month.

Mrs. Betty Gustafson, PLS, 1047 W. 6th St., Ontario, is president of the group. Other officers are Mrs. Velia DeLeon, vice president; Mrs. Angie Graham, secretary; Miss Deborah Jager, treasurer; and Mrs. Evelyn Campbell, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club is to stimulate a high order of business and professional attainment; to disseminate information and knowledge of interest to members; to further the interests of legal secretaries; and to establish good fellowship among members.

During the year the club gave two $100 scholarships to high school sutdents in the area for training at the college level in the secretarial field; conducted salary survey among legal secretaries in the immediate area as well as in the Pomona, Riverside and San Bernardino areas; participated in an alcohol safety program by two members of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's department through use of television cameras and video tape; sponsored annual Bosses' Night honoring attorneys, legal secretaries and their spouses at which the Boss of the Year and Secretary of the year were announced.

Avoid burn

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dermatologists recommend against boiling yourself in the sun the first time out. A good course: expose yourself gradually to avoid a burn. Light-skinned, blue-eyed humans and red heads need to be especially careful.

Watch fingers

Don't lick your fingers when you're working with food—and don't use cooking spoons or forks to taste food while you cook and serve it.

Grange serves in valley

Fair Valley Grange has as its current president Mrs. Elmer Bock Sr., 1010 W. Holt Ave., Pomona. Other officers include Mmes. Jean Spilman, vice president; Velda Wellbaum, secretary; Casey Vander Mel, treasurer; and Angeline Stewart, publicity chairman.

The club is a farm organization and members do community work in the valley. They meet on the second and fourth Wednesday of the month.

During the year the group served dinners, breakfasts, manned a booth at the Los Angeles County Fair, had potluck dinners, card parties and at meetings heard speakers from the police and fire departments.

Pen Women promote the arts

Thirty-one members of Claremont Branch, National League of American Pen Women, meet on the second Thursday of every month.

Mrs. F. W. Riddington is president of the group. Other officers are: Dr. Helen M. Walker, vice president; Miss Phillipa Condit, secretary; Mrs. Martin Cooper, treasuer; and Miss Marie Russ, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the group is to create and promote educational activities in art, letters and music.

Program during the year include "Sir Max Beerbohm" by Kay Dix; "Books for Children in the Soviet Union" by Ruth Graham, and "The Building of a Novel" by Marion Castle.

Handle with care

Regard your hands as contaminated for food handling purposes, says New York State Cooperative Extension. Keep them out of food as much as you can and away from dish surfaces that come in contact with diners' lips. Pick up glasses at their bases, and cups and silver, by their handles.

Fuller skirts

Skirts for fall and winter will be fuller than they've been in many a fashion season. Lots of pleats make for a swinging skirt when the wearer walks.

MRS. RUBEN HENDERSON

TOPS Club encourages weight loss

TOPS Club of California, Chapter 6, has as its president Mrs. Ruben Henderson, 921 Milford, Pomona. Other officers are Mmes. Joe Cascio, vice president; Frank Rosselot, secretary; Frank Brewster, treasurer; Lloyd Blackmon, publicity chairman.

The group meets on Monday evenings and the purpose is for the 45 members to lose weight sensibly and keep it off.

During the year the group hosted a KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly) luau; had secret pals during the year; celebrated their 17th anniversary in March; and attended Area Recognition Day in Riverside in May.

"Hire him. He's got great legs."

If women thought this way about men they would be awfully silly.

When men think this way about women they're silly, too.

Women should be judged for a job by whether or not they can do it.

In a world where women are doctors, lawyers, judges, brokers, economists, scientists, political candidates, professors and company presidents, any other viewpoint is ridiculous.

Think of it this way. When we need all the help we can get, why waste half the brains around?

Womanpower. It's much too good to waste.

Camp Fire serves youths

More than 8,000 girls and 2,000 adult volunteers from an area which includes 25 cities have been served during the past year by the Mt. San Antonio Council of Camp Fire Girls, Inc.

Directed toward helping young people grow as self-reliant, caring and responsible individuals, the Camp Fire program's goal is to provide one of the societal links between black, brown and white persons.

During the past year the Mt. San Antonio Council has worked with other agencies in cooperative programming for youth such as Inter Group Outreach. The council worked with the Covina Adult Education School to provide leadership laboratory courses for high school age boys and girls, and sponsored numerous summer day camp programs and camping experience for 149 disadvantaged children.

Drew H. Mullan is president of the council. Also serving as officers are Mrs. Nicholas Kelch, vice president; Mrs. Helen Boughton, secretary; Miss Roberta Carrington, treasurer; and Richard Lewis, community relations.

Classified service clubs help community

Classified service clubs for professional and executive business women have as their main purpose service to the community in which they operate. All are clubs within international organizations.

The Soroptimist Club of Pomona has as its president Mrs. Al Lutes, 131 S. Mockingbird Lane, West Covina. Other officers include Miss Arlene Pederson, vice president; Miss Sharon Russell, recording secretary; and Mrs. Robert Temple, treasurer.

The club meets every Thursday and the 55 members stress service to the community.

Highlights of the last year's activities were: luncheon honoring past presidents; hosting the District VI fall meeting; ways and means projects raising funds toward $18,000 pledge for renal dialysis equipment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital; scholarships to Mt. San Antonio College and Cal Poly; camperships for Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army; providing insurance for day camp participants at YWCA.

Mrs. Fred Bonsor, 12624 Third St., Chino, is president of the Soroptimist Club of Chino. The Soroptimist organization is the largest women's service club in the world. There are 17 members in the Chino unit.

The club, which owns its own clubhouse, had a mortgage-burning party during the year; a Hobo party; Tea Cup Tea, with all proceeds going to service in the community including Junior Fair, Meals on Wheels, American Cancer Society, Chino Historical Society, scholarships for two high school students, Neighborhood House, and Sister City Exchange.

Mrs. Glenn C. Mikesell, 1065 Terrace Dr., Upland, is president of the Soroptimist Club of Ontario. The 45 members meet every Tuesday.

During the year the group spearheaded Meals on Wheels program for Ontario; participated in the P.A.L. program; sponsored service clubs for girls in the high schools; gave Youth Citizenship awards and aided by Ringing the Bells for the Salvation Army at Christmas.

MRS. GLENN MIKESELL

Dr. Lucile Robinson, 603 S. Buena Vista, Redlands, is president of the Zonta Club of Ontario-Upland. The 30 members meet on the second Monday for dinner and on the fourth Monday for lunch.

Money raised for a spring rummage sale, a fall wine-tasting festival and a summer fashion show was used to donate $500 to Meals on Wheels, to give $1,000 in scholarships, $500 for Pap tests for needy women through the San Bernardino County Health Department, and smaller amounts to Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Santa Claus Inc.; assistance to Z Club at Ontario High School and to a girls' softball team.

Zonta Club of Pomona Valley is headed by Mrs. John R. Gletcher, 2304 Rosedale Curve, Upland. Other officers are: Mrs. Betty Jackson, vice president; Mrs. Helen Boughton, secretary; Miss Marjorie Raymond, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Dewey, publicity chairman.

The 25 members, who meet on the first and third Wednesday of the month, promote high ethical standards in business and professions and political, economic and legal, politica, economic and professional status of women.

Highlights of the last year were the sponsorship of Z Club at Ganesha High School; scholarships awarded 6 high school graduates; monetary contributions for the support of Ramallah Training School for Girls and Amelia Earhart fellowships; camperships to Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and YWCA for a girl; volunteer hours and supplies to local programs; grants to support local projects such as Salvation Army Christmas Baskets, Christmas Tree Lane and Pomona Valley YWCA.

There are 23 active and two honorary members in the Pilot Club of Pomona Valley.

Miss Anne Wigley, 2717 Arrow Highway, La Verne, is president of the local club. Other officers of the unit, which meets on the second and fourth Thursday, are Mmes Ira Vail, vice president; Frank McCrossen, secretary; Lester Anderson, treasurer; Floyd McNulty, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club is to promote international peace and cultural relations, high standards in business and active participation in movement to improve civic, social, industrial and commercial welfare in the community.

During the last year the group participated in the Montclair Plaza All-Club charity bazaar. The club's major project is the annual Christmas tea and bazaar, benefits from which go to the Crippled Children's Society, Pomona Regional Center. They sponsored the Top Deckers, a club organized 13 years ago by the Pomona Pilot Club to provided need social and cultural opportunities for handicapped young people.

DR. LUCILE ROBINSON

MRS. JOHN FLETCHER

MISS ANNE WIGLEY

The club presented two $250 scholarships to two handicapped women seeking college graduate study. Other contributions were made to Cancer Research, Heart Foundation, Meals for Millions, S.S. Hope, CARE, Eyes for the Needy, and Pilot Anchor Club.

Volunteers helped in the Casa Colina Hospital booth at the Los Angeles County Fair and at the Historical Society's annual barbecue at the Phillips Mansion. Members also assisted with the Teen-Age Safety Conference at the fairgrounds.

Vice President of the club, which has 13 members and meets on the second and fourth Thursday, is Miss Margarette J. Bunn. Other officers are Mrs. Carol Cole, secretary; Mrs. Juanita Dietrich, treasurer; and Mrs. Martie Lisowski, publicity chairman.

MRS. JOHN A. RUDESILL

The club purpose is to seek out and attempt to meet the needs of the community, to be of service to others and to encourage women to take a more active and varied role in community, national and international affairs.

During the last year the club donated funds to Operation Groovy and baked cookies for the Police Declaratory Quorum. The membership tea was held in January, and in June new officers were installed at a dinner.

Sweater look

The sweaters for fall may not draw cheers from girl watchers. The New York Couture Business Council says the new sweater shape is looser, shows body curves less. Some are loose as sweatshirts.

BPW Clubs elevate standards of women

MISS MARJORIE RAYMOND

MRS ROBERT FLEISCHMANN

MRS. HAROLD LADWIG

MRS. JUNE CRANE

Business and Professional Women's clubs and other business clubs are organized to elevate the standards of women in business and in the professions and to extend additional opportunities to working women through programs of education, legislation and fellowship.

Miss Marjorie J. Raymond, 1196 S. San Antonio Ave., is president of the 48-member Pomona Business and Professional Women's Club. Vice president is Mrs. Maxine Bates, and Mrs. Ruth Lambly is secretary. Mrs. Lonnie Pomeroy is treasurer of the club, and Miss Betty Rexrode is publicity chairman. The club meets on the third Tuesday of every month.

Highlights of the last year's activities include sponsorship of Ingatherine Tea for Camp Fire Girls; celebration of the 50th anniversary of Pomona BPW; distribution of Christmas gifts to patients in nursing homes; participation in section, district, state and national meetings of the federation; selection of Mrs. Wilma Temple as club Woman of the Year; elevation of a Pomona member, Mrs. Betty Eagon to position of vice president of the California Federation of BPW.

Twenty-five members of Claremont Business and Professional Women's Club meet on the second Monday of the month.

Mrs. Robert H. Fleischmann, 469 St. Augustine Ave., Claremont, is president of the group. Other officers are: Mmes. Opal Clarkson, vice president; Florence Woodward, secretary; Elaine Ross, treasurer; and Meg Barber, publicity chairman.

The programs have included world affairs, Foreign Exchange students, legislation, community involvement, ecology and personal development.

The 50 members of Ontario Business and Professional Women's Club meet on the second Tuesday of the month.

Mrs. Harold J. Ladwig, 5390 San Jose St., Montclair, is president of the club. Other officers are: Mmes A. Mellen, vice president; Amy White, secretary; Renee A. Kovach, treasurer; and Eugene Warren, publicity chairman.

MRS. JOHN LYON

During the year the club celebrated the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Ontario Club, honoring the three charter members who are still active in the club; sponsored 10 students for the Youthpower Conference at Irvine campus. Fund-raising projects included the annual card party and sale of Christmas corsages.

The PBX Club of Pomona is headed by Mrs. June Crane, 940 W. 16th St., Upland. Other officers are Mmes. Mary Buettner, vice president; Beth Dennis, secretary; Mary Jane Brown, treasurer; and Buettner, publicity chairman. The club meets on the second Tuesday of the month.

Highlights of the club year were the dinner meetings, Christmas dinner-dance at Mt. Baldy Lodge, and Bosses' Night at the Castaway.

President of Pomona Valley Dental Assistants Association is Mrs. John Lyon, 3802 Barton Place, La Verne. Other officers are: Mrs. B. J. Swarts, vice president; Miss Nancy Gates, secretary; Mrs. Warner King, treasurer; and Mrs. Erma Flores, publicity chairman.

Education of its members along dental lines is the purpose of the club.

The highlights for the last year in the activities of the club were the midwinter meeting at Long Beach and the annual meeting in May at Disneyland.

College women urge increased education

MRS. DAVID ORR

The American Association of University Women seeks to unite the alumnae of college and universities to foster the development and maintenance of high standards of education, to strengthen the influence of women in the community for the solution of social and civic problems, and to secure a broader opportunity for women in education through fellowships and legislation.

Officers of the Pomona Valley Branch of AAUW are Mrs. David Orr of 11939 Farndon Ave., Chino, president; Mrs. Richard Hobbs, vice president; Mrs. Robert C. Gius, secretary; Mrs. Hugh Folkins, treasurer, and Mrs. Albert Golightly, publicity chairman.

The 130 members of the branch meet on the second Tuesday of each month.

Highlights of the year included a Christmas Home Tour and Boutique which earned over $1,000 for fellowships; the formation of a committee with the Pomona Unified School District to coordinate art experiences in the elementary schools, and a tour of Sybil Brand Institute. The branch also provided speakers on the changing roles of women to juniors and senior high schools.

Dr. Salley Seven of 1250 N. Harvard Ave., Claremont is the president of the AAUW Claremont Branch. There are 162 members in the branch which meets the second Thursday of each month.

Also serving as officers are Mrs. John Cobb, vice president; Mrs. Alan Jack, secretary; Mrs. Ensel Stutts, treasurer, and Mrs. Brian Morrison, publicity chairman.

During the past year the club conducted a book sale and a spring home tour to raise funds to provide financial assistance for women continuing their education; provided a scholarship for a local woman, and sponsored a symposium on relations between the college and community.

A newly organized membership of black educated women is the Pomona Valley Branch of the National Association of College Women.

The service organization is interested in promoting closer union and fellowship among college or university alumnae for constructive, education work; in studying educational, social and economic problems affecting college women, and in arousing a consciousness of the members' responsibilities in solving local and national problems.

Mrs. Lola Fox of Covina is the group's president. Serving with her are Mrs. Selete Johnson, vice president; Mrs. Daisy Cook, secretary and publicity chairman, and Mrs. Ruth Culverson, treasurer.

The branch's 35 members meet the third Saturday of each month.

Serve as volunteers in hospitals

Women's Hospital Auxiliaries provide thousands of hours of volunteer service to the staff and patients of the area hospitals in addition to sponsoring many fund-raising projects to assist the individual institutions in their goals of providing the best patient care.

The 415 members of the Women's Auxiliary, Pomona Valley Community Hospital meet four times a year under the leadership of Mrs. Robert V. Balch, 20728 Loyalton Dr., Walnut.

A pledge of $12,000 dollars was made to the hospital for the pediatrics wing and the auxiliary also donated $6,000 for special equipment in the neo-natal nursery. The organization sponsors a sick baby fund to provide financial assistance to families with babies requiring extensive medical care. Proceeds from the annual May Breakfast and summer barbecue, along with those of the Auxiliary Gift Shop and new baby photos, enable the group to make these donations.

Other officers are Mrs. Gerald S. Rathbun, vice president; Mrs. Delwin W. Ludwick, secretary; and Mrs. Harry C. Kinne, Jr., treasurer.

Meetings for the 82 members of the Doctors Hospital of Montclair Auxiliary are held on the third Wednesday of the month.

Officers are Mrs. Richard Warmouth, 9761 Felipe Ave., Montclair, president; Melba Conant, vice president; Mrs. John Fishbaugh, secretary; Mrs. Lee Young, treasurer; and Dorothy Paul, publicity chairman.

Since the auxiliary's formation in September, the group has opened and staffed the hospital gift shop, hosted the opening of Montclair Medical Square and Founded the candy striper program.

Mrs. Robert D. Lowry, 1421 Renwick Road, San Dimas, is the president of the San Dimas Community Hospital Auxiliary. Assisting her are Mrs. Gary Cox, vice president; Mrs. Adam McLeod, secretary; Mrs. James N. Lough, treasurer; and Mrs. Dennis Green, publicity chairman.

The auxiliary assisted at the open house held in October and in March opened their gift shop which features many hand crafted items. In June the group awarded $1,000 in scholarships.

Foothill Presbyterian Hospital Auxiliary has a membership of 275 and meets quarterly under the direction of Mrs. Raymond Swearingen, president. Other officers are Mrs. Donald Denison, president-elect; Mrs. Kenneth Wilmarth, recording secretary; Mrs. Gary Lachman, treasurer; and Mrs. Seymour Spungin, publicity chairman.

Procceds from the newly opened hospital gift shop and other projects enabled the auxiliary to contribute $5,000 towards the pledge made to the hospital fund.

Automatic doors for the hospital entrance were purchased by the Casa Colina Hospital Auxiliary this past year. The 60 members, who meet on the fourth Monday of the month, also sponsored sixteen fashion shows for local women's groups. Proceeds from the projects support the Casa Colina Hospital—Claremont Colleges Pre School for Multi-Handicapped Children.

B'nai B'rith donates items to hospitals

Mrs. Arthur Bernard is the president of the Stella Kelber Chapter, B'nai B'rith Women which has 88 members who meet on the first Wednesday of the month.

The highlights of the club activities are the donation of layette items to health centers and the contribution of lap robes and slippers to veterans.

Other officers are Mrs. Rose Boches, secretary; Mrs. Harry Berman, treasurer; Mrs. Herman Schneider, publicity chairman.

Travel films offered

The Claremont Travel Film Series, sponsored by Mt. Baldy Council, Women's Campus Club of Pomona College, has 1,300 members.

Heading the organization is Mrs. Milo Tigner, 1542 Alameda St., Pomona.

Other officers are Mmes. Wesley Leighton, secretary; Roy Miller, treasurer; and Tigner, publicity chairman.

The group meets on the first or last Friday of the month, October through May.

Purpose of the group is to present outstanding travel films for enjoyment of the entire community, proceeds of which will be used for the Development Fund of Pomona College and the improvement of Garrison Theater, Claremont Colleges.

During the year the unit presented seven travel films in Garrison Theatre, with more than 1,300 people in attendance at each showing. The group gave $3,200 to Pomona College for use by the music, drama and economics departments. They also gave $600 to the Claremont Colleges for improvement of the theater. Two memorials were established at Pomona College for Margaret Perry Bunnelle and Suzan Meta Harris.

Cal Poly club aids university

The 120 members of the Cal Poly Women's Club held an Honors Tea in June where two Cal Poly students were presented with $300 scholarships.

The officers are, Mrs. Floyd Matthews, 890 Butte St., Claremont, president; Mrs. Lawrence Blakely, first vice president; Mrs. Elton Brooks, secretary; Mrs. Stanley Bassin, treasurer; and Mrs. Wayne Williams, publicity chairman.

Claifornia State Polytechnic Women's Club's objectives are to promote the interests of the California State Polytechnic University and the welfare of the students, and to initiate social and cultural activities on the campus.

CFWC projects listed

Clubs affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs encourage cultural and activities and work for the welfare of the community. Their purpose is study and advacement along literary, civic and philanthropic lines of general interest.

The Upland Woman's Club has 183 members and the group meets on the second Tuesday of each month with a tea on the fourth Tuesday of the month.

During the last year the club gave two nursing scholarships; supported We Tip; FINE Friendship Club; Meals on Wheels; Santa Claus Inc.; blood bank; San Antonio Hospital Auxiliary; Pennies for Pines and Poppies.

Over 4,800 hours were given by members for community service and $761 was donated for Youth and Family Living perpetuating the care of the Rose Garden in Upland Memorial Park.

Chino Valley Woman's Club has as its president Mrs. John Tomlinson, 5834 Chino Ave., Chino.

MRS. JOHN SCHEWREN

MRS. MARVIN STUDTS

The 132 members meet at noon on the third Monday of each month.

During the year the club contributed to the Slaughter Adobe museum; contributed to the new Chino Library and made scholarships available.

There are 58 memxers of Diamond Bar Woman's Club. They meet on the third Wednesday of the month.

Mrs. Marvin Studts, 20301 Lake Erie Drive, Walnut, is president.

During the last year the club sponsored the Rabies Vaccination Clinic in Diamond Bar, manned the Community Blood Bank along with the Juniors, purchased a membership in the YMCA Century Club, awarded a $100 scholarship to a graduating girl at Walnut High School, contributed $360 for the major community service project, Transcribing for the Blind Inc., Claremont. The group also presented the tiara to Miss Diamond Bar, made cash donations to the Walnut High School Band .Booster Club, San Gabriel Valley District Music Scholarship, Salvation Army Christmas Clearance Bureau and the Diane Samuels Kidney Trust Fund.

The club furnished Christmas decorations for the Pomona Psychiatric Hospital and adopted two local convalescent hospitals on a one-to-one basis.

Members gave service hours to the Cancer Society Board, Planned Parenthood, Red Cross, Heart Screening, and Pacific State Hospital. Tht service totaled over 2,000 hours in time.

The Palomares Women's Club, which meets on the first Thursday of the month, has 21 members.

Mrs. John Scheuren, 932 Ottawa Drive, Claremont, is president. Other officers are: Mmes. Merle Wooten, vice president; Harrison Persons, secretary; Everett Legters, treasurer; and Laurin Warner, publicity chairman.

During the last year the group gave many hours of service to Meals on Wheels, sponsored a wine-tasting party and presented the proceeds to City of Hope.

There are 160 members in the Woman's Club of Claremont. Heading the organization is Mrs. Robert W. Jensen, 874 Hood Drive, Claremont.

Other officers are Mrs. Arthur Smithen, vice president; Dr. Mabel Hammons, secretary; Mrs. Charles Eakin, treasurer; and Mrs. James Lattin, publicity chairman.

The group meets on the second Wednesday of the month.

Highlights of the last club year are: membership tea, Montclair annual charity bazaar, fashion show by Casa Colina; compresses for American Cancer Society; money donated to Coordinating Council, Our House, Girl Scouts, McKinley Home for Boys Scholarship Fund, Teen Challenge, YMCA, Pomona College Drama Group, Firemen's Association for community burn equipment, Heart Association, Braille Institute, District Veterans Christmas party, Friends of the Library, Casa Prima, Recording for the Blind.

The club has raised its membership with the admission of 22 new members.

MRS. RICHARD SHEIRICH

Campus women organized

Campus Women of the Claremont Colleges is a social organization of 150 members dedicated to the promotion of relations and friendship among the women of the Claremont Colleges.

Highlights of the past year include monthly meetings of different interest groups, newcomers luncheons, and a bus tour to the L.A. County Museum. There are 150 members.

Mrs. Richard M. Sheirich, 441 Harvard Ave., Claremont, serves the organization as president. Other officers are Mrs. William Lowery; Mrs. Howard Metzler, secretary; Mrs. Ward Elliott, treasurer; and Mrs. Albert Schwartz.

Activity highlights included a family picnic, pre-Christmas shopping bus tour to Tijuana, Fireside desserts for foreign students, newcomers' luncheons, annual spring breakfast with fashion show and monthly meetings of 16 different interest groups which include Ikebana class, book discussion group, shopper's guide, daytime bridge, evening bridge, gardening, exercise, gourmet dinners, Associates' group, swimming, Head Start, hiking, sewing, tennis, travel and crafts. There was also a bus tour to the Los Angeles County Museum.

MRS. DONALD JARVIS

MRS. ROBERT W. JENSEN

Police Wives Club helps city

Mrs. Larry Todd, is the president of the 25 member Pomona Police Officer Wives Club which meets on the second Thursday of the month to promote interest and understanding of their husbands' work.

The membership this year entered a float in the Pomona Christmas Parade, made Easter baskets for needy children, and helped in city elections along with many other activities.

Other officers are Mrs. John Hunnycutt, vice president; Mrs. David Henslin, secretary; Mrs. Dennis Cole, treasurer, and Mrs. Richard Schaurette, publicity chairman.

The symptoms of heat exhaustion: pale and clammy skin, pulse rapid and weak, victim complains of weakness, headache or nausea. Victim may have abdominal cramps or cramps in limbs. What to do: have victim lie down with his head level to or lower than his body. Move victim to cool place but protect him from chilling. Give victim salt water (1 teaspoon salt to 1 quart water) to drink if he is conscious. Call a doctor. The American Medical Association says so in its First Aid Manual.

MRS. CLIFTON ALLEN

Teen-age girls aided

Mrs. Clifton Allen, 1479 North Euclid Ave., Upland, is the president of the Friends of David and Margaret. This auxiliary, with members all over Southern California, contributes volunteer service and money to the David and Margaret Home for teen-age girls, located in La Verne.

Money donated to the club is used for medical and dental care. Members also serve as volunteers in varied positions at the home.

Assisting Mrs. Allen are Mmes. Eugene Adolf, vice president; Norman Cadman, secretary; Maurice Jones, treasurer, and Wallace Riutcel, publicity chairman.

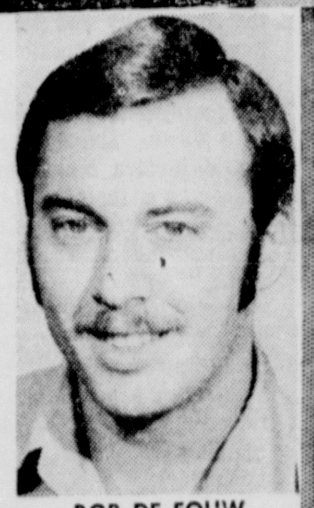
SUNDAY SELLING

A New Approach Taken By The Agitator Shop In Pomona!



BOB DE FOUW

TIRED OF SLICK & FAST TALKING SALESMEN????
If you are . . . drop-in on any Sunday between 10 a.m. & 5 p.m., something new is going on here!

Since 1948, The Agitator Shop has not been open on Sundays. But because of the fact that many customers are not only working weekdays, but also on Saturdays, The Agitator Shop's SHOWROOM & PARTS DEPT. will be open on Sundays to meet their customers needs.

In order to maintain the new Sunday hours, Bob De Fouw and Elaine Criswell have been added to the Sales Staff. Bob, is a college student at Cal-Poly and is studying to be a Chemist. Elaine, is a fourth grade school teacher at Lehigh School in Montclair.

The Agitator Shop cordially invites you to drop in on Sunday and browse around the showroom floor. Coffee will be served all day.

Marie Edick

Has concern for others

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Asst. Women's Editor

"The best way to become acquainted in a community is to get involved in its organizations," says Mrs. Harold S. Edick, a 1973 Progress-Bulletin Woman Achiever.

Today Marie, as she is always called by everyone who knows her, is one of the better-known women in Pomona. But it wasn't always so.

As the wife of a career Navy man, Marie didn't know a single person when she moved to Pomona after her husband was assigned to the Corona Naval Hospital.

"I was born near Knoxville and I'm a hillbilly at heart. I'm used to their friendly way of life and their love and affection for each other.

"I was so lonely when we moved here in 1946 that I'd drive to Los Angeles to visit with acquaintances. Then my landlady arranged for me to attend Ebell meetings," recalls Marie.

Her natural interest in hospitals, stemming from her husband's work and her own volunteer service in military hospitals during World War II, led the Achiever to join the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary in 1948.

Since joining the auxiliary, Mrs. Edick has served as president, from 1958 to 1960, and as a member of the board for many years. She is currently the program chairman.

But her real talent has been the ability to present highly successful fund-raising programs.

Probably her most notable projects were the two "High Fever Follies" stage shows presented a few years ago to benefit the hospital. These shows involved hundreds from the community and were termed a great success by all the participants.

According to one coworker with Marie, "She has the ability to involve others and to develop their talents. Of course, she works hard and expects others to do the same."

Marie has also served as chairman for the past two annual May Breakfasts of the hospital auxiliary which raised thousands of dollars and involved large groups of volunteers.

"But I really like working in the hospital as an active volunteer," says Marie who recently passed the 2,000 hour mark as a worker.

"There isn't a day that you don't help someone. Patients, visitors and families arrive upset or confused. Often just a few minute's chat and you have them reassured.

"I especially like delivering the mail so I can stop and say 'How are you?' It helps, you know."

Marie's concern for her friends goes beyond regular volunteer duty. In one case recently, she stayed at the hospital from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. to keep tabs on a surgery patient and called the woman's husband frequently, so that he need not lose time from work.

She credits her involvement in Pomona Ebell, where she was president in 1960-and 1961, for widening her circle of friends. She has also served the club as program and publicity chairmen and in other roles.

While the Edicks have no children of their own, they have been concerned about the youth in the community. Marie was instrumental in establishing the scholarship program of Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary which provides financial aid to high school graduates who seek careers in medically related frields.

She is also a charter member of the Foothill Guild of the Crippled Children's Society which raises funds to provide improvements at the Pomona Regional Center of the society. The guild is responsible for the swimming pool and its shelter area in the center, among other things.

When the Visiting Nurse Association was organized in Pomona, this Achiever again volunteered to help on its first board of directors.

She also served a term as a member of the City of Pomona Library Board where, she reports, her interests were in providing adequate books to serve the needs of the youngsters and the establishment of Bookmobiles to bring the library to children and senior citizens who could not easily go to the central facility.

"We've always had a dog. (Judy, a French poodle, is the current pet.) So my love for animals is widely known," says Marie, in explaining why she's served on the board of directors of the Pomona Valley Humane Society for so many years.

Until recently, she was an associate member of the Assistance League of Pomona Valley, which supports the Hearing and Speech Center for deaf children.

A natural comedienne, Marie likes to spoof women by taking humorous roles in plays or being the "clown" in style shows. She has the ability to always see the funny side of a situation and to turn an embarrasing situation into a comic relief.

As a member of Pilgrim Congregational Church, she is involved in her guild and often helps with its entertainment.

Marie feels strongly that young women, especially newcomers, need to be involved in some type of club or community work.

"Some larger firms offer a chance for the young wife to get acquainted, but many don't and women need to have friends.

"Helping in a hospital is a great way to make contacts and serve others. After all, no one goes to the hospital for a vacation, so the patients need assurance and comfort.

"It's really satisfying to help just one person," concludes this Woman Achiever who assisted helped so many.

MRS. ELBERT B. GRIFFITH

Committee assists orchestra

There are 87 members of Foothill Philharmonic Committee whose aim is to support the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra and to further interest in and knowledge of music in the community.

Mrs. Elbert B. Griffith, 20951 E. Via Verde Ave., Covina, is president of the group. Other officers include: Mmes. C. T. Richardson, vice president; Conrad Briner, secretary; Brooke E. Sawyer, treasurer; and John C. McCarthy, publicity chairman.

During the year the committee has had preview luncheons for concerts in Bridges Auditorium, a Christmas musicale, fundraising for the Los Angeles Philharmonic, sponsoring bus trips for children to youth concerts in Los Angeles and bus trips to Hollywood Bowl concerts.

Foster patriotism

The Daughters of the American Revolution are devoted to the perpetuation of the memory and spirt of the men and women who achieved American Independence, the promotion of education and the fostering of true patriotism and love of country.

The Claremont Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, headed by Mrs. Francis A. McKee, 772 W. Ninth St., Claremont, has 64 members and meets on the first Thursday of the month. Other officers are Mrs. Fred W. Juergens, vice regent; Mrs. Calvin H. Mullen, secretary; Mrs. Aris C. Sanders, treasurer; and Mrs. Arthur D. Jaynes, publicity chairman.

Claremont Chapter won the National Society Gold Honor Roll Award this year for carrying out all DAR objectives. They presented a ROTC Merit Award and Medals, Good Citizenship Awards, American History Awards, Girl Good Citizen Awards and a Girl Homemaker Award. Key events of the year were: a Constitution Week Tea and program, a benefit for Bacone College for Indian Students, and a party honoring the 100th birthday of Mrs. Jessie Imes, a 72-year DAR member.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Hendricks, 2055 S. Towne Ave., is the regent of the 17-member Pomona Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution which meets on the second Thursday of the month. Serving in other offices are Mrs. Ralph Prigg, vice regent; Mrs. Joseph Easterday, secretary; and Mrs. Henry Boeckman, treasurer.

Highlights of the year included the presentation of Good Citizen Girl Awards, participation in the American History Essay contest, and donation of clothing and blankets to American Indians.

MRS. FRANCIS A. MCKEE

The newly organized Matthew Sparks Chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists meets four times a year for the purpose of perpetuating the memory of persons and events of American colonial history. The 15-member group is the first to be organized in the Pomona-San Gabriel Valley. Officers are Mrs. Francis A. McKee, regent; Mrs. Robert B. Thompson, vice regent; Mrs. Alfred H. Maupin, secretary; Mrs. Aris C. Sanders, treasurer; and Mrs. McKee, publicity chairman.

Slip-dresses

Bare slip-dresses have a summer freshness that will appeal to most women. But like most revealing fashions, they require a body that has stayed in shape. If you're not ready to flaunt yours, get into a good exercising program or look for another, less-revealing style.

Be natural

To avoid an artificial penciled look for eyebrows, follow the natural contours of your brows, brush or pencil in with gentle strokes and use two shades, such as medium and dark brown, for a more natural effect.

Rose Kelber

Volunteering comes naturally

By MARY REMILLARD
P-B Women's Editor

A valley woman who considers herself fortunate to have had the time to do all the things she thoroughly enjoys is one of the Progress-Bulletin Woman Achievers for 1973.

She is Mrs. William Kelber of Ontario.

Long known for her many years of involvement in working for the blind, Mrs. Kelber has been equally involved in civic, religious, public school and political activities in the last 26 years.

Rose Kelber comes by her volunteer work naturally. She inherited it. Her father and her husband's father worked very hard when Rose was growing up in Pomona to develop a congregation and build a Jewish temple in the valley.

"I learned dedication from them," she says.

When Rose Kelber graduated from Pomona High School in 1938 she worked in accounting in order to go through beauty school. She was a beautician until she was 21 and then went back to secretarial work.

"My father did not believe in higher education for women," says Rose, "but I have never stopped learning. I'm always picking up a course on this or that —whatever interests me—and now that my children are just about through school I intend to further my own education.

Even though denied higher education, Rose Kelber, by doing and reading and maintaining an eager, open mind, has accumulated a wealth of education in her own way.

The diminutive, vicacious Rose got her start in volunteer work through PTA about 25 years agb and stayed with PTA until last year.

"I really enjoyed that work," she says.

"I'm not a bridge player or a clubwoman, and perhaps this is why I turned to Recording for the Blind 16 years ago, for the recording is only of textbooks."

Mrs. Kelber had read a story about recording for the blind, got interested and, since there was no organization in the valley, she founded one.

Thirteen years ago she learned braille writing, and then she began teaching braille.

"I have fallen into so many interesting things," she says enthusiastically.

But one has to know Mrs. Kelber to realize it is this same enthusiasm and empathy that makes her involvement so very rewarding.

As for cooperation in her home, Rose Kelber has had lots of encouragement.

"My husband encourages me to become involved. I think he thinks I can do anything."

Dr. and Mrs. Kelber were married when he was a student at Texas A. and M. They had met when they attended Sunday School together as young teen-agers.

Twenty-six years ago Dr. Kelber built his veterinary hospital in Ontario, and Mrs. Kelber was his assistant for eight years.

"You see, I've done so many different things," says this enthusiastic woman, who counts among other things her work as secretary at one time to the late Father Flannigan of Boys' Home in Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Kelber has served in all offices including presidency of Stella Kelber Chapter, B'nai B'rith Women, and did the same for Temple Beth Israel Sisterhood. She was the president of Tri Valley Council, B'nai B'rith Women, and was named Woman of the Year by the council in 1967.

Mrs. Kelber's community services have included a post she has held with the West end Council of Community Services and membership in the Women's Auxiliary of the California Veterinarian Medical Association, West End Mental Health Association, West End Drug Abuse Coordinating Council and West End Parents of the Gifted.

She is a patroness of both Casa Alegra Auxiliary of Children's Home Society and Assistance League and as a charter member of West End Symphony Association has worked for 10 years on community concert committees.

Of her year as a member of the San Bernardino County Grand Jury, Mrs. Kelber says "That's certainly the way to learn civic government."

Rose Kelber has some very definite ideas about the public schools, and being a member of the board of trustees of Ontario-Montclair School District gives her opportunity to implement these ideas.

She is the secretary for the San Bernardino County School Boards Assocation; secretary of the Chaffey High School Task Force Advisory Committee; and chairman of the guidance and counseling committee of the Chaffey Task Force.

"It is good," she says, "to see changes coming about.

"Constructive criticism is good," says Mrs. Kelber. "If you ask a student who is the good teacher and who is the good counselor, you will learn a lot."

Today Rose Kelber is as actively involved in the Pomona Valley Transcribers Guild as when she founded it in 1960. Currently, she handles public relations for the guild, serving as a speaker for service organizations. From 1967 to 1969 she served as president of the California State Transcribers and Educators of the Visually Handicapped. She is on the national committee for tape recording for the blind and has taught braille classes for 10 years to adults who in turn transcribe books for the blind. She is currently teaching a class at Ontario Public Library, and a new class will begin in the fall. She has formed many Braille Transcribing Clubs at junior highs schools throughout the valley.

There seems to be no end to her involvement in helping the blind.

Mrs. Kelber transcribes a monthly newspaper for the handicapped students at the University of California, Riverside, and has taught a class at California Institution for Women on braille transcribing.

She has tutored three students at California Youth Training School teaching Braille for several years, and at California Institution for Men she has worked with inmates to develop a program of tape recording of textbooks and pleasure reading books for students and adults.

Tiny, smiling, persuasive Rose Kelber says of all her activities, "I wouldn't change a thing. Everything I have learned has led me to learn more. I am convinced the only way to find out what's going on is to be involved."

And for the mothers of young children she emphasizes, "Allow your child to explore everything he wants. How else will be know what it is he wants?"

Every woman, she says, ought to involve herself in order to grow and to keep up with young minds.

The five children of Dr. and Mrs. Kelber and their accomplishments are ample proof that the Kelbers have always done just that.

Lace touches

The latest material for this year's bikinis is a jersey with touches of lace or crochet, strategically positioned.

OES plans social programs

Providing help to others and social programs for their members are the local chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Miss Maxine Shurtz of 506 N. Towne Ave., Claremont, is the worthy matron of Claremont Chapter 324, Order of the Eastern Star, which has 163 members who meet the third Tuesday of each month December through September, and the first Tuesday in October and November.

Also serving as officers of the chapter are Mrs. Gerald Zimmerman, associate matron; Mrs. Clinton Van Wert, secretary and Mrs. George Redmond, treasurer.

Donations made during the year by the Claremont chapter were to the Home Maintenance and Home Endowment funds for the Eastern Star Home in Los Angeles, the J. Clifford Lee Cancer Fund, the Cancer Dressing Stations, the Benevolent Fund for needy members and the Scholarship Fund.

Social activities highlighting the year were line officers' night, guest night, California Eastern Star Centennial celebration, farewell night, chapter birthday night and matrons and patrons night.

The 240 members of Pomona Chapter 110, OES, meet the second Saturday of each month from May through January and the fourth Saturday of February, March and April.

Mrs. Sam Weaver of 605 E. McKinley Ave., Pomona, is the worthy matron of the chapter. Other officers are Mrs. Katherine Frazier, associate matron; Mrs. Joseph Bellot, secretary; Miss Anne Bays, treasurer, and Mrs. Paul Putnam, publicity chairman.

During the year the members held a guest night, a worthy matron's and worthy patron's party night and spaghetti dinner, dime-a-dip-dinner, a May homecoming, brother's night, yard sale official visit of the worthy grand matron and worthy grand patron, and a tv studio tour.

Donations were made to the J. Clifford Lee Cancer Fund, the Scholarship Fund for students training for the ministry and the Red Cross Blood Bank. Members also gave volunteer hours to the cancer dressing station.

Mrs. Betty Clabby is serving as worthy matron of the Star of the West Chapter, OES. Also serving as chapter officers are Mrs. Philip Gustafson, associate matron; Mrs. Merle Kistler, secretary, and Mrs. Leon Miriani, treasurer.

Star of the West, with 342 members, meets the third Monday of all months except March, October and November in which it meets and first and third Mondays. The chapter supports the OES Estaryl scholarship fund, the J. Clifford Cancer Fund and the OES cancer dressing stations.

WCTU is celebrating 90th anniversary

Celebrating its 90th anniversary is the Woman's Christian Temperance Union which is an organization banded together for the protection of the home, the abolition of the liquor traffic and the triumph of Christ's Golden Rule in custom and law.

Officers of the Pomona-Claremont WCTU are Mrs. Clifford Henning Sr. of 735 St. Paul St., Pomona, president; Mrs. Alta Brown, vice president; Mrs. George Johnson, secretary; Miss Harriet Morley, treasurer, and Mrs. Henning, publicity chairman.

The organization's 73 members meet the third Thursday of each month. The members work in the interests of the community by protesting legislative bills which conflict with the goals of the organization on the state, national and local levels.

Mrs. H. Spenser Minnich of 2607 B St., La Verne, is the president of the La Verne WCTU. Serving with her are Miss Jane Wingard, vice president; Mrs. Ruth Weaver, secretary; Mrs. Jennie Via, treasurer, and Miss Wingard, publicity chairman.

The 60 La Verne WCTU members meet the second Tuesday of each month.

The group works through its eight departments Christian Outreach, citizenship, legislation, projection methods, public relations and special service. Monthly meetings provide information alerting members to films and literature adverse to their goals.

Clubs sponsor civic, cultural projects

The non-federated women's clubs in the valley work independently to sponsor civic, educational and cultural activities in their areas.

President of San Dimas Woman's Club is Mrs. L. W. Heersema, 936 Benwood St., San Dimas. Vice president is Mrs. J. C. Garrett, and other officers are Mrs. Ronald Green, secretary; Mrs. Darvin E. Farmer, treasurer; and Mrs. Stephen Woxland, publicity chairman.

The 152 members meet on the third Thursday of the month to promote friendliness and the general welfare of the community; to further the education of the women; and to participate in civic and social projects in the community.

During the year the club sponsored the Blood Bank in San Dimas and presented achievement awards to high school girls and donation to the Order of Merit. Camperships were given to needy children and the group participated in Head Start program. They also gave donations to Friends of the Library.

The Women's Community Club of Pomona has Mrs. Edward L. Cline as its president. She resides at 4375 San Bernardino Court, Montclair.

Other officers are: Mrs. Betty Graham, vice president; Mrs. Frances King, secretary; Mrs. Rose Jarosh, treasurer; and Mrs. William Lee, publicity chairman.

The club meets every Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., except in July and August.

Purpose of the club is social. Classes are offered in china painting, oil painting, knitting, and arts and crafts.

Members' birthdays were honored each month during the last year and there was a membership tea, open house, Christmas bazaar and rummage sale.

There are 60 members in the Mt. Baldy Community Club. The unit meets on the second Tuesday of the month.

Purpose of the club is threefold: Unity, to unite the women of the community in a common endeavor the sharing of ideas and events; social, to welcome new residents and to include families of members in as many activities as possible; service, to the youth, school and to other community needs.

Mrs. Alan Bescoby, P. O. Box 352, Mt. Baldy, is president and is assisted by Mmes. Joseph Barber, vice president; Robert Barlet, secretary; Ronald Smith, treasurer; and Peter Needham, publicity chairman.

Highlights of the last year were the annual potluck dinner at Chapman Ranch; Christmas Home Tour in December; White Elephant sale to raise funds for Nicaragua earthquake relief; scholastic award given to Richard Martin, Upland High School senior from Mt. Baldy, in June. There were several activities for children of Mr. Baldy.

Mrs. Katheleene McClellan, 331 W. MCKinley Ave., is president of the Love Thy Neighbor Club.

Pat Newton

Needs to be involved

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

A love of scouting carried over from childhood, a seemingly compulsive need to be involved and a fascination with people have motivated Progress-Bulletin Woman Achiever Pat Newton for the past 17 years.

Ever since 1956, when the first of her four children started nursery shcool, Pat has projected outward from her home.

Three organizations — the PTA, Girl Scouts and United Way — have received the major benefit from the thousands of hours of work she has volunteered.

There have, however, been other organizations through the years to feel her influence.

Now she feels there is occurring a change in her motivation.

"I find I'm doing it more for myself," she said. "The kids, the youngest is 16, they don't need me. I'd go nuts if I didn't have something.

"It is for my own personal well being that I remain involved." And, she adds, she has no intention of slowing down.

"I'll defintely keep as involved as I have been.

"Meeting new people is fun and interesting. They all have a different outlook and each one teaches you something. You learn to get along with people, all people, and that's really what it's all about."

She was born, she tells you, in San Pedro. She went through kindergarten and first grade there before the family moved to Pasadena. She was graduated from lower division Psadena Junior College in 1947, and in 1951 received a B.A. in English literature from Pomona College.

"I can't tell you exactly what I've done with it, but that's what I got." she said.

Two days after graduation, on June 12, 1951, she was married to Sanford Newton. They lived in Monrovia a year before moving to Pomona. They've lived here since. The family home is at 1449 N. Gibbs St.

"I had four babies in four years. It was miserable then, but it's great now," she said. Katy is 20, Karen is 18, Mary is 17 and Bill is 16.

"My original motivation in being a volunteer was getting my kids involved in the nursery school thing. I found I enjoyed being with and meeting new and different people.

"I was in scouting clear through my high school years and up to the time my kids quit scouts I stayed close to their activities and interests.

"I never worked with kids though, always at the administrative level. I found that was really my thing. It got to the point where I was doing it for me. I really enjoyed it.

"Initially I got conned into United Way by my friends. I kept at it because Girl Scouts was a member agency and I feel strongly that administrators and directors of agencies should be involved. But, there again, I have fun."

"Working in PTA I found was a good way to know what was happening at school. I got to know principals and teachers on a first-name basis."

Pat was Pomona High School PTA president in 1971-72 and 1972-73. Actually her PTA involvement dates back to 1960-61 when she was elected fourth vice president at Montvue School. She has served continuously through the years at Montvue, Lincoln, Emerson and Pomona High.

Her United Way involvement began in 1957 when she volunteered as a residential block worker. She has been at it ever since and this year is serving as vice chairman of one of the budget divisions in Los Angeles County United Way.

She has been with Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council since 1962. She served one year as a Brownie leader before going onto council. She has filled numerous positions and this year is a member of the nominating committee as well as chairman of the public relations committee.

In 1967 she was presented the Thanks Badge, Girl Scouting's highest award to adult volunteers.

Pat worked with Pomona Community Nursery School from 1956 to 1960. She was a member of the Pomona Jay-C-Ettes from 1956 to 1963 and served as president of that organization in 1961-62.

From 1960 to 1965, she filled numerous volunteer positions in the Sunday school at Pilgrim Congregational Church.

In 1968-69 she contributed untold hours to the Pomona school board's study committee on integration.

In between, she volunteered to promote school bond elections, the library bonds and individual political campaigns.

Her husband, Sanford Newton Jr., has suggested that she take a paid position since she is willing to devote so many hours to outside jobs.

"It's a possibility," said Pat.

In her spare time, Pat likes to read, knit and daydream at the beach where the family has a home.

"And I play bridge twice a month. That's my therapy."

Pat has a sister, Janice, living in Maryland. Her mother is Mrs. Kathryn Crook of Walnut Creek. Her father, now deceased, went into active Navy duty when she was 12 and was gone five years.

"While father was gone, mother was not well, and I was in charge."

Pat has been in charge ever since.

"I'm really quite an independent type person," she admits.

Jean Todd

Achieves individually

By JEANNE BRYANT
P-B Staff Writer

Self-motivation, a strong will and an intense interest in others are the characteristics that have made Mrs. Richard K. Todd a woman achiever not only this year, but for many years in Pomona.

Following the philosophy, "Think for yourself, interpret what to do and then do it," Jean Todd, a Pomona resident for 25 years, has shown determination to achieve those goals she feels would result in community improvement. She has worked toward effecting cooperation among people from all segments of Pomona and channeling the energies of young people in self-improvement.

Although she has participated as member of PTA groups, the hospital auxiliary and political committees, Mrs. Todd's greatest acheivements have been on a singular, individual basis, rather than as part of an organization. Her primary interst has been the youth of Pomona.

When Jean Todd recognizes the need for change, she likes "to get in there and hustle," and through her interest the South Side Teen Post was born and a reading center for all ages has been developed.

When the teen post began in 1966 in a large room with inadequate plumbing facilities, Mrs. Todd brought together a group of interested people to support and improve the project. She solicited the aid of service clubs and through her interest the created an awareness in many people of the need of such a project in Pomona.

After a more permanent home for the teen post was found, Jean Todd assisted with the development of the North Side Teen Post. In an effort to stabilize and protect the existence of both teen posts, Mrs. Tood initiated a series of meetings of interested persons who formed the non-profit corporation, the Teen Post Sponsoring Group, Inc.

On a more personal level, Mrs. Todd volunteered many hours at the South Side Post tutoring reading and teaching sewing, and she and her husband helped in the rebuilding of the teen post after it had been burned in a fire.

Through her work at the Teen Post Jean Todd realized that a lack of study skills contributed to the social problems of many teen-agers. "I met so many young people who were so frustrated because they couldn't read and thus couldn't understand," the P-B Woman Achiever stated. For some reason they hadn't learned to read and weren't able to communicate."

With her usual determination Jean Todd resolved to do something to correct the situation. She had been trained as a teacher and received a B.A. degree at UCLA, but had married after college and did not seek a job. In 1968 she entered La Verne College to obtain a master's degree in the teaching of reading.

With the help of La Verne College teacher Joe Rosen, who gave her "the wisdom of his knowledge," Mrs. Todd developed a remedial reading program for the use of teachers at the sixth grade level. The multi sensory project incorporated the help of the student's family.

After an unsuccessful attempt to obtain a teaching job in the Pomona public schools the self-motivated Mrs. Todd started a search for another way to reach her goal. She looked at the large attic in her home and the plans started forming. With the help of her husband who did the carpentry work, Jean Todd opened the "Attic Reading Center."

In an atmosphere which enhances the learning process, Jean Todd works to build the self-confidence of her reading pupils and improve their communication skills. "As soon as a student gets going and his teacher at school sees an improvement, I get the child on his own," says the tutor. "I don't want to be a crutch, I want the student on his own."

"The child is in the center to learn. I don't want to say, 'This is what the child must learn.' I put myself in the student's place and figure out what practical skills he doesn't know and what he needs to learn to function and to get ahead."

Rosen helped Mrs. Todd choose the materials for her center and encouraged her to plan the center the way she thought it should be planned. "Mr. Rosen teaches people to think for themselves. He builds people up and I found that this is important to do with children and everyone."

Mrs. Todd works to build the self-confidence of her pupils, hoping that with added confidence other skills will improve also.

Jean Boyd Todd feels that her own self-confidence and determination comes from her upbringing as the only child of a farming family in Idaho. She married Richard Koenig Todd, a funeral director and life-long Pomona resident, after college graduation, and the couple recently celebrated its silver wedding anniversary. Possibly her greatest achievement has been raising her children, Mary, 23; Marty, 21, and Rick, 18, all third generation graduates of Pomona High School. Jean Todd states that she is a proponent of women's liberation, but follows it up by saying that "A mother is a great thing to be."

Jean Todd is a woman that has worked many years for her church, is devoted to her family and is intensely patriotic. She believes "in people being able to work to the best of their ability, no matter who they are, their sex, their race or their religion. I don't think the country can get ahead unless they do."

She sits in her Attic Reading Center, surrounded by quotations of great and famous people, and inspires her students to learn and become the best people they can be.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Conservation of America's natural resources is not a new concern. The following statement by President Theodore Roosevelt appeared in the 1909 World Almanac: "There is no other question now before the nation of equal gravity with the question of the conservation of our natural resources ... and so to handle the great sources of our prosperity as not to destroy in advance all hope of the prosperity of our descendants."

LWV urges political activity by public

The League of Women Voters is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that promotes political responsibility through informed and active citizen participation in government.

MRS. ROBERT RINGQUIST

Heading the League in the Pomona area is Mrs. Robert Ringquist of 1105 Reno Ridge, Diamond Bar. Serving with her are Mrs. Werner Marti, first vice president; Mrs. Dwight Siler, second vice president; Mrs. Ronald Coonrod, secretary; Mrs. J. F. Mangrich, treasurer, and Mrs. Richard Larsen, publicity chairman.

The 80 members of the organization meet twice a month. During the year the members held a candidates meeting for the school board election, participated in "Community Attitude Survey," held two meetings with guest speakers on solid waste, made studies on Los Angeles County land use and gave service to voters for the national elections in November by distributing ballot measures "pros and cons," sponsoring a speakers' bureau, registering voters and providing a telephone service and rides to the polls.

Mrs. Russell Martin of 1132 Baughman Drive, Claremont, is the president of the Claremont LWV. Other officers are Mrs. Gabriel Smilkstein and Mrs. Gerald Starrh, vice presidents; Mrs. Alonzo Stoddard, secretary; Mrs. Lee Goldstein, treasurer, and Mrs. William Dale, publicity chairman.

The 240 members of the Claremont group meet twice monthly

Activity highlights of the year included candidates meetings with those seeking assembly, state senate, and house of representatives seats; candidate meeting for the school board election; participation in the campaign to pass Proposition 20; land use conference and sponsorship of a program presenting both sides of the national election ballot.

The 48 members of the League of Women Voters of West San Bernardino County meet the second and fourth Thursday evenings and Friday mornings of each month.

Leading the group are Mrs. John Meyer of 2350 Orange Drive, Upland, president; Mrs. Arvid Wedin, vice president; Mrs. Harold McLaughlin, secretary; Mrs. S. L. Walters, treasurer, and Mrs. Richard Cobb, publicity chairman.

During the year the club members conducted a study on the Ontario Airport, studied the solid waste problem in the area and world trade policies and their effects on the state and the Los Angeles area, and sponsored local election candidate forums.

DR. JOHN O'HARA

Girl Scouts develop growth

Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council is a girl-centered, informal, educational program. It involves girls and volunteer adults in an on-going partnership to help girls develop as creative, responsible individuals with a deep sense of personal growth.

Dr. John B. O'Hara of Upland is president of the Council, and Mrs. J. E. Perry is vice president. Mrs. Robert Muleady is recording secretary. Hugh Crombie is treasurer, and Mrs. Sanford Newton is publicity chairman.

The council represents more than 800 troops meeting in schools, churches and homes. Girl Scout activities encourage personal, social, ethical and individual skill development through a wide variety of projects in service, social and environmental action, youth leadership and career exploration.

Activities have included camping, home arts, service projects and creative arts approached from differing angles designed to expand awareness and imagination for the thousands of girl members who participate in the troops of the area.

A most unique adaption of the traditional Scouting program has taken place during the past year with the cooperation of the other two girl-serving agencies, YWCA and Camp Fire Girls.

YWCA offers variety

The YWCA is an agency which draws together women and girls of diverse experiences and faiths that their lives may be open to new understanding and deeper relationships and that together they may join in the struggle for peace and justice, freedom and dignity for all people, through a program that is social, recreational and educational.

Serving as president of the YWCA of Greater Pomona Valley is Mrs. John Mainiero of 1547 Granite Ave., Ontario. There are 500 adult members of the organization and 300 youth members and participants. The board of directors meets the third Thursday of each month. Membership luncheons are the second Wednesday of the month.

Also serving as officers of the YWCA are Mrs. Lawrence Woodruff, vice president; Mrs. James Kerwin, secretary; Mrs. Lloyd Van Deventer, treasurer, and Mrs. Donald Stewart, publicity.

During the past year monthly membership luncheons introduced members to the many activity programs offered by the YWCA and provided a variety of programs in several locations throughout the valley.

Classes and activities were sponsored by the YWCA for adult women and a new siminar, "La Raza: The Chicano in Our Community," was offered in an attempt to enrich understanding and communication.

A new YW Wives Club was organized for the Upland area and plans are being made for a program for single parents, especially the teen mother.

Teen activities include Y teen clubs and an interagency effort, IGOR.

Activity highlights of the YWCA during the year also included the Christmas Luncheon and Bazaar.

President is Mrs. Marguerite Agee, 989-B N. San Antonio Ave. In addition, officers are: Mmes. Fred Hallock, vice president; Robert Frady, secretary; Dean Lewis, treasurer; Ted Rees, publicity chairman.

The club has as its purpose philanthropic work, monthly contribution to the Optimist Home for Boys in Los Angeles and local community youth work.

During the last year the club conducted a rummage sale, Christmas boutique and buffet and nine members attended the Opti-Mrs. convention.

There are 50 members in the Pomona Jay-C-Ettes and they meet on the first Thursday of the month.

MRS. DOUGLAS HAMILTON

Mrs. Douglas Hamilton, 691 Wellesley Drive, Claremont, is president of the organization and is assisted by Mmes. Jeff Sanner, vice president; Dee Wiley, secretary; Mike Wilcock, treasurer; and Mike Arrambide, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club is to assist the Pomona Jaycees with their social events and community projects; to provide opportunities for growth in leadership abilities; and to promote friendships among Jaycee wives.

Projects completed during the last year included participation in the Hike or Bike for the March of Dimes; contribution of 100 new toys to Santa Claus, Inc.; aiding the Inter-community Blind Center of Whittier in the purchase of a television reading device; and giving volunteer aid to the Red Cross.

The members assisted the Jaycees in helping staff the Los Angeles County Fair refreshment booth; hosted the pre-parade reception and post-parade banquet for Christmas parade; helped in the promotion of Pomona Valley Day at Disneyland and served as hostesses for the Miss Pomona Pageant.

The president of La Sertoma Club of Diamond Bar is Mrs. Jerry Phillips, 454 Torito Lane, Diamond Bar.

Other officers of the 10-member group are: Mmes. Lee Beidleman, vice president; Leo Neeleman, secretary; Jorge Soares, treasurer; and Joe Baughman, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club, which meets on the second Monday of the month, is to aid and support educational and philanthropic enterprises including training and educating men and women through scholarships and awards; to promote friendship and fellowship among wives of Sertomans and to support the Sertoma Club.

Activity highlights include assisting at Casa Colina, distributing toys for Santa Claus Inc., sponsoring the Diane Samuels Kidney Transplant Fund, sponsoring a Girl Scout troop, a Guatemalan foster child, and the Walnut-Diamond Bar Girls' Softball League. To do this they have held potluck dinners, a garage sale and Las Vegas Night. The club also presented a youth service award to Judi Wong, a high school senior.

Mrs. Novita Cardin is president of the Eagles' Auxiliary. She is assisted by Mmes. Richard Warkentin, vice president; Henry Gunski, secretary; Gertrude Leppold, treasurer; and Margaret Wilson, publicity chairman.

The club's purpose is service to the community and support of the Eagles' organization.

During the year the club sponsored a hobo party, Christmas party and social gatherings. Money was raised for City of Hope, Muscular Dystrophy, Max Baer Heart Fund, Jimmy Durante Crippled Children's Fund and supported a workshop for retarded children.

Mrs. Robert Pitts, 379 Garfield Ave., Pomona, is president of the Emblem Club. Other officers are: Mmes. Barney Ross, vice president; David Haywood, secretary; William Parsonage, treasurer; and Henry Gunski, publicity chairman.

Purpose of the club is service to the community and support to the Pomona Elks Lodge.

During the year the group supported the State Elks Cerebral Palsy project; gave three $100 scholarships to local high schools; carried on its charity march each month; contributed to Open Door, Gateway House, Operation Groovy, Meals on Wheels, YMCA campership, Little League and Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets.

There are nine members in the Pomona Y's Menettes and they meet on the second Monday of the month.

Purpose of the club is to help the youth of the YMCA.

Mrs. Clarence Jackman, 193 Highgate Ave., Pomona, is president of the club. Other officers are Mmes. Lonard Drake, vice president; Elmer Le Donne, secretary; and Bob Mishler, treasurer.

The group raised funds by candy sales to help youth. Money was given toward Youth in Government program, for equipment and memberships. Had a program in which students who participated in Youth in Government program related their experiences in Sacramento.

Foothill Guild aids children

The 35 members of the Foothill Guild for the Crippled Children Society, headed by Mrs. Kenneth F. Russell, 665 West 16th St., Claremont, meet on the second Friday of each month.

The purpose of the club is to aid, support and further the interest in and knowledge of the Crippled Children's Society for the benefit of the community.

Members have helped stuff campaign mailers, served as volunteer receptionists at the center and sponsored the opening of The Claremont Depot. The money from this restaurant opening will be used at the center to assist in the summer program or new programs as the center continues to expand.

Other officers are Mrs. John T. Tomlinson Jr., vice president; Mrs. T. Dwight Brown, secretary; Mrs. Ralph E. Gain, treasurer; and Mrs. J. P. Rimer, publicity chairman.

Color on courts

Now that players on the women's pro tennis tour have started to wear colored outfits, what's keeping you? You can look at the Ten Commandments all day without finding one that says: "Thou shalt wear white to play tennis."

Animal act

Brooching a suggestion: Gather a collection of pins in shapes of various animals, then pick an animal to suit your mood for the day. Avoid aardvarks, platypuses and other beasts it would be too difficult to find a suitable mood for.

Veterans and families aided by auxiliaries

Pomona Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary 2018 meets on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month under the leadership of Mrs. Clyde McLaughlin, 3 Sunrise Lane, San Dimas. Other officers are: Mmes. Edward Nacker, vice president; Betty Klein, secretary-treasurer; and Cecilia Satterlee, publicity chairman.

The 91-member group prepared and served food for the Post activities, worked at the Pomona Boys Club on fund-raising luncheons, presented flags to schools and had one hospital day a month in the parapalegic ward of the Long Beach VA Hospital.

Miss Winifred Frater, 675 N. Caswell, is president of the Charles P. Rowe, Unit 30, American Legin Auxiliary. Assisting her are Mmes. Alred T. Davis, vice president; Edwin A. Galipo, secretary; Ford Ferris, treasurer.

The 117 members meet on the third Thursday of the month. This past year the club donated a T.V. to the patients of Long Beach VA Hospital, presented flags to youth groups and the Pomona Cemetery Association, and held annual Americanism Essay Contest locally.

The Keith Powell Unit 78, American Legion Auxiliary sponsored a representative to Girl's State, donated food baskets and aid to needy veterans and their families, gave flags to local scout troops and contributed to Friends of the Library.

Officers are Mrs. Wesley Osborne, 3346 Mural Dr., president; Freda Aiken, vice president; Ruba Loy, secretary; Lula Baughman, treasurer; and Marietta Osborne, publicity chairman. The 85-member club meets on the third Thursday of each month.

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit 112, Ontario, with 232 members, meets on the second Monday of every month. Officers are Mrs. Max Rowland, 8384 Via Ladera, Cucamonga, president; Margaret Dickson, vice president; Mrs. Harry Eason, secretary; Mrs. Earl Stephan, treasurer; and Mrs. Arthur A. Novelli, publicity chairman.

This past year the auxiliary participated in a rummage sale, fiesta, poppy sales, luau, joint activities with the post, child welfare, scholarships and Americanism Essays. All funds are used on committees for rehabilitation.

Officers of the 74 member Jack Ford Jr., Unit Nine, Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, are Mrs. Margaret McWilliams, president; Mrs. Gloria Dunn, vice president; Mrs. Alafair Huff, secretary; Mrs. Maebell Marshall, treasurer.

MRS. ELEANOR MARSCHALL

MRS. CYLDE McLAUGHLIN

The auxiliary presented flags to Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, visited shut-ins and did hospital sewing for veterans hospitals this past year. Meetings are held on the third Tuesday of each month.

The Vicksburg Woman's Relief Corps, Unit 37 is headed by Mrs. Stella Cook, 858 E. Eighth St., Pomona. Assisting her are Mrs. Anna Bentley, vice president; Mrs. Ernest L. Reinhard, secretary; Mrs. Virginia Spoonmore, treasurer; and Mrs. Rea Croxon, publicity chairman. The 62 members meet on the second Wednesday of each month.

Dinners, rummage sales and a country store enable the group to donate cookies, candy, games and other gifts to patients of the Sepulveda Hospital who are visited once a month.

All of the members of the group participate in a WRC social club on the fourth Wednesday of each month. Officers are Mmes. Ernest L. Reinhard, president; Anna Bentley, vice president; Virgina Spoonmore, secretary; Goldie Epley, treasurer; and Rea Croxon, publicity chairman. This branch supplies many of the items for sale in the country store as well as some of the gifts for the hospital.

Pomona Navy Mothers' Club, Unit 444 meets on the third Tuesday of each month. The club has donated three record players and a cassette tape deck to the hospital at Camp Pendleton. In addition they visit the patients and take snacks, gifts, records, tapes and games.

Funds for the group projects are earned through the sponsorship of the Pomona Valley Baby Pageant. Officers are Mrs. Marjorie Clark, 487 East Grand Ave., Pomona, president; Mrs. Georgia Grosdidier, vice president; Mrs. Eva Lee Lawson, secretary; Mrs. Elmer Burgess, treasurer; and Mrs. Lucille Bell, publicity chairman.

The 58 members of the American Gold Star Mothers, Pomona Chaper, meet on the second Wednesday of the month under the leadership of Mrs. Kenneth L. Bolton, 12386 Maxon Pl., Chino. Other officers are Mrs. Paul Hederman, vice president; Mrs. Ruth Tedrick, secretary; Mrs. Mary Carrier, treasurer; and Mrs. Eva Lee Lawson, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Bolton was the first woman to accept the torch from the Belgian Consul General in the 13th annual Sacred Torch ceremony held at Forest Lawn, Hollywood Hills on Veterans' Day. The organization donated to 13 hospitals throughout California, Arizona and Nevada, the Salvation Army Campership fund and gave Christmas couponbooks to the Long Beach Veterans' Hospital.

Widows, World War One has 27 members who meet on the second Sunday of the month. Chapter 44 was organized in November for the purpose of promoting legislation to give the widows more pension allowance and to provide a broader social life.

Officers are Mrs. Eleanor Marschall, 1120 Glen Ave., Pomona, president; Mrs. Bertie Kizziar, vice president; Mrs. Jean Spellman, secretary; Mrs. Alora Galliger, treasurer; and Mrs. Genoa Hurt, publicity chairman.

Transcribers type books for blind

Newly elected officers of the Pomona Valley Transcribers Guild are: Mmes. Marshall Mendel, president; Mrs. John Shibe, vice president; Mrs. J. L. Shumway recording secretary; Mrs. Claude Culbert, treasurer; and Mrs. William Raburn, publicity chairman.

In addition to a business meeting once a month at the Ontario Public Library, members of the Guild spend hours transcribing printed books into Braille or large-print type. These books are provided to students for school work and to the general public for both educational and recreational reading.

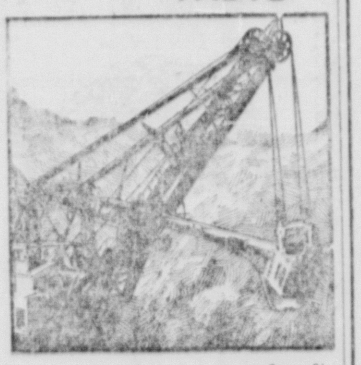
After the books are transcribed, many are reproduced by means of a Thermoform process so that the same book may be distributed to other persons. The Ontario Public Library has many books available to the public which have been reproduced by Guild members.

All Braille typists are trained and meet specific requirements of perfection.

Keep the curl

A good setting lotion will help keep the curl in your hair during the summer's heat and humidity, but if your straight locks resist curling a professional permanent may be the answer.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS



Of 575,000,000 tons of soft coal mined in the U.S. in 1972, 270,000,000 tons (47 per cent) was strip-mined, The World Almanac notes. Political activity encouraged by clubs

Local clubs of national political parties urge women to participate in political clubs to stimulate an active interest in government affairs, to increase the efficiency of popular government, to attain wider knowledge of the principals and practices of government and to have a voice in local and national government.

Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club, Fed., has 225 members and meets the second Thursday of each month. Officers are Mrs. Marvin Grove of 1785 Yorba Dr., Pomona, president; Mrs. Hollis Page, vice president; Mrs. Paul Weisend, secretary; Mrs. Robert Gustaveson, treasurer, and Mrs. Jack Fulton, publicity chairman.

During the year members of the club volunteered over 1600 hours working for local Republican candidates and 260 hours for Governor Ronald Reagan's tax initiative petition. They held three fund-raising events including a tea and tour of the collection of porcelain and crystal at Armstrong's; a luncheon and fashion show at Capistrano, and a "Day at the Swap Meet."

Through the Mamie Eisenhower Library the club contributed books to the public library, and members were sponsors of the Pomona Young Republicans and attended the southern division and Los Angeles County covventions.

Claremont Republican Women's Club, Fed., is headed by Mrs. Harry T. Boles of 3849 Mural Drive, Claremont.

Other officers of the club are Mrs. Harry McCarthy, vice president; Mrs. James Edwards, secretary; Mrs. Donald Cross, treasurer, and Mrs. Bernard Brown, publicity chairman. The club has 175 members and meets the third Wednesday of each month.

During the year the Claremont club sponsored a variety of programs, presented books to the Claremont High School Library and the public library, co-sponsored the Republican Headquarters with the Claremont Republican Club and held a patriotic dinner to honor Col. John Stavast, a former POW.

The Frances Reed Democratic Club has 76 members who meet the third Wednesday of each month. Mrs. Edward Goldstein of 2288 Halcyon Way, Pomona, is the president.

Also serving as officers are Mrs. Louie Robinson, vice president; Mrs. George McKoy, secretary; Mrs. Hyman Rosenberg, treasurer, and Mrs. Stephen Zetterberg, publicity chairman.

Activity highlights of the year included an all-day communications conference relating to freedom and responsibility of the press; workshops where candidate development and methods used by candidates to communicate with the voting public were studied; a conference on revenue sharing with Pomona and Claremont city officials; participation in the formation and staffing of a Pomona Democratic Headquarters, and a brunch exploring the role of women in politics.

MRS. RAYMOND SAILORS

NDGW preserves history

Rancho San Jose Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, has as its president, Mrs. Raymond Sailors, 11839 Crystal, Chino.

Other officers are Miss Annie Bidegain, vice president; Mrs. Senaida Baiz, secretary; Mrs. Donald Carpenter, treasurer; and Mrs. Alphonse B. Fages, publicity chairman.

The 70 members meet on the second the fourth Tuesday of the month.

Purpose of the club is patriotic preservation of California history and landmarks; support of NDGW Children's Foundation; veterans' welfare; and civic participation.

The club sponsored a fashion show and luncheon; named 15 of its members as Docents for the Historical Society of Pomona Valley; presented California flags to several foreign students and to the birthplace of Father Junipero Serra in Spain.

Help problem

No amount of make-up will hide a bad complexion. But a good cleansing routine will help problem skin. Start off with a cleanser and face brush for a deep cleansing of pores. Remove all make-up at night no matter how tired you are. A light moisturizer worn overnight is good for dry or normal skin. A face mask or astringent will help oily complexion.

Society honored

The organization, dedicated to furthering the interest and education in the care and culture of African Violets, has sixty members and meets on the 3rd. Monday of the month.

Mrs. A. Kennedy Baird, 1888 Morgan Ave., Claremont, president is assisted by Mrs. Frederic G. Astin, Jr., vice-president; Mrs. Edward-Pease, secretary; Mrs. Roy M. Wright, treasurer; and Mrs. Arlowe Collom, publicity.

Boy Scouts assisted by women

The group meets on the third Thursday of the month with Mrs. Roger Wheeler, 2258 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, as president.

Other officers are Mmes. Robert Taylor, vice president; Mrs. Robert Shacklett, secretary; Mrs. Richard Kirkendall, treasurer; Mrs. Leslie Jann Jr., membership chairman.

Purpose of the club is to promote and advance the welfare of the Old Baldy Council. The main project is the Used Uniform bank.

The first activity held this spring was a tea and fashion show honoring Den Mothers in the council area. Other activities are planned.

Reduce bacteria

To reduce bacterial growth in picnic sandwiches, take a tip from commercial sandwich makers: use frozen bread and fillings chilled to 45 degrees or lower. Wrapped tightly in plastic and carried in an insulated container, they should be just right for eating when mealtime arrives.

The Bible course that heals.

The Bible is filled with accounts of spiritual healing. Health restored, lives regenerated, needs supplied. That spiritual power is still active today.

The Bible Lessons in the Christian Science Quarterly, which include citations from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, can help you find this healing truth.

You can buy your own copy of the Quarterly, or study the Bible Lesson in our free public Reading Room.

Theater supported by group

There are 158 members in the Curtain Raisers of Garrison Theater who meet in October and Febuary and have a luncheon in May.

Purpose of the club is to enjoy, support and encourage attendance at student and professional theater. The club actively participates in the acquisition of essential capital equipment for the theater.

Mrs. Otto B. Christain, 2263 La Paz, Claremont is president of the group. Other officers are Mrs. John Esterline, vice president; Mrs. Eva Ballard, secretary; Mrs. Denman Gambill Jr., treasurer; and Mrs. Stanton P. Welsh, publicity chairman.

During the year the group heard Frank Capra, director, speak; staged a winetasting theater party in January; heard Director Delbert Mann speak in February when he also showed "Jane Eyre"; held a joint meeting with Honnold Library Society in April and heard Marion and Charles Holmes reading "Spoon River Anthology."

La Verne women assisted

The La Verne College Women's Club was organized to promote a fellowship among the women, other than students, who are associated with La Verne College and to be of service to the students, especially women students.

Mrs. Vernard Eller, 2448 Third St., La Verne, serves as president with assistance from Mrs. William Wagoner, vice president; Mrs. Dwight Hanawalt, secretary-treasurer and publicity chairman.

The 50 members meet on the fourth Monday of every month. The sharing of interterm experiences by both faculty and students was considered to be the outstanding event of the past year.
